We have lately heard several complaints made regarding the quality of the water furnished by the Water Works Company, of this town. We do not know what efforts the company make to furnish pure water, but we do know that it would be a very easy matter for them to furnish good water. It should be filtered as far as possible before being pumped into the reservoir, and a No. 1 filter should be placed at the outlet of the reservoir. These are all the precautions necessary, unless the pipes have already become filled with filth. We have heard it stated that boys are allowed to go swimming in the reservoir or send their dogs into it after sticks thrown in. This should not be allowed.

Mr. Joseph Baily, of Marion township, this county, merchant, visited Pittsburgh and the Exposition on Monday of last week. He had a large lot of money with him, and after leaving $1,600 with a friend for safe keeping, still had considerable about his clothes. Returning from the exhibition he boarded a street car. Three men got on soon after, one of whom played drunk and tumbled off. Joseph's heart was touched, and he leaped forward to help the lumber unfortunate on the car. At this juncture the man's two companions unaccounted Baily's vest and quickly removed a pocket-book containing $220 in cash, a check for $600 and a due bill for $600. The sharps got away with their plunder.

Our readers will perhaps remember the case of McElwain vs. Kellerman, tried last June. McElwain sued Kellerman for the possession of a horse that had been stolen by a young man and for which stealing the young man was sent to the penitentiary. Kellerman won the suit and now McElwain is going to take it to the Supreme Court. On motion of his attorney, some time ago, the Court ordered the county stenographer to make out a long hand copy of "the evidence and Judge's charge in the case. The costs in the case have already amounted to several hundred dollars. The stenographer will bill against the county for copying evidence and charge was $89.90, and it will likely cost McElwain $125 to get it printed in book form for the Supreme Court. The trip to Philadelphia will cost something, and, altogether, that will be a very expensive mare for both the litigants and also the county of Butler.

PITTSBURGH EXPOSITION.

PITTSBURGH, PA., Oct. 10, 1882.

The Exposition this year has been grand, and this week being the close of its industrial exhibition it will be in fact grander than the former weeks; the public seemingly appreciate all this and are flocking from all quarters to see the great show. The attractions are all of the latest and best order.

Those of your readers who have not been here will miss considerable if they do not take advantage of this opportunity. Among the many beautiful exhibits in the building we note following:

O. McClintock's Suite of Rooms

Undoubtedly the finest and most attractive exhibit ever made at the Exposition is that of Messrs. O. McClintock & Co., of 327 Fifth Avenue, who have fitted up in the east corner of the south gallery, several beautiful appointed apartments. They are all hung with choice tapestries and carpeted with luxurious rugs, the whole illuminated by electric lights. A massive brass railing encloses the front, running the entire length of the exhibit. The first apartments have grottoes in front, each one made of different material. The windows in the rear and the opening from one to another are also curtained to exhibit various styles and features. The furnishings of the rooms is in accord with the beautiful surroundings of upholstery and reflect great credit upon the designer. Some quaint things are seen in the apartments, and some very massive carving are very apparent. The latest conception in art and reproductions from the ancient styles, stand side by side most harmoniously. Although their display is valued at $10,000 it is merely a suggestion of the enormous stock of elegant carpets, upholsteries and furniture to be seen at their store. They carry the largest and finest stock this side of New York, and have the most extensive establishment in which to exhibit the same that can be found in this section. Visitors to the Exposition will be very welcome at 35 Fifth Ave., Pittsburgh.

Novelty New and Rare.

Messrs. J. P. Smith, Son & Co., have a very attractive feature in the main aisle near the center of the building in a hanging sign, stretched across from gallery to gallery, constructed with tumbler and goblets, which, when the bright light from the electric lamps strikes it, presents a beautiful sight. It is a novelty and catches the eye from almost any part of the building. Directly under this lies an array of goods that would be difficult to describe, owing to both numbers and novelties. There are several large show cases full of goods which comprises one of the handsomest assortments of clocks, bronzes, silverware and china ever exhibited in the building. There are fine lamps in endless variety, many of which are extremely beautiful, the bulbs and shades all being hand painted, and by a skillful brush, every touch of which is a picture. These are but a few of the many fine and useful goods to be found at street level, among which would call attention to their new lantern "Comet of 1882," which is both handsome and durable, and is suitable for outdoor use in stormy weather. Their new chimney "The Nonpareil" combines all the qualities of durability, etc., and is meeting with wonderful success. All the goods on the stand are for sale, and in the manner in which the visitors admire the display, Messrs. Smith, Son & Co., will have but few goods to bring away at the close of the Exposition. Do not fail to call at their store in the city, as it will repay you to see their display of goods.

Awards of Premiums

Made by the Pennsylvania State Fair for 1882 to Bissell & Co., manufacturers of stoves, ranges, etc., 239 Liberty street, Pittsburgh.

First premium (silver medal)—For best kitchen range.

First premium (bronze medal)—For the best kitchen stove for bituminous coal. Awarded to the Triumph Portable Range. Examine this range when you go the Exposition.

First premium (bronze medal)—For best display of mantels, 12 in number, finished in a beautiful variety of colors and shapes, and of these they show a still greater variety of sizes and shapes at their rooms, 235 Liberty street, and 242 Penn street, Pittsburgh.

First premium (bronze medal) For best display of grates, finished in a variety of beautiful shapes, suit different styles of mantels. There are thousands of these in use north, south, east and west.

Also the first premium (silver medal) for their safety stove for passenger and baggage cars, largely in use on various railroads. A proper examination of these goods will convince any one that these premiums are well bestowed on the finest exhibit in the Exposition building.

West Point Works.

By this we refer to the boilers exhibited by T. Munroe, proprietor of the West Point Boiler Works, the most extensive manufactory of the kind in Pittsburgh.

This exhibit is just a mere sample of the boilers turned out by these works, Twenty-third and Smallman streets, Pittsburgh. Those who contemplate purchasing a boiler would find it to their interest to call and see the great facilities they have there; you will find at all times a large stock of new boilers made from the best iron in the market on the most improved plan. Col. Munroe is a practical man in the business and he employs none but the best workman, is enabled to make any description or size of boiler on short notice. In addition to the new boilers he has second-hand boilers of all kinds.

H. Houston's Pumps.

This firm has been awarded the highest premium, viz: a Silver Medal and diploma for the Red Jacket Double Acting Frost Proof Force Pump. They have an exhibit in Fowler hall, opposite the large steam engine which propels all the machinery. Parties wishing the best pump that has ever been made should not fail to get one of the Silver Medal Red Jacket Pumps. Messrs. H. Houston & Co. are located at No. 17 Seventh Avenue, Pittsburgh. Take and study their catalogue and price list, which will give you the fullest information on the easiest pump to manage that has ever been invented and one which has received the award for its intrinsic excellence. The Red Jacket Pump has the merit of being of very moderate cost, which is a very great consideration.

THE LATEST FASHIONS.

As shown by Messrs. Rosenbaum & Co. at the Exposition.

Messrs. Rosenbaum & Co. have done themselves infinite credit by the selections they have made from their stock and placed a fine case in man-able at the Exposition. It is not necessary to locate it further, and every lady walking through the great show will be certain to see it. Its most attractive feature are the several styles they show in ladies' misses' and children's satin and silk, fur-lined and lined, and close observation of the embroideries and laces, trimmed ribbons in every variety and for every purpose, plushes, plumes, wings, flowers, fans, handkerchiefs, feathers and many styles of popular trimmings. All these goods are designed to show the latest fashion, and close observation of the goods in this case will be better than a fashion plate to any lady. Anything in the case which strikes the fancy of a lady visitor can be found in duplicate at Rosenbaum & Co.'s stores, Nos. 112, 114 and 116 Market street.

First Premium for Fencing.

J. R. Taylor & Co., Wire Works.

The Pennsylvania State Agricultural Fair have awarded Messrs. Taylor & Co. a silver medal and diploma for their wire and other fencing.

A few samples of product are noticed around the exhibit; at their manufactory, No. 35 Market street, Pittsburgh, can be seen an extensive line of these goods in a great variety of patterns, suitable for being placed around dwellings, gardens, cemetery lots and other enclosures; also ornamental finishing for roofs and other structures. They make large wire signs for stretching over the roofs of houses, and all kinds of malleable iron work. Besides this, they produce their make foundry and other brushes, sieves and fly screens, bird cages, stands for plants, fenders, hanging baskets, sponge baskets, wire fencing and other things, comprising a list of anything and everything made from wire.

Handsome and Useful Furniture.

Among the furniture exhibits in the south gallery that of Meyer, Arnold & Co., Limited, of 123 Fourth Avenue, can easily be distinguished by the elegant scarlet figured plush Parlor Set that challenges the general attention. Two handsome complete chamber sets are also included in the exhibit. For solid comfort and convenience, the adjustable rocking chair that can be secured at any angle, with a patent foot rest in connection. It is one of the costliest articles of its kind that has been seen for a long time. A folding bed lounge that hides its real use most completely when closed up, is covered in light duplicate in a house before the end of the Exposition.

JOSEPH HORNE & CO.

A Grand Display of Fine Goods from their Retail Stores.

Every visitor to the Exposition will be curious to know where that temporary scaffolding fell on Monday. The easiest way to find it is to inquire for the stand of Joseph Horne & Co., and when there the attendant will show the spot although all traces have been removed. The visitor will not long at that, for their attention will be once drawn to the octagon walnut case which contains a slight intimation of the vast stocks of imported and domestic dress goods that can be found at their stores 197, 199, 201 and 203 Penn Avenue. In this case is a neatly arranged display of black and colored wiles, bright and colored satins, broads, plush, brocade velvets in every shade, suit velvets, fine dress goods millinery, real laces and embroideries, kid gloves and handkerchiefs in every conceivable variety and material. What will attract ladies most are the seal skui sacsques and dolmans, and if these beyond the range of their purse they will cast their eyes upon the cloaks and wraps of lesser cost. When these have been inspected their attention will be riveted upon the suits, hoisery, underwear, lace curtains and house-keeping linens.—There is also fine samples of men's furnishing goods. Nothing in their exhibit is placed there for sale, but its admirers can find duplicates of the goods at the store on Penn Avenue, Library Hall Building, where all visitors to the Exposition are welcome to inspect the four immense stores and their contents.

First Premium Awarded to Stevens' Adjustable Chair.

How could it be otherwise? This chair is the most sensible and available thing ever offered to the public in the way of a chair. It is a chair of furniture in one, capable of over fifty changes of position to the owner. Mr. Stevens is located in the North Gallery, and his swinging sign cannot fail to attract the eye. His chairs have become a prime favorite wherever shown. Call and see them at the Exposition or at No. 3 Sixth street, Pittsburgh.

BARNES SAFE AND LOCK CO.

129 and 131 Third Avenue, Between Wood and Smithfield.

Among the most attractive and best-arranged exhibits at the Exposition is that of the Barnes Safe and Lock Co. This firm have on exhibition a number of the most superbly finished Safes, Time Locks, &c., ever gazed upon by an eager and appreciating public. The house was established in 1845 and have to-day a trade extending all over the Union. The name of Barnes is a sufficient guarantee of the superiority of the line of goods manufactured by them. Their works are located at Nos. 129 and 131 Third Avenue, between Wood and Smithfield; their building is a four story structure, the first floor of which is used as a blacksmith shop, the second as the burglar proof works, the third the fire proof department, while the fourth is occupied by the cabinet workers and ornamentalers. About 130 men are employed in the various departments and a vast amount of work is annually turned out. Vault doors, bank locks of every conceivable description can here be seen. The business of the firm is yearly growing in magnitude, in fact, the firm since the fire fiend, Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the oil can causing the great Chicago conflagration, where the superiority of these safes over others was so clearly demonstrated, have found it almost out of the question with the present capacity, and are now erecting another large and handsome building adjoining their already large house with a view of increasing their capacity.
