SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,

And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.

J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I went from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.

P. M. JANNEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable; the discovery of which was the result of many years' close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms, and the cure—viz:

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption, at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong astringents and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to long preclude the possibility of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

THE SNOW FLEA,

A Plague of Siberian Wastes Brought Here.

Philadelphia Record.]

When the lamented Poet-Traveler Bayard Taylor wrote of snowflakes as "the wild white bees of winter" it is doubtful that he imagined the pretty fancy contained a large amount of truth. Such, however, is the case, and from recent important discoveries made in this city by students and professors of one of the academies it has been shown that the beautiful snow of poetry bids fair to become a provoking reality. About three months ago there arrived in this city a box which, on being opened, apparently contained about a pint of snow. A note which accompanied it stated that the contents had been collected from the deck of the British steamship Glenchester, during a snow squall off the Banks of Newfoundland, while on a voyage from Hull to Montreal, and that the Captain, Edwin Manning, had been advised to forward the specimens to the Academy to be investigated. The matter was kept quiet, and only within the last day or so has the result become public, and as it is undoubtedly a matter of considerable importance we print it at length. The examination of the snowy-looking stuff under the microscope at once disclosed the fact that it was composed of thousands of very minute insects covered with silvery scales, and nearly all in a vigorous state of health. A searching investigation was at once set on foot, and strict secrecy enjoined on all concerned, and it was soon proved beyond a doubt that the insects were no less than the dreaded snow fleas of Eastern Siberia, which have never before been found in any part of the world more than a few hundred miles from that country. A well-known professor of natural history, who formed one of the investigating committee, said yesterday: "The first specimens we received were sent from Montreal by a shipmaster named Manning, who discovered them on his ship's deck on the Atlantic ocean, but we have found large quantities of them about the city during and after all the snow storms of this season. The snow-flea, or, to give its scientific name, the Bisti-Siberius, belongs to the family of Podurdæ, or "Spring-tails," and, although very much smaller than the ordinary black flea, closely resembles it in form and habit, one great difference being that while it is capable of leaping, it does so by means of tail, and not as the flea does—with its legs. The leap, in the case of the snow-flea, is performed by doubling the tail up under the abdomen and suddenly throwing it backward, which results in a forward movement of the body—in fact, it is from this characteristic that the name Spring-tail is derived. They are very tenacious of life, and breed very rapidly, especially when the weather is cold and dry, damp weather seeming to throw them into a stupor. In Eastern Siberia the people have to use every precaution against the pests, and many legends speak of them as the "snow of Hades," and say that the souls of the wicked are being tortured by being exposed to driving storms of them. "As yet," continued the Professor, "we have found but few cases in this city where people seem to have been sufferers from the insects, but should a spell of cold, dry weather set in it will unquestionably be the signal for much complaint. The insects, which can only by the closest scrunity be distinguished from fine snow, fasten to the clothes of pedestrians and cling there until the person enters a warm temperature, when they at once begin to bite in the most vicious manner, and, although the bite is not poisonous, it is for a few moments even more painful than that of the common flea. As a rule, the bites are mainly confined to the legs, for the snow-flea does not seem to possess the power to climb and wander over the body of its victim. One gentleman, a resident of Frankford, was a few days since much annoyed by them, and his little boy, who was bitten at the same time, suffered great pain for several hours. Correspondence with scientific men in Montreal and Boston show that the pests have also appeared at those points, and in the former city have created great discomfort. The strangest feature noticeable is the fact that it is never found more than eighteen inches above the ground, and servant girls have often been forced to wear rubber boots while sweeping off sidewalks in front of their master's residences. Professor James McArchfield, of this city, has prepared an exhaustive article on the subject, which will be read at the next meeting of the Academy.

—A lady dropped in on one of her neighbors for an afternoon call. "How is your daughter?" she inquired. "Splendid. She has just got back from the State Normal school, where she ciphered clear through ambition to chemical fractures, and then she took up pottery and jobbery, and says she can speculate the internal calculations."

T. T. Spence, Millersville, Pa, says "After three years experience with Brown's Iron Bitters I take pleasure in recommending it."

—Outrageous stories are being circulated regarding the recently elected Senator Tabor, of Colorada. One is to the effect that he wears an elaborately embroidered velvet nightcap, and a nightshirt trimmed with the costliest point lace and ruffles. A lady who claims to have seen this rich night apparel hung outside his sleeping car berth says: "Why, I never wore such lace even on my dresses, to say nothing of my—that is I mean—Oh! it was too lovely for anything." But then his pile sizes up to $8,000,000, and doubtless he can afford the expense.

Ben Butler's Bridge.

How Massachusetts' New Governor Made the Most Narrow Escape of His Life.

The recent triumph of Ben Butler and the clever devices with which he neutralized the effects of the "splits" in his own ranks, says Derrick Dodd in the San Francisco Post, recalls an incident of the General's early career, and which is interesting in showing that even in his youth Ben displayed those strategic abilities which have since done so much for his military and political career.

It appears that young Butler was much enamored of a pretty girl who lived on a farm about six miles from that of the Butler family in the western part of Massachusetts. The country beauty was a coquette, however, and kept quite a train of admirers in suspense, each rival doing his best to gain the advantage of the others. At last matters were brought to a climax, and the damsel appointed a certain night when she would render her final decision as to which suitor she preferred.

It goes without saying that they were all better looking than Ben, but the latter determined to put the inside of his head against the outside of those of his opponents. The nearest way to the fair flirt's house, and the one taken by all her eager followers, was over a bridge formed by a single and somewhat slippery log placed across a deep brook in the rear of the house. Young Butler repaired to this bridge an hour earlier than the accustomed "courtin' time," carrying a pail of lard with which he carefully annointed the log by the mellow moonlight, backing himself across it astraddle.

As he afterwards sat with his sweetheart, waiting for the other suitors to appear, a loud splash came from the brook. Ben's game eye twinkled, and in his imagination he could see one of his gorgeously got up fellow candidates climbing up the opposite bank with his teeth chattering and heading for home across lots, but the conspirator looked as innocent as a cat in the dairy and said nothing.

Pretty soon there came another souse, and after while another. The beauty began to look at the clock and showed evidence of decided pique at the negligence of her other admirers—a circumstance Ben did not fail to turn to his own profit.

Presently he could faintly hear voices in the distance, and he knew that the last two swains were approaching together. Pretty soon came a tremendous double splash.

"Dear me," said the young lady, "how the fish are jumping to-night!"

The upshot of it was that when the future Governor rose to go the slighted beauty gave him her hand. Sealing the bargain with an old-fashioned husking bee kiss, Butler left his prize in such a state of exultation that he forget all about the greased log, and the first thing he knew both heels hit him in the back of his head and he took a header down below, just as his victims had done. He clibmed up the already well-clawed bank and made six miles to home, uttering Kerneyisms unfit for publication. He was taken with chills and fever as a result, and, when he got well, found his fiancee had eloped with a hired man. Butler tells this as the narrowest escape of his life, as he says the girl began eating onions the very next day after she became engaged. The General has been lucky ever since.

The King of Denmark is truly a paternal monarch. Finding that during the recent severe weather the royal foot guards were suffering greatly from Colds and Coughs, this good old gentleman ordered a supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for them and now the sentries are happy.

—A young lady had a narrow escape at a fire in New York a few nights since. About half of her back hair was burned. Fortunately she was not in the building at the time, having put on her other hair and left the house only half and hour before the fire broke out.

KAHOKA, MO., Feb. 9, 1880.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

WM. T. MCCLURE

The above is from a very reliable farmer, whose daughter was in poor health for seven or eight years, and could obtain no relief until she used Hop Bitters. She is now in as good health as any person in the country. We have a large sale, and they are making remarkable cures.

—An industrious caller in Washington society is the Chicese Minister, although every word of conversation has to be conducted by means of an interpreter. His secretary, who usually accompanies him as interpreter, is a bright young Chinaman of polished manners and good command of English, but now and then he gives his English words a Chinese setting with a comical effect. One day the two were taking afternoon tea at Miss Frelinghysen's. "One or two?" she asked as usual, poising a lump of sugar over the cup. Quoth the secretary, "No sugar, no cream, one spoon."

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India Missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English with full directions for preparing and using. Horrible Murder in Slipperyrock.

New Castle News.]

Thursday morning Mr. James Wigton, who resided near Hickory Mill, on Slipperyrock creek, just over the Butler county line, left his home and family to go to a neighboring farmhouse for the purpose of borrowing a horse. When he returned, a few hours later, he was shocked almost to insensibility to find that his wife and five children had all been cruelly murdered during his abscence. Even the youngest, a babe, had been brained with an axe. The neighbors were at once aroused, and the news of the affair spread in every direction. Suspicion fell upon a brutal fellow known as "Injun Sam," and the self-appointed Vigilantes soon discovered the demon hiding in the rocks, not a mile away from the scene of the tragedy. He was dragged to the place where his victims lay in their gore, and confessed his crime. In short time he went to eternity by the hempen route. All this happened in 1843, but we just heard it to-day.

Luke Emery, a cousin of Wigton, wrote a song about the murder in the year 1844. It was never published, and an old lady who used to sing it to frighten her babes to sleep, has written it out from memory, and we publish it below. Many persons yet residing in this and Butler counties will recall the terrible tragedy. Our present President, McJunkin, was a law student when the trial took place in Butler town:

i had a Cousand he lived Close by the knews i heard Caused me to sigh if you but listen i will relate a mournful story i will state his loving wife and Children dear was left at home as you shall hear one morning early in Clear daylight was murdered all o the cruel sight an indian savage came that way with full intent to kill and slay upon that helpless Mother fell O how she felt no one can tell

She strugled hard to save her life from her the monster got a knife and from his hand the knife she tore flew in the room and barred the door to take her life was his intent he burst the door and in he went no longer able to defend herself and Children from that fiend

i think i hear her heave a sigh and cry for help though none was nigh o pity to my Children show and then he struck the fatle blow

the strugle with the Mother o'er not satisfied but looked for more five Children dear and one the babe a sleeping in its Cradle laid their brains he scattered on the floor and left their bodies in a gore all inocence they knew no guile the babe he said looked up and smiled

the father he had went from home to get a horse to plow his corn expecting quickly to return his name ill give it is James Wigton but o the news when first he heard the story of that dreadfull deed his hands he rung his hair he tore his wife and Children was no more the news soon flew the neighbors Came so cruel sight none there had seen but soon they found who done the deed and after him they went with speed few ours past till him they Caught he gives his name Samuel Mo hawk they marChed him quiCkly to the ground where Wigtons family dead was found to Butler town he then was sent twelve Could not find him inoCent inverdiCt they were all agreed that he was guilty of the deed

the twenty seCond day of MarCh was set that he must meet his dread fate upon the sCaffold the rope he bore it was in the year eighteen hundred and forty four —Isn't it time for peach crop prophecies?

—It was a charming old law in Holland which condemned great criminals to be wholly deprived of salt so that in a short time the might become the prey to internal parasites.

—A soap mine has been discovered in California. The substance is a deposit of white earth, free from grit and impregnated with a small percentage of potash. It is easily sliced into bars, and, for cleaning purposes, is a fair substitute for manufactured soap.

—A blizzard story from the Northwest: A man went for a bucket of water, and spilled a little while returning to the house. He put one foot on the wet spot, and before he could take another step he was frozen to the ground. He had to leave his boot behind and hop to the house.

—A century since the Hawaiians were savages and canibals. Now there are over 300 telephone wires in use in the city of Honolulu, and the application of the telephone is made throughout the islands on the plantations. Some of the planters are now cutting their cane by night with the aid of electic light.

—There is a "cow tree" that grows in Venezuela that when tapped gives out a sap that is white, milky, and nutritious. It has several advantages over the native American cow. The milk of the tree contains more milk and less water, and the tree can't kick you clean across the barnyard and through a panel of a rail fence if you happen to stand on the wrong side when you tap it for milk.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—The false story told by a Denver boy, of having been robbed of a large amount of his employer's money, was subjected to the closest cross-examination without developing the slightest contradiction, and would have been believed, though in itself improbable, if at the last moment a written copy of it down to the minutest details, had not accidently been found in his desk. He then confessed that he had stoled the cash, after composing the tale and studying it for six months.

The Modern School Teacher.

It was Saturday night, and a teacher sat Alone her task pursuing;
She averaged this, and she averaged that,
Of all that her class was doing.
She reckoned percentage so many boys,
And so many girls are counted,
And marked all the tardy and absentees,
And to what all the abscence amounted.

Names and residence wrote in full,
Over many columns and pages;
Canadian, Teutonic, African, Celt,
And averaged all their ages.
The date of admission of every one,
And cases of flagellation;
And prepared a list of graduates
For the coming examination.

Her weary head sank low on her book,
And her weary heart still lower;
For some of her pupils had little brains,
And she could not furnish more.
She slept, she dreamed; it seemed she died,
And her spirit went to Hades,
And they met her there with question fair,
"State what the per cent. of your grade is?"

Ages had slowly rolled away, Leaving but partial traces;
And the teachers spirit walked one day
In the old familiar places.
A mound of fossilized school reports
Attracted her observation,
As high as the State House dome, and as wide
As Boston since annexation.

She came to the spot where they buried her bones,
And the ground was well built over;
But laborers digging threw up a skull,
One planted beneath the clover.
A disciple of Galen, wandering by,
Paused to look at the diggers;
And plucked the skull up, looked though the eye,
And saw it was lined with figures.

"Just as I thought," said the young M. D.—
"How easy it is to kill 'em!
Statistics ossified every fold
Of cerebrum and cerebellum."
"It's a great curiosity, sure," said Pat,
"By the bones you can tell the creature!"
"Oh, nothing strange," said the doctor; "that Was a nineteenth century teacher."

An Interesting Claim for Pension.

The Assistant Secretary of the Interior has been called upon to render a decision in a pension case claimed by the widow of a solder who became disabled while under guard during the war. Nine soldiers at Vicksburg, who had gone outside the lines to attend a dance, were arrested and placed in the guard house. From the dampness of the prison one contracted a disease which resulted in his death. His widow now claims a pension. Secretary Zach Chandler, when in office, decided that no pension should be given to a soldier disabled while under arrest. Mr. Joslyn is of the opinion that the soldier was on duty and therefore entitled to a pension, though he has not yet rendered a decision to that effect.
