Just received at Chas. R. Grieb's a complete line of Celluloid Collars and Cuffs.

Africa is now obviously in the woodpile of European politics. France, Portugal, Great Britain, Italy, and Belgium are all interested in the Dark Continent, with Germany and Austria not unwilling to take part in presencing terms upon what would be possessors of it. The French occupation of Porto Negro, in Congo, and the dispatch of Portuguese war vessels to Loanda, have just put a new phase on the African situation.

Jas. M. Denny, Esq., formerly County Surveyor of Butler county, but now practicing law in Colorado, is home on a visit.

If the lands of the Oil Exchange would turn their attention to grain and pork and give oil the shake, they would find it just now more exciting, and perhaps more profitable.

The lumps of the Oil Exchange danced to the tunes of a net-sphere, last Saturday and Sunday, but he couldn't make them dance as the Standard can.

A model of Al. Wilson's washing machine can be seen at Biehl's. He took the machine he had there on exhibition up to the Orphan's Home some days ago for trial, and they wouldn't let him away.

With the mercury down to the freezing point and the snow flying, last Monday, it seemed as though March were paying back her debts to April in accordance with the old weather saw.

We call the attention of any of our readers who are in want of a salaried situation, and who can fill the bill, to the advertisement in another column of R. G. Chase & Co., headed "Salem Wanted." Write to them for particulars.

They are having a small-pox scare at Har-risburg caused by several cases near the Capitol grounds. Neither of our representatives, however, are alarmed in the least, they have all had the small-pox twice and didn't die either time.

Eq. Walker in the case of the two Swedes for use of R. C. McAbay against the county gave judgment in favor of McAbay for the full amount of the Swedes' bill—$130.00 in one case and $22.00 in the other. The County Commissioners intend appealing to court.

The members of the Building and Loan Association of this town will meet in the Court room next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, when another effort will be made to agree upon measures looking toward the winding up of the Association. A full attendance is desired.

Theodore Tilton will lecture in the Court room to-night on the subject of "The World's Tomorrow." On account of services being held in several of the churches to-night, the lecturer will not commence till 8 o'clock. Reserved seats can be had at the Savings Bank, price 50 cents. Tickets 35 cents.

By the theory of the common law husband and wife are one in law and cannot sustain an action against each other or be witnesses for or against each other, except in cases of divorce and assault and battery and therefor the Petrolia woman whose husband made information against her for adultery, last week, was discharged by the Court. Her paramour, Deeter, still languishes in jail.

A charter was granted last Monday to the Ihmsen Glass Manufacturing Company, in spite of the objection of the Ihmsen Glass Company Limited, that the similarity of names would injure it. The stockholders are Dennis Ihmsen 5 shares, Thomas O. Ihmsen 6 shares, Herbert S. Ihmsen 12 shares, M. A. Ihmsen 21 shares, Mary A. Ihmsen and Ada J. Patton 2 shares each.

The Mercer Republicans says that Clyde L. Moore, grandson of J. C. Kelly, of Pine township, goes on ahead in point of living ancestors, of the youth recently mentioned in the Columbus City Courier. Clyde L. Moore is nearly two years old and has now living both parents, two grandfathers, two grandmothers, four great-grandfathers, four great-grandmothers, and one great-great-grandmother, a Mrs. Ray, now a resident of Butler county, this State. This beats Crawford county's wonderful record in the line of living ancestry.

Manufacturers and dealers who present claims to the Revenue Collector for rebate tax paid on tobacco, snuff, cigars and cigarettes on hand May 1, 1883, will be required when taking inventories of stock on that day to affix a label to each stamped package of tobacco or snuff of one pound or more in weight, to each box containing stamped packages of tobacco or snuff less than one pound in weight, to each stamped package of cigars, and to each box containing stamped packages of cigarettes. Blanks with which to make claim and labels will be furnished on application.

The new Foxburg bridge was opened last Monday morning at 10 o'clock. It was built by R. B. Ra. are now running over it. On Monday the P. & W. railroad announced that it is ready to receive freight for all points on the Pittsburgh, Bradford & Buffalo and the Tionesta Valley railroads and is the only line that can ship to way towns. The distance to Shef-field via this route is 15 miles shorter than via Oil City and 117 miles shorter than via Drifwood from Pittsburgh. The bridge was erected under the superintendence of Major W. C. Mobley, of the Pittsburgh & Western.

James Park, Jr., one of Pittsburgh's most prominent business men died at his home in Allegheny City, last Saturday morning. Mr. Park was the senior member of the firm of Park, Ross & Co., Park, Ross & Co., President of the Penn Cotton Mill, of Allegheny, largely interested in the Pittsburgh Steel Company, limited; a manager of McIntosh, Hemphill & Co., limited; a manager of the Sixth Suspension Bridge; Vice President of the Commercial Bank for Savings; an incorporator and director of the West Penn Hospital; a director of the Western University; Vice President of the American Iron and Steel Association, and for several years a director of the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company.

Representative Hatheroll, of Philadelphia, has introduced a bill providing for a piece of property made by or for any defendant in criminal case shall be tried by a jury and decided before any other issue. It found to have been insane at the time of the commission of the crime he shall be kept in the asylum for life. If the Court shall find that the defendant was not insane he shall be required to pay the costs of the insanity trial. A similar bill has been introduced into the California Legislature.

Rich and Juicy vs. Poor Meat.
Beef is very much like butter; unless it is good it is worthless, and if you can get a good inferior article, he is foolish not to take the best. It is well known that Mr. Shambler, whose market is opposite the residence of Col. J. M. Thompson, always keeps the finest quality of meats, and yet sells at the most reasonable figures. Mr. S. is a thorough judge of good meat and that is the secret of his success in business. Under no circumstance will he allow a pound of poor meat to go out of his shop. His meat is always rich, tender, juicy palatable and healthy. Give it a trial and you will use no other.

The Knights Templar of the country have been looking forward with interest to the triennial convocation which opens in San Francisco on August 22. But one commandery in this State is going as a body. This is St. Mary's, No. 36, of Philadelphia, which goes as escort to the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania.

They will run a special train, starting from Philadelphia on August 6, and taking in Denver, Colorado Springs and other points on the route. The train returning, leaves San Francisco August 29, but Sir Knights who accompany this party may return at pleasure, for feeling only their sleeping-car privileges. They have fixed the cost of their trip, including boarding, at $275.

COURT HOUSE NEWS.
CASES TRIED LAST WEEK.

Commonwealth vs. Jno Smith indicted for perjury—Jacob Wolford and R. S. Hindman prosecutors. Verdict of guilty in the manner and form as defendants stands indicted, but defendant recommended the mercy of the Court. Motion for new trial entertained on grounds of alleged errors and irregularities in the proceedings, and indictment, but not entertained on the grounds that verdict was not authorized by the evidence. April 21—defendant directed to enter into recognizance in $2,000 for his appearance on third Monday of May. Defendant and Wm. C. Smith, of Marion, Kentucky, recognized. Commonwealth vs. John Smith, perjury, same prosecutors. This was a trial, see where the costs would lie in the June term indictment—verdict not guilty and that John Smith pay one-third and prosecutors two-thirds of the costs.

R. Barrow for use of J. D. McJunkin vs. Mayberry and Warramite—April 20—verdict for plaintiff for $20.

J. H. Negley vs. P. W. R. R. Co.—verdict for plaintiff for $10.

R. Straw & Co. vs. Harriet Croup, April 21, 1883. The jury do find that the sewing machine, for the price of which the note sued on was given, was not bought by defendant for her own use and do therefore render a verdict for defendant.

All other cases on the list were either continued or settled.

NOTES.
Mrs. Eleanor Hager had a hearing before Judge Bredin last Saturday and it appearing that the information for adultery was made by the husband, J. H. Hager, against his wife, Mrs. Hager is discharged.

Hugh McAdams was appointed a committee over the person and estate of John C. Boyle, a lunatic.

Sad Accident at Gas Works.
A sad accident happened near the gas house in this town last Thursday evening, by which a boy named Boyle, son of the widow Boyle, of Springdale, was seriously, and sons of Jos. Manly, Jos. White and McCarthy badly burned. Exactly how the accident happened, or how the gas came to be ignited is not known, the boys do not know themselves and all think differently about it excepting the Boyle boy, who is too badly burned to be able to talk. The large pipe from the natural gas well to the gas house was and is lying above ground and the gas from the well passing through it, up to a point near the works, where it was allowed to escape through a smaller pipe also lying on the ground, while the new meter was being prepared for its reception. The noise made by the escaping gas of course attracted the attention of the boys, a large number of which had gathered around the escape pipe and were playing with the escaping gas—making it shoot in cans from between their hands, throw out stones that they would throw into the pipe, etc. At the moment of the accident the Boyle boy was sitting astride of the escape pipe with a can in his hands, another boy was standing near with a pipe or cigar in his mouth, and the White and McCarthy boys and others were also near the escaping gas. The gas exploded throwing the Boyle boy a distance of several feet and into some water near by and burning him severely about the face and head, and burning the Manny boy's face, and the White and McCarthy boys about the face and neck. Some people think the gas was ignited by the tin can held by the Boyle boy was thrown against a piece of large iron pipe lying near by and making a spark, others think of the boys must have struck a match, though nobody saw that done.

It is well known that a lighted cigar will ignite this natural gas though it will not always ignite common or manufactured gas. The boys at last accounts were all doing well, though at first, it was supposed that the Boyle boy would not recover.

A Terrible Explosion.
KITANNING, April 22.—A tremendous explosion of giant or Atlas powder took place at the depot of the Allegheny Valley Railroad yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock which shook the town and spread destruction on every hand for a distance of over 100 yards from the immediate scene of the disaster.

The trial of the second case, the jury in the possession of the paralytic, was continued and ran along smoothly until about 2 o'clock, when Judge White continuing left the bench, it is said in response to a message from the "hung jury," asking further instructions, and went to their room, called them into an adjoining room, and proceeded to instruct them. A moment later an attorney hastened into the court-room and informed A. M. Brown, Esq., that he had seen the Judge enter the room, which the "hung jury" occupied. "Is it possible?" said Mr. Brown, excitedly; "where's Marshall?" Glancing hastily about the room he spied his colleague standing at one of the windows. He made a brief statement to him and a moment later Mr. Marshall in a great hurry ran out of the Court room, and ascending the stairs two steps at a time, rushed toward the jury room. The ivy-stave at the door refused him admission, and seeing that Mr. Marshall did not heed him, threw himself against the door.

Finding it impossible to effect an entrance at that door Mr. Marshall hastened to another one leading to the room which he entered before the tip-stave could interfere. Mr. Marshall confronted Judge White and in excited tones demanded by what authority he invaded the jury room. The Judge, as was afterwards stated, replied that he was not talking to the jury about the case. This, however, it is alleged, did not pacify Mr. Marshall, who, quite indignant, expressed his feelings in most emphatic terms. The two returned to the room together. After the adjournment of court Mr. Marshall was interviewed, but he declined to say anything for publication except to express his disapproval of the action of Judge White, which he said was unequalled for and un-warranted. It was learned from another source that Mr. Marshall had said that he would use this circumstance to advantage if the case went against him, and might even go so far as to demand Judge White's removal from the bench.

The affair soon became known at the various lawyers' offices, and excited a great deal of comment.

TERRIBLE STORM.
Large Mississippi Towns Completely wiped out of Existence.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—Passengers on the Jackson Railroad, who learned some of the particulars of the cyclone which struck Beaufort and the Mississippi on August 6, and taking in Denver, Colorado Springs and other points on the route. The train returning, leaves San Francisco August 29, but Sir Knights who accompany this party may return at pleasure, for feeling only their sleeping-car privileges. They have fixed the cost of their trip, including boarding, at $275.

TERRIFIC PHENOMENA.
About 3:30 a rumbling sound like that of a heavy freight train in the distance was heard proceeding apparently from the northwest. Gradually this portentous noise increased in intensity. The people became alarmed at what seemed the subterranean moanings of an earthquake. The thunder roared in the sky like detonations of the heaviest artillery. The discharges of lightning were almost incessant and the course of the fluid through the atmosphere resembled streams of molten metal. Preceded and accompanied by this terrific phenomena the tornado burst upon the little town, sweeping away the buildings, trees and other objects in its path as if they were mere toys to be tossed about and played with by the pleasure of the storm. A few minutes the cyclone raged in the midst of a devoted town, then passed onward, sweeping to the northeast and leaving destruction as the dread souvenir of its visit to the town of Beaufort.

When the violence of the wind had somewhat subsided the people who had escaped destruction ventured forth to recover the less fortunate who were dwelling had been overthrown. The path of the tornado was about a quarter of a mile in width, embracing the entire business portion of the town. Along Main street scarcely a building was left standing in the course of the storm. Even solid brick structures were completely demolished. About 35 dwelling houses and 30 stores were blown down and the fragments scattered in all directions. As speedily as possible succor was brought to the wounded and to those who lay under the ruins. The Jackson Railroad Company's depot at Beaufort was destroyed and four box and flat cars standing on the track were blown away a mile or carried several hundred yards and broken into fragments.

The operatives employed at Mr. Edward Richardson's Wesson Mills resided there, and the storm did sad work among them. Over 70 people had their limbs broken and a dozen were killed outright. Those who escaped injury busied themselves in giving aid to the unfortunate, and trains were sent out from the other towns on the road with medical and other assistance. One man who left his house to take shelter under a tree was knocked almost to pieces by flying timber. There is not a spot on him that is not bruised, and he will probably die. An old man has both hands broken. One boy had the top of his head taken off. The town was almost totally demolished, and even the woods surrounding it were to a great extent swept away. It is a wonder that any of the inhabitants escaped.

Strange Scene in a Jury Room.
From Pittsburgh Dispatch of April 21.
During the progress of the second trial of Sylvester A. Cosgrave yesterday, on the charge of obtaining money from the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Bank under false pretense, a circumstance of a rather extraordinary nature occurred, which was only equalled by the remarkable conduct of a juror in divulging the nature of a sealed verdict. The juror in the first case, which was taken up for trial on Thursday, retired on Thursday afternoon, shortly before 3 o'clock. He returned at 4 o'clock and upon the reassembling of the court yesterday morning it was found they had not agreed upon a verdict.

The trial of the second case, the jury in the possession of the paralytic, was continued and ran along smoothly until about 2 o'clock, when Judge White continuing left the bench, it is said in response to a message from the "hung jury," asking further instructions, and went to their room, called them into an adjoining room, and proceeded to instruct them. A moment later an attorney hastened into the court-room and informed A. M. Brown, Esq., that he had seen the Judge enter the room, which the "hung jury" occupied. "Is it possible?" said Mr. Brown, excitedly; "where's Marshall?" Glancing hastily about the room he spied his colleague standing at one of the windows. He made a brief statement to him and a moment later Mr. Marshall in a great hurry ran out of the Court room, and ascending the stairs two steps at a time, rushed toward the jury room. The ivy-stave at the door refused him admission, and seeing that Mr. Marshall did not heed him, threw himself against the door.

Finding it impossible to effect an entrance at that door Mr. Marshall hastened to another one leading to the room which he entered before the tip-stave could interfere. Mr. Marshall confronted Judge White and in excited tones demanded by what authority he invaded the jury room. The Judge, as was afterwards stated, replied that he was not talking to the jury about the case. This, however, it is alleged, did not pacify Mr. Marshall, who, quite indignant, expressed his feelings in most emphatic terms. The two returned to the room together. Good Well in Oakland twp.
The Showalter Bros. and Jos. Hartman well on the Daniel Heck farm in Oakland twp., reached the sand last Saturday when the hole filled about 800 feet with oil. A second bit caused the well to flow, when drilling was discontinued and the boiler removed. Drilling was resumed Monday morning when the well flowed at intervals of eight to ten minutes, making twenty-three bbls. in 5 hours. Up to today the sand was not pierced, but the owners expect her to be good for at least 75 bbls. The sand in this locality averages about eighteen feet. The same parties are erecting another rig on same farm. Coe & Co., of Millerstown, are drilling a well about 500 feet east of this well on the Lowry farm. This well will be completed in a few days if no accidents happen Hoyt & Dennison are also drilling a well on the Kirk heirs' farm, about 1000 feet South of this well and got considerable oil in second sand. The Pipe Line boys completed a well on the Snow farm recently which is doing twenty bbls. The wells in this territory are small but are very durable. Two wells on the Fry farm, about a mile and a half east of these developments have been averaging 200 bbls. per month for some eight years.

The Phillips No. 2 on the Wallace farm, one mile east of Renfrew, is doing 90 bbls. No. 1 is still doing 10 bbls.; the two wells are doing about 100 bbls. per day.

The Phillips Bros. have but fifty acres of this Wallace farm leased, but have an option for the balance of the farm.

DRESSING FOR SPRING.
What to Put on and Where to Get it in Pittsburgh.

The subject of spring clothing is one that imperatively demands consideration now. Winter is undoubtedly gone for a few months, and the shabby suits that did very well when covered most of the time by a thick overcoat are sadly unharmonious with the bright sunlight and fresh atmosphere that has been vouchsafed to us for a week past. At the Boston Clothing House (the "Hub"), 95 Smithfield street, there are hundreds of suits to choose from, at all prices, in all textures, and in all styles, for business, evening or Sunday wear. A large corps of clerks, who understand their business are always at the service of customers at the Boston Clothing House, and he must be hard to please who cannot be suited at this favorite establishment.

Equity Suits Report.
In the case of Thornely Johnston and Mrs. Ramsey against William S. Boyd, General Eckley, of Ohio, as master, reports in favor of Wm. S. Boyd, overpaid the estate $2400.00. This, with the large equity suit brought by the Allen heirs (Mrs. Ramsey being one of them against Wm. S. Boyd, of Butler, Pa. and Major Allen, of Pittsburgh, over two years on hand, resulted in favor of Wm. S. Boyd, having overpaid the Allen heirs $3,000.00. The costs in both cases are very heavy, all of which will have to be paid by the Allen heirs. apr14

A Good Judge of Clothing Deceived.
A man stole a new spring overcoat the other day, and the property was recovered in rather a peculiar way. The thief, who was a good judge of fine clothing, offered to sell it to a pawnbroker for $18. The latter, seeing that it was worth the money, at once paid over the price and received the coat. Before the seller could get out of the store, however, the pawnbroker found a ticket on the garment, showing that it came from the Boston Clothing House, (the "Hub"), 95 Smithfield street, and that its price was only $10. The thief hastily handed back the $10, and departed, leaving the coat in the possession of the pawnbroker, who returned it to its legal owner. It may be stated that fine light-weight overcoats can be bought at the Boston Clothing House for $6, $7, $8, $9, $10, $12, $14, $15, $16 and $18.
