ICEBERGS AND FOGS.

NEW YORK, June 10 .- Icebergs of enormous proportions continue to be met with by ocean steamers with amazing frequency even in very south-ernly latitudes. An illustration of this may be found in the statements of four ship captains who have just arrived in this city. Captain Hansen, of the Hamburg steamer Frisia, said: 'We left Hamburg on May 28. We had light variable winds and moderand the water, then fell considerably, and I concluded that icebergs were not Gulf Stream. Its height above water was fully 200 feet, and as that portion always represents but a seventh part of the entire mass, it must have been 1,400 feet high. It covered an area of probably 500 square feet. At 12:30 it arrived at an equal distance between the Main and my steamer, creating a number of small whirl-

This iceberg taken of rauch or city and village was a big fellow and was being carried stock. The following table of totals toward us with great rapidity by the | will explain itself at a glance:

I account for the presence of icebergs so far South this year by the fact that we have had a very mild winter, which has severed the the bergs from the mainland. They have drifted southwestwards as far as Newfoundland, which is in latitude 50, and not being able to gain a footbold on shore there, owing to their depth, have drifted eastward. They are to be found in many dfferent latitudes, but oretty near the same longitude, that is etween 47 and 50. I do not think any of them are more to westward than that. Navigation is greatly impeded, and t is a wonder to me that no accidents have occurred so far. After meeting the three icebergs I spoke of just now, a heavy fog enveloped us, and I know never slept a wink that night. Had an iceberg approached us there would have been no means of discovering the fact in time to steer out of its way. The only manner of ascertaining the presence of icebergs in Southern waters is by testing the temperature; but then, of course, this does not tell one now near the ice is. There is practically no way of eliminating this danger to ocean travel, unless a very southerly and consequently roundabout course is taken by the steamers. that is what most of them are doing, by the way, and as to my self, I intend running two or three degrees further south on my return journey.'

A Western writer suggests that the summer food of hogs should be more most of the large floating masses of nitregenous than corn, and recommends green oats and peas. The pea is very rich in muscle and bone-building elements, and oats are also superior to corn in this respect. What Happened to a Pitts-burgh Man.

Newspapers are full of stories now a-days of the marvelous luck which has befallen people who did not look for anything of the kind to happen. Every now and then we hear of somebody having a large fortune left them by the death of a distant relative, a cousin in California, or something of that kind. Not long ago a young Pittsburgher had a singular piece of luck happen to him. tion was walking down Fifth avenue, 034,316; Illinios is second, with when he saw an old and rather de 5,170,266: Missouri bas 4,553,123; crepit man slip on a crossing and fall Indiana 3,186,413; Ohio 3,141,332; rather heavily. Reminiscences of Washington

A valentine seen by a reporter of 'You say,' I remarked to the old negro who drove the hack, 'that you the Easton (Md.) Ledger, which was were General Washington's body ser- sent to a girl in Easton by a youth in Washington, brings to mind the story of a name and of a name of J. Meigs, and the same Christian name has been in the Meigs family for several generations. Many years ago, in ante-revolutionary days, Jonathan Meigs courted a young lady who rejected his addresses. Meigs continued to love the girl, and, though too proud bachelor unless she, of her own violl-tion, relented. After a few years the lady did relent, or perhaps got to know her own heart better, and sent a letter to her former suitor. Meigs got the letter and found in it only the two words: 'Return, Jonathan.' It was enough Jonathan did return and made her his wife. Their first child was bantized: Return Jonathan.' to commemorate the brief letter that saved the Meigs family from extinction, and from that day to this there has been a Return J. Meigs in every generation. The sender of the valentine referred to is the grandson of General M. C. Meigs, late Quartermaster General, now retired.

Safest Place in a Railroad Train.

It is very well known that the car Gawge won dat fight. I seed him train is generally safer than the front car. The safest, says the Railroad Journal, is probably the last car but 'You weren't with him, though, one in a train of more than two cars ; that is, there are fewer chances of accidents to this than any other. a way train at moderate speed, or any train standing still, a collision is possible from another train in the rear, in which the last car receives the shock. Again, the engine and front cars of a train will often run over a broken rail or a cow, or a stone, without detriment, while the last car, having nothing to draw it into the line of the train, is free to leave the track. Next to the forward car, the rear car is probably the most unsafe in a train. The safest seat is probably near the centre of the last car but one

Speculation as to the Word "Yankee,"

There is a familiar poem, reciting 'I've frequently seen pictures of the tragic fate of a grasshopper attacked by a turkey, which runs thus: ted as sitting upon a white borse.

"A grashopper sat on a sweet-potato vine, Sweet-potato vine, sweet-potato vine, A big wild turkey came running up behind And yanked the poor grashopper Off the sweet-potato vine, sweet-potato vine. This little classic is quoted by Prof. 'Why, bress your soul, 'call de Skeat in his great Etymological Dictionary to illustrate the derivation of Just then we reaced the station and the word "yankee."
