insults to the other party. D. N. Milligan told a story that coincided with the above in the main points. He was positive that Haymaker made no attempt to strike Bowser, but had only tried to ward off his bayonet

The physicians who had made the post mortem examination, through Dr. Pugh, gave the result of their investigation. They found eleven wounds on the body of Mr. Haymaker. Three of them were from bayonet thrusts in the stomach and abdomen, either one of which would have been sufficient to cause death. The one wound that caused death so suddenly was a bayo net thrust in the lower part of the abdo men, to the right of the median line. There was a gunshot wound also be tween the ninth and tenth ribs, on the right side. This also would have caused death. The above, with the addition of another bullet wound, were all penetrating would. There were, besides, a number of smaller wounds. After hearing the above evidence the
