A QUEEN OF THE STAGE.

"Her Second Love," and the Important Secret She Reveals for the Benefit of Women.

(New York World.)

Several years ago the American public were aroused by the enter up the stage of a little lady who had been previously but little announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for public favor and had no instrumentalities, aside from her own talents to cause recognition. In spite of this fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public which she has continued to hold ever since, when it was announced, therefore, that Miss Maud Granger would star the coming season in the play "Her Second Love," written by Mr. John A. Stevens, it was only natural that unusual interest should be manifested not only in theatrical circles, but in other branches of the community. This was specially the case, as it was known that Miss Granger had, for the past year been in exceedingly delicate health, and the determination to star in a strong emotional play was the more surprising. One of the staff of this paper was accordingly deputized to see the popular lady and verify the rumor or announce its incorrectness.

Miss Granger's countenance is familiar to nearly every one in the United States. It is a face one seen never to be forgotten. Features remarkable in their outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indicative of the greatest soul power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emotional nature. She possesses within herself the elements of feeling without which no emotion can be conveyed to an audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated.

"Is it true Miss Granger that you contemplate a starring tour the coming season?"

"Yes, indeed. My season begins in Chicago on the 16th of July. From there I go to San Francisco and then play the remainder of the season through the eastern and western states."

"Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"

A ringing laugh was the first reply to this question, after which she said:

"Certainly. It is true I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strain a conscientious actress undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one's whole soul into the work in order to rightly portray the character. This necessitates an utter abandonment of one's personality and an assumption of the character portrayed. It is this an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each night in certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it art. Probably it was, but those were none the less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"No, in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before but with restored health and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear."

"You speak of a 'knowledge of how to retain health.' Will you please explain what you mean by that?"

"You must be aware that women by their very natures are subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these troubles is legion, but in whatever form they may come they are weaknesses which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to-day suffering agonies of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing and when I reflect upon it I confess it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths of a bitter experience in saying this, and I am thankful I know the means of restoration, and how to remain in perfect health."

"Please explain more fully."

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffering and many deaths might be avoided."

"What is this wonderful remedy?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"And you use it?"

"Constantly."

"And hence believe you will be able to go through the coming season successfully?"

"I am quite certain of it."

"A few questions more, Miss Granger. Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

"I first played for some time with the amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. I then went to the Union Square theatre for two seasons, after that to the Boston Globe for one season and then to Booth's theatre in this city. Next I joined John McCullough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Camille, Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I created the part of Cleopatra in the Glare Slave and also starred in Two Nights in Rome, playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the Planter's Wife and the coming season as I have said, will be devoted to Her Second Love."

"As the writer was returning home he fell into a train of musing and wondered if all the women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experience and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used, how much suffering might be avoided and much happiness secured."

"Maladies which maybe conveyed by a book, according to the Lancet, are measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, sore throat, bronchitis and perhaps phthisis."

The Beautiful Green Melon.

A beautiful thing it was, and right green was Mr. Green, who went down into the cellar about midnight and ate nearly half of it. The next day young Mr. Green said he didn't want any breakfast, and thought he would not to the store. He wished he hadn't seen that watermelon. By the prompt administration of Perry Davis' Pain Killer young Mr. Green's internal economy was reduced to a state of peace and comfort.

—"Oh, my back!" is a common exclamation and expresses a world of misery and suffering. It is singular this pain arises from such various causes. Kidney disease, liver complaint, wasting affection, colds, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork and nervous debility are chief causes. When thus ailing seek prompt relief. It can be found best in Brown's Iron Bitters. It builds up from the foundation by making the blood rich and pure. Lead physicians and ministers use and recommend it.

Most Wonderful.

Very seldom do we read of an actual case of recovery where hope had altogether been lost, to equal that which was on Monday investigated by a Dispatch reporter who had heard in various quarters, persons talking to their friends of a cure, seemingly little short of miraculous, that had been performed.

Wm. Lincoln Curtis is the name of the young man in question. He is now employed at H. K. Porter & Co.'s Locomotive Works, Pittsburgh. His disease was chronic rheumatism. He gradually grew worse, his ankles and knees were soon even worse than his arms, his cheek bones began to enlarge, spreading his face out of all resemblance of his former self. Two physicians pronounced him hopeless. Peruna cured him. Page 26 Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life," N. Y.

—For any poison, take a heating tea-spoonful of ground mustard, stirred in a glass of cold water; it causes instantaneous vomiting. If you have no mustard, use common salt instead. When vomiting ceases, swallow two or three tablespoonsfuls of sweet oil or other mild oil, butter or lard, which prevents the poison being absorbed into the blood; then send for the doctor.

Hallelujah!"

An Amphibious Man.

READING, July 15.—A remarkable exhibition of diving was given in this city, in the Schuykill river, last evening. John Fry, the diver, is twenty-three years old and a brass moulder by trade. He is medium in height, broad-shouldered, of powerful frame, deep-chested and large lungs, and in excellent health. After doing a good day's work Saturday, he appeared at the river bank dressed in bathing tights, at 7 P.M., accompanied by his trainer. Two iron weights, weighing twenty-one pounds, were tied to his body.

He went into the water until thirty feet from the shore, waist deep, and then sat down on the bottom of the river. An attendant stood near him and commenced to hand boiled eggs down to the man. Fry took them one by one, and devoured while under water. Several pretzels were also eaten in the same way. He was exactly two minutes at this meal. He next sat down, and taking a bottle of pear cider, he drank every bit of it while under water in forty seconds. The next exhibition was remaining under water two minutes with his mouth open. About 1,000 persons witnessed the feats. He remained under water at one time in a recumbent position three and one-fourth minutes. He says he is able to eat four boiled eggs and two pretzels under at one sitting any time.
