1 o'clock at the Court House. WILLIAMSON BARTLEY, Esq. of Penn

THE National Bank building is to be the Grand Jury, now in session.

An old friend encloses us another years' subscription and says: "please send CITIZEN another year-can't do without it."

A. L. CRAIG, Esq., late County Treasurer, we are pleased to learn, has been appointed to a position in the department of the Secretary of the Interior at Washington city. MR. HARVEY J. MITCHELL, late Cashier of the Harmony National Bank, this county, has been appointed to a position in the Internal Revenue office, under Collector Jackson, at Allegheny city.

THE Printer's Circular, of Philadelphia, a standard work with the profession, strongly endorses Mr. Ziegler of this county, for Speaker of the next House of Representatives at Harrisburg. We do not know the prospects of "Uncle Jacob," but if we judge by the number of favorable notices he is receiving, from all sides and parties, they ought to be pretty good. . .

Congress.

Congress convened on Monday noon last. President Arthur's Message was received and read. We have not had time to review it, but notice that he censures "political assessments." This is encouraging, coming from President Arthur, but with how much sincerity, we can only conjecture. He also, apparently, favors "Civil Service Reform," and, taken altogether, it looks as if the results of the late elections had made a good impression on the President.

Court.

Court, regular December term, con vened on Monday morning. The Grand Jury is the only jury summoned for this week, and it was duly charged by Judge McJunkin, who is presiding. and is now engaged on bills laid before it. Next week the criminal cases will be taken up. The most important case for trial will be that of the Swede Jansen, charged with the killing of John W. Fleming. A number of other criminal cases will also be tried.

When not engaged with the findings of the Grand Jury this week, the Court is hearing petitions, motions, etc. An Argument list has also been made out, the cases upon which it is expected will be argued during the week. Judges Weir and McCandless are at their posts upon the Bench.

Messrs. Waterman, Watkins & Co., who have been employed for the past year or more in gathering the materials for a history of our county, have about completed their labors. They had a large force of men employed on the book for over 13 months. Important portions have been submitted to com. netent committees and approved. A certificate as to the correctness of one of our townships will be seen in

The manuscript has now all been sent to Chicago for printing, and the book will be ready in a short time, notice of which will be given its patrons.

The gentlemen engaged on the history of our county left last week for Armstrong, Bedford, Somerset and other counties of Western Pennsylvania, of which they intend getting up histories. Mr. Matthews, the general historian of the company, is a gentleman well qualified for his task and made many friends while in this place. Mr. Gilbert, the artist of the company, is also highly commended for the accuracy of his representations of residences, etc. On the whole we believe the "History of Butler county" will give great satisfaction to the citizens of personally see that the remains of the the county. To the descendants of the earlier pioneers and settlers of the county it will be a book of special and peculiar interest.

Blaine's View.

"The defeat is not so signal as that of 1874, and like that, can be made to result in good to the party. The Democratic party suffered overwhelming defeat in 1840, but carried the election of 1844. The Republican party was practically beaten in several of the nost important Northern States in 1862, but Abraham Lincoln carried all except one or two in 1864. Victory may be achieved in 1884 by presenting as a candidate for the Presidency a man upon whom both factions can unite, who has the confidence of the country. To the accomplishment of that result his influence as a private citizen will be exerted. He believes that Republican success in 1884 is essential to the welfare of the country.

Must Stand Aside. The recent election shows the folly of trying to regain Republican ascendancy under the Stalwart leaders in Pennsylvania and New York, and James Hamilton, these leaders will be made to stand January 13th, 1881. aside. Give the Republican party a chance to be true to itself; to be liberal toward all honest differences of opinion; to be free from all tyranny of 9th, 1881. ring politicians; to be earnest in the promotion of sound principles of government, and to take its place in representing the best thought and highest aims of the people,—rermit these things to be, and the Republican June 24th, 1881. party will speedily assert its unity and its power.—Doylestown Intel., (Stallard, Stallard, 1882.—Washington wart.)

Dr. L. Ehrhart, Allegheny City, man much respected by his neighbors is so satisfactorily that we are in excellent and he has their sympathy as well as that of all who knew him.

"Margins" or "Options,"

The Rev. William McKibbin, of Pittsburgh, preached a Thanksgiving sermon last Thursday in the Second Presbyterian church of that city, in which he referred to the "greed for gain in some of its local aspects," and from which the following is an extract offered at sale to-morrow, Thursday, at that may be of local interest :

RAPID DEVELOPMENT. Such has been the immense develop-ment of the material resources of the township, was appointed Foreman of country through the multiplication of railroads, telegraphs, and the many ap-pliances of modern invention and disovery, that the American mind has een set on fire with the hope of making rapid accumulations of wealth, and to such extent does this prevail that the slower, safer and more morally invigorating methods, which to the end of time must constitute the basis of all true commercial prosperity, have fallen into disrepute, and in their place have come methods which will neither stand the test of prudence or morality. To facilitate this mad thirst for gold, and what gold will purchase, there has grown up a system of business devices called "margins" or "options" which under the forms of legitimate trade, make gambling a recognized and respectable branch of commercial life. Almost every line of legitimate business pursuit is encircled by this myriad armed devil fish, which threatens to suck all the life and principle out of husiness affairs.

Such are the proportions which has assumed, such the respectability which it has attained, that it walks with unabashed countenance in the highest circles of society, and pollutes even the communion table with its presence. As a dark and threatening cloud it canopies all life, and unless dis-sipated by the force of public sentiment and penal law, carries in its bosom the destruction of the best elements of our

Without entering into a detailed de cription of these methods, let me say first that any business transaction in which there is no actual transfer of the commodity bought and sold is an ille ritimate and demoralizing one; second-y, that where every dollar gained in a transaction by one party is lost by some other, and where such transactions are entered into with such an understanding, it is as purely a gambling transaction as the transfer of moneys over the gaming table; thirdly, that when such transactions are made upon the rise and fall in the price of an article, the fluctuation in which price is artificially produced, such transaction way of the catch spring at the giving way of the catch spring at tions have the worst features of gaming, and in addition thereto unsettle values, lestroy commercial credit, and pave the way for financial panies which affect all classes of the community; and I further say that the broker who buys and sells on margins is no better than he keeper of a gambling saloon, who provides the means for gambling by others, and that he is a public enemy, and ought to be treated as such. And I say further still that banking institutions which knowingly and of pur-pose furnish the means for this nefarious warfare upon the best interests of society, are, in the sight of God, and ought to be in sight of men, sharers in ts guilt and its profits alike. CLASSED WITH GAMBLERS. And with regard to those who by artificial and illegitimate means, "bull" or "bear" the prices of a commodity with a view to win the money of other dealers, I say that they are to be class-The History of Butler County. windles his opponent.

> Another Cremation. On Saturday last, Mr. W. H. Devore, undertaker of Pittsburgh, visited Washington, and made arrange with Messrs. Harding and LeMoyne, for the cremation of the body of Dr. L. Ehrhart, who died in Allegheny city, on the 24th instant. The Doctor car to this country shortly after the failure of the Revolution of '48 in Germany, and opened an office for the practice of medicine in Allegheny City some time in the winter of 1849. He gained a large reputation as a Physician, and no man stood higher for personal in-

Before Dr. Le Moyne put the cremain favor of that system of disposing of the dead bodies of human beings. He afterwards became an enthusiastic adsistent man, maintained that a physician should put into practice that deceased husband or wife should be burned in Dr. LeMoyne's furnace. This contract was further fortified by a clause in Dr. Ebrhact's will, and it is understood that his widow has indicated her desire to have her body treated in a similar manner when she dies.

The fires were lighted in the crematory on Sunday, and on Monday morning his remains arrived by rail and were at once taken to the building on the hill and placed in the furnace. This makes the fifteenth body cremated in the furnace built by the late Dr. Le Moyne, as follows:

FRAYNE'S FATAL SHOT.

Tragic Ending of the Play of A Startling Scene on the Stage-

The Apple and Mirror of Death. CINCINNATI, Nov. 30 .- This afternoon, at the Coliseum, a new cosy little theatre over the Rhine, opened only a fortnight ago, Frank Frayne and company were playing "Si Slocum." The theatre was full. All the sitting and standing room was taken and the audience became wonderfully demonstrative. The play had proceeded to the end of the fourth act. Frayne personated Si Slocum and Miss Annie Von Behren took the role of Ruth Slo-Slocum to shoot an apple off his wife's head, and remarked, "it must be with the backward shot." The arrange-ments were made, the rifle cracked and Ruth Slocum fell to the floor, without uttering an audible sound. Frayne turned almost with the flash of his gun and rushed toward the prostrate girl, and, swooning, fell by her side, with an arm across her body. The curtain dropped, and the audience, who saw no blood, heard no cry and therefore imagined it was a new turn in the play, were not aware of the situation.

DYING WITHOUT A MOAN. Behind the scenes the girl was taken to her room and Frayne was carried to his. Surgical aid was called in, but in fifteen minutes the girl was dead. She never uttered a word or a moan between the time she was struck and when life went out. Her body still lies at the theatre. Frayne's wife, who used to do this act, is dead, and Miss Von Behren has filled the part for two seasons. The ball took effect on the hair-line, a couple of inches above the left eye and near the middle of the forehead. The rifle used was a breech loader, Stevens' make, of twenty-two calibre. It had been in use six years. Just as Frayne pulled the trigger he felt the catch on the snap, which holds the barrel down at the breach, give way. The cartridge was blown partly or wholly out, and the flame of the powder from the breach burned Frayne's shirt collar. The distance over which he shot was thirty feet. On the girls head was a hat on which the apple was placed. The bottom of the apple was four inches above the head. Fravne says it was an entirely safe shot for Fravne himself was immediately rested. At the police station, where he was locked up, the question was put by the officer: "What charge shall we enter against him?" He spoke up: "Oh. put it as bad as you please—make it the worst you can." He is broken down with uncontrolable grief, and desires to be kept in the statio house. All who have seen him pity him. After the tragedy the scene be-hind the curtains at the little theatre baffled description. The paleness of death was pictured on every face, but the grief on the stage was silent. Frayne himself, in the tenderest tones of which he was master, besought the girl to speak, but she lay unconscious to the last, only now and then gasping The performers rushed to their rooms after the last scene of all and gave vent to uncontrolable grief. There is a universal disposition to condemn the wno loads his dice, packs his practice of using dangerous shooting of that though the marksman may be de seaded upon for accuracy, which many questions, this case shows that the gun may not always be reliable. Frayne was engaged to marry Miss Van Behren, who was a Brooklyn, N. Y., girl. He was released to-night on $3,000 bail. He says he will never fire another shot.

The performance in which Frank I. Frayne shot Miss Von Behren last night in Cincinnati was known as the mirror-shot. It has been performed for success. As years by Frayne with He was in his 75th year when he died. was suspended a mirror about sixteen tion theories into practice in this country Dr. Ehrhart believed in an argued way as to reflect the entire stage. inches long and a foot wide, in such a Frayne stationed himself before this mirror with his back to the woman, upon whose head he had placed an apafterwards became an enthusiastic ad-vocate of the practice, and, as a con-ple or some other small object. Accident. Mr. Isaac Moore of Muddycreek township, this county, met with a very Ohio, or other laws that will accomsevere accident in Portersville on the 20th Nov. ult. He was in the village March 9th, 1880.

Charles G. Poetz, New York, May at the south end of the same, for home in a buggy, driving a rather spiritcd young horse. At the north end of village and when about opposite the Post Office, or Mr. Newton's, the horse ran away and Mr. Moore was violently thrown from the buggy to the ground, striking upon his face and receiving severe cuts and bruises. Being an elderly man, now 77 years of age, the shock and injuries were so great that fears were entertained for Miss Frank M. D. Kendall, Madi- a while that he could not recover; but we are glad to learn that he may survive them. DYNAMITE.

A Stove Blown to Pieces Near Elizabeth, Pa.—Two Per-sons Killed.

About a quarter of a mile below the coal mines of Gumbert and Huey, on the Monongahela river, is the hor Hale Forsythe, a miner employed in the works of the above mentioned firm. Here Forsythe has lived for some time with his wife and three children. About two weeks ago some miners employed at Walton's mines came to visit Forsythe, and were at his house a day or two. During their stay they proposed to Forsythe that they should go fishing. They did not care about the old, slow method of capturing one fish cum, "Si Slocum's" wife. Just at a time, with hook and line, but told this point, The Villian required Si Forsythe they knew of a much better plan, which was, to use dynamite. The miners had some of the explosive material with them, and they went to the river and used it quite successfully, killing about five hundred pounds of fish. The visiting miners went home and Forsythe determined to do some fishing on his own account with the new bait. On Friday morning he went to the quarry of Mr. Fleming, on the Youghiogheny river, and asked if he could spare some dynamite. Flem-ing wanted to know what it was to be used for and Forsythe said he wanted to blast some rocks near his house. Fleming then agreed to let Forsythe have four sticks of dynamite, weigh ing in all about a pound. He then told him that the stuff was frozen and was useless in that condi-tion. He explained to Forsythe that if the sticks of dynamite were placed near a fire they would thaw out acd be ready for use. About half-past five o'clock he went home and told his famly about the dynamite, but none of them were alarmed, as they, too, were ignorant of its qualities. Forsythe took the sticks of dynamite from his pocket and placed them in the oven of the kitchen stove. He then went off to the coal works where he was a quarter of an hour later when he heard a loud report, and in a few minutes he was told that there had been an explosion at his house and all of his family had

After Forsythe left the house his vife and children sat down to supper at a table near the stove where dynamite was. While the children were laughing about some joke, there was a frightful noise, the stove was blown into tiny fragments, the entire end of the house, which is a two-story frame building, was wrecked, and the mother and her little ones were hurled in different directions and were cut by flying pieces of iron and glass, or violently thrown against the wall. Mrs. Forsythe was cut and gashed in a most frightful manner. She had been sitting close to the stove and the pieces of iron struck her in over thirty places giving her the appearance of a person who had been

RIDDLED WITH BUCKSHOT. She cannot possibly recover. Char ley Forsythe, the youngest of the children and about five years old, was terribly bruised and cut, and died not long after the accident occurred. Robert Forsythe, seven years old, was cut about the head and body. His inju-ries are serious, but he will not die. Wille, the oldest of the boys, escaped with slight cuts on his feet. Poor Forsythe is almost crazy about the affair, and constantly exclaims that he is to blame for the disaster. He wanted to commit suicide, but was prevent ed. The man in reality does not seem to have known what was liable to happen, and of course could not be blamed. Mrs. Forsythe was a daughter of Mr Huey, one of the firm for whom Forsythe worked. The coroner has been notified of the boys death. Later information from the scene the accident is to the effect that the oldest boy, aged eight years, had just arisen to get a drink, and was not more than two feet from the stove and facing it when the accident occurred. The mother was seated with her back toward the stove and the two younger boys by her side. The boy near the stove received the full force of the exyears by Frayne with success 4s plosion, which was terrific. The boy ordinarily practiced, the woman was standing near the stove was thrown a standing near the stove was thrown a distance of twenty feet and was found the wings, and Frayne stood on the in a cave in the yard. He was horring opposite side, as far away from her as the wings would permit. From an iron frame, six feet and a half high, the occurrence. The entire portion of his body was opened as though the flesh had been cut away with a knife exposing the entrails. Both arms were twisted from their sockets, and one leg was almost severed at the knee Forsythe was in a swoon for several hours after the accident.

Want Stricter Marriage Laws The New Castle district conference of ministers of the M. E. church was held at Wilmington last week and among other topics discussed the laity of marriage laws of this State. On this subject the conference adopted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The present marriage laws of the State of Pennsylvania are inefficient in preventing clandestin marriages, and securing an accurate ecord of marriages, and WHEREAS, The ministry are liable to become the victims of deception and fraud in solemnizing matrimony, and of prosecution by malicious persons, there Resolved, That we, the members o the New Castle district conference petition the Legislature of this State to enact marriage laws similar to those of plish the same end. That old established remedy, Downs Elixer, still more than holds its own in the public estimation, despite sharp and active competition. It is a "home remedy," and in this locality needs no words of praise from us, so well and favorably known is it. It is the standard remedy for coughs, colds and all throat troubles, with great numbers of our people, and their continued use and unsolicited recommendation of it speaks volumes in its favor .- Bur lington, Vt., Free Press, Jan. 26, 1882

Quarreling over a Turkey. READING, November 28.

A distressing affair occurred to-day between two farmers near the Mount enn furnaces, in Cumru township, bout four miles from here. John P Schwartz and A. M. Fulton are brother-in-law and occupy adjoining farms. Heretofore the most amicable relations have existed between the members of the two families. This morning the turkeys on the two farms flocked together. Fulton permitted Schwartz to take seven away, which he said was one more than he was entitled to. Schwartz returned to claim a gobbler which he said belonged to him, when, it is alleged, Fulton procured his gun and threatened to shoot Schwartz if he would take away the turkey. Hot words followed and during the quar-rel Fulton, it is said, struck Schwartz with the butt end of the gun on the temple, felling him. The physician says that the injury is a serious one and inflammation of the brain may set in and terminate fatally.—Philadel-

The Lambs Are Sheared! The work of shearing the lambs in grain, oil and stocks, having been completed, the shearing gambiers are allowing things to quiet down again.

It is now announced that the oil panic is over; that the stock panic is over; that the railway war is over; hat the iron and steel establishments have decided to go on in about the old CATARR H Elys' CreamBaln way, and the lambs have been given a breathing spell for repairs, preparatory to the next shearing.

When the lambs shall have recovered and gather enough wool to make their shearing worth the effort again, the boss gamblers will precipitate flurry in stocks or another flurry in oil or another flurry in railways or another flurry in bread or another flurry in meat, or several firstclass flurries in combination, and they will then shear the lambs again, Every man and woman who now buys stocks or oil or grain on margin, simply shuffles along into the shearing pen of the boss gamblers. All speculative values are inflated or depressed by the ruling gamblers of the day at their pleasure, and they inflate or de press prices just as it may best profit them. They live only to shear the lambs and the lambs live only to be sheared.—Phila. Times, Nov. 29.
