Spring Notes for the Vegetable Garden

The vegetable garden is a case of rapid evolution. All the old roots have been turned out as untenantable.

Among the very best of the new things are the improved Lima beans.

A second luxury in the same line is the Golden Wax bean, as a string bean.

The old cauliflower was a treacherous affair, full of disappointment; and as a consequence few farmers know anything about the vegetable.

Among the peas I have tried, the best early is Bliss American Wonder.

There are two rules in planting fruit trees, or for that matter any trees, that cannot be too carefully applied.

Among the corns we have as good as we can ask for or desire.

The vegetable garden is quite as good a place for hybridizing and securing novelties as is the flower garden.

It is getting to be a prime matter in planting apple trees to secure varieties that are hardy.

Those who plant pears should select those which do not need to be hurried to market.

A Modern Enoch Arden

Eight years ago George Eastwood, a young and handsome artist, came to Butler from New York.

No fruit is more profitable with proper care than the quince.

It is astonishing as well as painful to observe about the country how open young orchards have been planted and neglected until hopelessly diseased.

Any one wishing to plant a small yard of grapes for home use will not do amiss on the following list:

History in the Jones Family

"Pa, asked Willie Jones, as he was studying his history lesson, 'who was Helen of Troy?'"

"Ask your ma," said Mr. Jones, who was not up in classic lore.

"Helen of Troy," said Mrs. Jones, who was sewing a new heel on the baby's shoe.

"I was speaking paragonically," said Mrs. Jones.

"Ma, who was Marc Anthony?"

"An old colored man who lived with my pa. What does it say about him there?"

"It says his wife's name was Cleopatra."

"The very same! Old Cleo used to wash for us. It's strange how they come to be in that book."

"History repeats itself," murmured Mr. Jones, vaguely, while Willie looked at his ma with wonder and admiration.

"I learned it at school," said Mrs. Jones, with an oblique glance at Mr. Jones, who was listening as grave as a statue.

"But what made him famous," persisted Willie.

"Everything," answered Mrs. Jones, complacently; "he was one who said, 'Eat, thou brute,' when his horse wouldn't take its oats. He dressed in a sheet and pillow-case uniform, and when his enemies surrounded him he shouted 'Gimme liberty or gimme death,' and ran away."

"Daddy for a historian," remarked Willie, shutting up his book of history.

"But say, ma, how come you to know so much? Won't I lay over the other fellows to-morrow, though?"

"I learned it at school," said Mrs. Jones, with an oblique glance at Mr. Jones, who was listening as grave as a statue.

"I had superior advantages, and I paid attention and remembered what I heard."

A Large Turtle

Captain Augustus G. Hall and the crew of the schooner Annie L. Hall vouch for the following:

On March 30, while on the Grand Bank, in latitude 40° 10', longitude 33°, they discovered an immense live trunk turtle, which was at first thought to be a vessel bottom up.

The turtle was at least 40 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 50 feet from the apex of the back to the bottom of the under shell.
