Things will be different when the telegraph business is made part of the postal service. Government employees never strike. They wait till Congress meets and then ask for a raise.

Up in Oil City they tax a man $3 for a him and $5 for a her-dog, and if the man who owns the dog doesn't whack up within fifteen days after the year begins, "a suitable person" is empowered to bombard the beast and draw $1 for his trouble.

Quite a number of our citizens went up to Mr. Riddle's residence last Tuesday evening to see his Night-blooming Cereus in bloom, and were rewarded by a splendid show of flowers open. This Cereus is a species of cactus, which blooms but once a year, and then at night.

The rumor of one of the city dailies, referring to the oil market states the following well-known fact: "When it is up it is up my boys, and when it is down it is down my boys, it is neither up nor down."

A big bear and part of a man who said he was a Turk, passed our streets the other day. The bear danced at five cents a dance, and the Turk collected the money for him. A bare-headed and bare-footed woman with a child in a bag slung over her shoulder, and begging of all she met, followed the couple.

Rev. Dr. W. H. Hornblower, Professor of Theology and Homiletics of the Western Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church, died on Tuesday evening last week, at his residence in Allegheny City. He was 63 years of age and held high positions in the Church. Two months ago he was stricken with paralysis while preaching.

All watches over the value of $20 are taxed 50c. 75c. or $1 per year, according to value, and according to the Annual Statement there are none such in Butler, Clinton, Jay, Centre, Clearfield, Franklin, Lancaster, Marion, Mercer, Washington and Worth townships, nor in Staunburg borough. The owner of a watch puts his own value on it.

An important question is now before the Franklin county court for decision. Some years ago voters were appealed to vote a certain bridge, and the county commissioners reported in favor of the bridge and the grand jury concurred, but the county commissioners refused to build it. The parties interested in its construction have petitioned the court to issue a mandamus to compel the commissioners to do the work.

Mark Twain's latest book is entitled "Life on the Mississippi." The book reviewer of the New York Tribune thinks that his sketches are highly entertaining and, as for repetition, compares Mark to the penitent in the old Irish song, who said: "I want to confess me to Father O'Flannigan. Would him me tale, made an end, and began agin."

The Tribune man does not mind but ridicule the work, and yet we notice that an agent for it in a neighboring county embodies part of this review in his advertisement of the book.

A number of the merchants of Oil City were taken in and done for by an advertising man of Sells Brothers' circus. He told them he had a contract with the Derwick for printing 30,000 programmes to be distributed on circus day. He was a moral man and would not advertise saloons or hotels, and the merchants who gave their orders paid their money in advance. When circus day came around neither the programmes nor man were to be seen. Hereafter those merchants will advertise in newspapers.

A mathematical gentleman of Franklin, Pa., calls attention to the alarming waste that has been going on for ages in the matter of finger-nails and toe-nails, and gives the following figures: A person's nails grow by actual measurement 1/2 of an inch a week, or 6 1/2 inches per annum. The twenty nails of the hands and feet thus yield a yearly growth of 130 inches, or about 11 feet, weighing 1/2 of a pound. In a population of 30,000,000 (which our country is likely to have by the time the suggestions herein are utilized) this would be 30,000,000 pounds per year. In three generations this would give us 3,000,000,000 pounds or 1,500,000 tons. Now one ton of this firm, tough, translucent material will pave a mile of street, transmittal material will pave a mile of street, 2,000 yards, that we are selling at 45 cents per yard. If you will be using Carpets in six months, it will pay you to take advantage of this sale, as the goods will move lively at the prices, at RITTER & RALSTON'S.

The strike of the telegraph operators of the country did not take place until Thursday noon of last week, when some 8,000 operators left their instruments. At twenty minutes to noon, by local time, or noon of Washington time of that day, the operator here quit work and the members of the Oil Exchange left their room, as no further market quotations were to be had. The managers of the different companies at the principal business centers are making every effort to secure operators to take the places of the strikers, and whether or not the strike will be a success, and the companies accede to the demands of the strikers or compromise with them remains to be seen.

Eq. John Smith, of Cherry township, was discharged from jail last Saturday as per order of Supreme Court, upon giving bail in $5,000. Messrs. Wm. G. Smith, Charles Steeger, George Cook, Mattie McGreggor and Silas Christy went his surety. On Monday of last week, Messrs. Reed and Sullivan, two of Mr. Smith's attorneys, presented his application for a special attorney to Judge Trunkay, at Franklin, who took their papers and presented them to the members of the Supreme Court at their meeting at Bedford on Thursday, when the writ was allowed to issue and the bail fixed at $5,000. No time has been fixed for the hearing of the case, but it will probably be heard at the next term for this county.

They had a new kind of strike in New York last Monday. The proprietors of several of the largest cigar factories in the city locked their doors and over ten thousand persons, more than all the telegraph strikers in the country, are out of employment. In the city there are two cigar-makers' unions—the International Union and the Progressive Union. The leaders of these two bodies had long been at war, and a few days ago, on account of a trifling dispute in one factory, the Progressive Union men had arbitrarily demanded that the International Union men should be discharged. This the firm refused. The Progressive Union men would not return to work until the International Union men were discharged. The United Cigar Manufacturers' Association then intervened and the Progressive Union men returned by Wednesday they would begin a lockout, which they did.

Last Thursday morning a son of Geo. Bollman, a farmer living between the Butler park and Pine creek, in Shaler township, Allegheny county, noticed a man sitting with his back against a rye stack in one of his father's fields. Thinking it was a drunken man sleeping off his intoxication Bollman paid no other attention to the matter. At noon the man had not changed his position, and Mr. Bollman went out to investigate. He found the man dead, with a bullet hole in his right temple. In his right hand he clutched a revolver with one chamber discharged. Coroner Jones was notified and held an inquest on the body. The body was identified as that of B. Kline. The position of the deceased and the character of the wound pointed to deliberate suicide, and there being no testimony to contradict this theory, a verdict of death by suicide was pronounced by the jury. Kline was formerly a liquor dealer in the Pittsburgh Diamond, but of late has been traveling through the country buying hides and tallow.

The Grand Recorder of the A. O. U. W. for this State has favored us with a copy of his report for the year ending May 31st last, from which we take the following notes. The General Fund receipts for the year amounted to $7,035.25, and the Beneficiary Collection to $140,675. The Beneficiary disbursements amounted to $132,026, of which sum the heirs of Samuel R. Dieffenbacher of the Butler Lodge, received $2,000, heirs of John C. Wigton, of Slipperyrock Lodge $2,000, and heirs of Geo. A. McBride of Butler Lodge, $2,000. The Grand Recorder also reports that $2,000, the beneficiary to the heirs of John McClure, of the Resolute Lodge, of Prospect, has not yet been paid. The order has lodges in this county at Petrola, Prospect, Butler, Karns City, Baldwin, or Fairview, Slipperyrock or Centreville, Bruin or Martinsburg, Centre or Sandy Point, and Evans City.

The Late Storm in Butler County

A correspondent of the Gazette, writing from Freeport, last Wednesday, says: The storm of last week was much more destructive in Butler county than has been reported. Wind destroyed timber by the acre and fell in large stacks, covering the earth to the depth of several inches, literally destroying all vegetation. The crops are totally ruined, large fields of old and new sown wheat and corn fields are all battered down and cut fields are a blackburn. Many fruit trees are directed of their leaves and fruit, while in some instances the bark was knocked loose from the branches. The farmers report the heaviest loss live in Clinton township. Among the heaviest losers are J. S. Love, John Norris, J. H. Love and J. Cunningham. Their crops are totally destroyed and great damage to their timber and houses and fences done.

At Pughtown, Absalom Monks, John Jack and Arch Montgomery's losses are very heavy. George Mizelant reports his loss at $1,000. The hail broke fifty panes of glass out of his residence and stripped his trees of all their fruit, and literally destroyed all his crops and garden. Ab. Monks' residence and J. H. Love's had no glass left in them on the north-west side of the house. The heavy hail came through his large timber, mowing a swath through it as a reaper through a grain field, and leaving the trees and crops all laid by and lay heaped up in its track.

Southeastward toward Larden Mills the farms of Philip Snyder, Squire Harvey and several others were badly damaged. Mr. Harvey said the stock in the fields were pelted and heaped with the hail, and that the cattle and sheep could not find shelter anywhere, and some smaller stock were killed.

The Ekas did a large amount of poultry killed by hail.

The width of the storm was over a mile and has destroyed nearly everything in its course for several miles in length. The hail was so thick and in such a large quantity that much stock was found and gathered two and a-half days after its falling.

Neighborhood News.

The Commissioners of Mercer county last week removed a number of their insane inmates from Dixon to Mercer County Alms House, which is just finished. As soon as an order can be obtained from Court they will also remove those at the Warren Asylum.

Miss Annie Faith, the postmistress in Indiana county, who was charged with purloining packages, sent thro' the mails, was tried in the United States Court last week, at Pittsburgh. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, but the court set it aside, claiming that in the absence of important witnesses there was insufficient evidence to convict. The case will be tried again.

A party of lightning-rod men are now on their travels. Farmers and others must look out for such scoundrels. We see it stated that within the last two weeks, in the vicinity of Wrenburg, Green county, farmers have been swindled out of about $1,000. The swindlers got the farmers to sign peculiar contracts which were alleged to be but for a few dollars, but on closer examination were found to range from $150 to $500. The swindlers drove flashy turnouts.

Oscar Richey, of Plum township, Venango county, is wanted. He met Miss Emma Burns as she was passing along the highway leading to the residence of Mr. Grove, where the young lady resides, last Wednesday, and it being dark she accepted his offer to escort her home. After going a short distance, he made an indecent proposal which Miss Burns indignantly rejected. He then threw her down, but she succeeded in regaining her feet and escaped to her home, when she fainted and before she became conscious or could explain what had happened, Richey escaped and is still at large. Miss Burns was not seriously injured, but her clothes were torn into rags. Several years ago this same Oscar Richey committed a crime for which he was compelled to go west to escape punishment, and while there married a young lady whom he deserted after one child had been born to her. He is a son of Squire Richey, of Sullivan, and is considered a worthless character.

Had he been caught on Wednesday last he would have been roughly handled by the people of the community. Officers are looking for him.

While traveling in New York lately E. K. Sackett, an attorney of the Erie bar, was accosted by two strangers who requested him to surrender without any fuss or have his brains blown out. They proved to be detectives in search of a California bank defaulter. Thinking he was being gulled the lawyer punched one head and was going for the other when he was overpowered and strongly manacled. The detectives compared his anatomy with their description list and marched him off to the station. On the way he gave his name and address, but it elicited only winks from his captors. He persuaded them to call at Dun's Mercantile Agency, of which he is attorney, in the City. They knew that a lawyer Sackett was at attorney there, but he did not know him personally. Sackett was incarcerated and it was several hours before the mistake was discovered.

It is said that Hattie Hutchinson, of Rockdale township, has long been wooed by George Glover, of Bloomfield, Crawford county. Finally he persuaded her to go on an excursion with him to Cleveland, Ohio, and arriving at the Forest City, he neatly popped the question. She refused him, whereupon he drew a revolver, threatening to kill both her and himself, and she yielded. The gardian knot was tied and the couple returned home the same day. The bride went immediately to her father's house and explained the case, and now seeks for a divorce.

An error has been made in stating that the full month of December has been taken off the year. Such a bill passed the House, but the Senate added fifteen days more, making the season extend to the 15th of December. This is not as good as the House bill, but is better than no change. There ought to be a law restricting the killing of deer to every other year. This would be a means of saving the lives of both deer and men, for the hunters have become so thick in the hunting grounds that their trusty rifles have been thinning out their own ranks.

Trade Dollars.

The scheme of depreciating the Value of Trade Dollars to 85 cents is a money making one, and the loss will naturally fall on the working men.—The Trade Dollar is worth more intrinsically than the Bland Dollar and issued by the same authority; the government must certainly redeem them; believing that it will, we take them at par. RITTER & RALSTON'S.

Do Not throw away your Trade Dollars for eighty-five cents when you can pass them at par, at RITTER & RALSTON'S.

General Tom Thomb, the famous dwarf, died at his residence in Middleboro, Mass., a few days since, of apoplexy. His name was Charles Heywood Stratton, and he was born in Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 4, 1838. At the age of 16 he entered the service of P. T. Barnum, and ever since has been before the public. He leaves a widow, also a dwarf, who has been on the stage with him since their marriage in 1863.

General News Items.

A Squire up at St. Clair, Michigan, after listening to the arguments of a couple of country lawyers for a couple of hours, charged the jury as follows: "Gentlemen in this case the counsel on both sides are unentitled, the witnesses on both sides are incredible, and the plaintiff and defendant are both such bad characters that to me it is indifferent as to which way you give your verdict."

Villages and farm buildings knocked to pieces and filling the air with flying shingles and clapboards; church steeples taking flight on the wings of a tornado; deluges of rain turning dusty brooks into roaring torrents before which bridges and culverts go down like card houses; thunder clouds sending their bolts right and left into trees, barns, houses, and camps, meeting, regardless of consequences, the British iron-clad bombardment some poor beegar of a foreign town; cellars flooded, grain fields washed out—such are among the storm calamities of which we hear now almost every day.

Postmaster-General Gresham has done a good thing in excluding the circulars and letters of the Louisiana State Lottery from the mails. Mr. Key took this step under the administration of President Hayes, but the operation of his order was suspended because the lottery undertook to test the legal question. But instead of pressing the matter to an issue it courted delay as the best way to secure immunity. The Department now retraces a false step by compelling the lottery to ascertain its rights under the law. We shall be very much disappointed if the courts decide against Gresham's decision. Upon principle of common law and of public policy, the lottery has no rights in the matter.

That any State of the Union should continue a legal sanction to an institution constructed to promote gambling, and should be willing to share in its shameful profits, is sufficiently humiliating. But Louisiana is within her rights in so doing, so long as she confines the mischief to her own people. By the use of the national mails the lottery draws its spoils from every quarter of the country, and the State levies revenue upon the tools of every Commonwealth in the Union. The time has come to draw the cordon sanitaire around Louisiana in this matter, for the sake of the colored people of the adjacent States, if for no other reason. They are especially victims to the temptation which this legalized iniquity spreads before the unwary.
