—On Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, there fell the heaviest snow of which we or any person of whom we have enquired, have any recollection. Measured, on the level or in the woods, it was two feet in depth, and it seriously interfered with travelling of all kinds, the carrying of the mails, etc. During the winter of 55-56 a very heavy snow fell, which drifted badly, but it was not as deep on an average as this one was. average, as this one was.

—A terrible accident happened at Troutman last Friday. While James Dunlap was up in a derrick assisting to pull the rods, he lost his balance and fell to the floor, some sixty feet below. He struck on his feet with such force as to shatter his legs and drive his spine into his brain, causing death almost instantly. He was about 23 years of age, was a son of John Dunlap, dec'd, and was the main support of his mother.

-Mr. Nicholas Middendorf, living on the old Murrin farm, near Murrinsville, this county, had a hard battle with the snowlast Wednesday. Coming from Franklin to his home, on horseback, when near Bullion his horse missed the road-track and fell into a drift, covering it to its head. Mr. Middendorf had to ering it to its head. Mr. Middendorf had to dig it out with his hands, which was a long and laborious task, and by the time he and the ani-mal reached home he found one of his hands hadly frozen, so badly that he may lose it alto-gether. His description of his struggles with the snow and storm of that day for about eight miles is truly wonderful. The snow was about four feet deep in that part of Venango county.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's important inquiry into the color blindness of its employes has recently been completed, with some significant results. Dr. William Thomson, the ophthalmologist, by whom the work was conducted, finds that the average number of train hands having defective color sense is between four and five per cent, but those absolutely color blind and unable to distinguish between a gray and green or a green and red flag are fully four per cent. One very important conclusion he reaches is that while the defect is generally congenital it is sometimes caused by disease or injury. It has too often been assumed that it is constitutional, and that when once a railroad company has weeded out the color-blind signal men from its service those who are left may be always relied on to distinguish signals. But if the commonest form of this disease—"red blindness"—may be acquired by those once fully the commonest form of this disease—"red blindness"—may be acquired by those once fully able to stand the tests employed by the ophthalmologist, all train men should be examined from time to time. A high French authority states that "color disease may be produced by straining the eyes in dim light." We might therefore expect that railway employes and seamen would be especially liable, however perfect their color vision may originally have been, to develop either partial or absolute color blindness. It is rather startling to be told that "one man in twenty-five" is found unfit for service where prompt recognition of color signals is re-

On petition of the election board of the First Ward of Butler, the court last Tuesday directed the board to hold elections for said ward in the building of Mrs. Mitchell, on the north side of the Diamond, next door to the office of George R. White, Esq., and on petition of citizens of Butler township, the place for holding elections for that township was fixed at the office of Joseph B. Bredin, Esq., at corner of Main street and Diamond, Butler. No petition has, as yet, been presented for the Second Ward of Butler. The first place designated for Butler township was the office of the Sullivan Bros., but that has been changed as above.

Mother and Daughter.

From the Pittsburgh Gazette of Monday.]

At the Academy of Music on Saurday afternoon Gertie Seamon, an actress filling an engagement at that place, met her little daughter whom she had not seen for twelve years. This filtred girly same is Mae Anderson. She is fourteen years old and lives with her grandparent was made and primer on the Post in this city. The mother was Mr. Anderson's wife at one time, but by a mutual underson's wife at one time, but by a mutual underson's wife at one time, but by a mutual underson with the subsequently. By this agreement the father was to retain possession of the child.

-Bob met Ike at the Bank corner the other day, during a snow storm, shook hands with him, struck an attitude and held on to Ike's hand till he relieved himself somewhat as follows: "May Heaven bless you and yours—all ef them. May they live long and be happy, and always be your greatest delight, your Supremest joy. Name the girl after your wife, whome she will surely resemble in grace and purity, and the boy after yourself, than whom no nobler man walks the foot-stool. Ike, you have proved yourself a good man, a solid man, a white man—white as the snow that is being driven past us, a man to be respected and looked up to, and—and—Ike, do you know the only difference between me and you?" 'I do not," said Ike. "Well, you have money and I havn't, lend me a dime to get a glass of beer with.

-Cries of "murder" were heard on Main

-Cries of "murder" were heard on —Cries of "inurder" were heard on Main street about midnight of last Tuesday night, and a half naked man was seen running bare-footed through the snow from the Vogeley House to the Lowry House. At the latter house he wanted the Clerk to give him a room, but was refused, as Linn took him for a cray man. But he was furnisned with some clothes, when he left for the Wick House where he was stopping. The man who ereated this sensation is a respected citizen of Sunbury, this county. He had returned to his hotel, the Wick House, late that night and finding it closed, went up to the Vogeley House and got a bed, and soon after had a fuss with two Sunbury and two Butler men who came into the same room—one of them having a bed there. Who started the fuss, we don't know, as the parties give different versions of the affair. Two of the men are brothers-in-law and one brother-in-law and his friends were too much for the other brother-in-law, who sought safety in flight, and who claims to have been cut with a knife and otherwise badly abused.

—Whoever has followed the discussion of the street about midnight of last Tuesday night, and —Whoever has followed the discussion of the red sunsets must have realized by this time that the limitations of modern science are nar-row, and that though even scientific men do not row, and that though even scientific men do not like to acknowledge ignorance perhaps, yet the only absolutely truthful answer that can be given to questions as to the origin of the phenomenon is: I don't know! For that is the simple and obvious fact. We have ceased to believe that red sunsets prognosticate war or pestilence, or the death of great men, or the rise or downfall of dynasties; but we know no more than our ancestors did of the real cause of these occurrences. Our scientists suggest all manner of explanations; but none of them are more than conjecture, and some of them lack the merit even of plausibility. And so we the merit even of plausibility. And so w flounder amid theories of meteoric dust, cosm dust, volcanic dust, cometary bodies, vapor ar so forth, but we do not know the origin of the red sunsets we admire; and perhaps the greatest advance in this direction of which we can boast lies in the fact that we are no longer afraid or unusual phenomena, and have learned that strange things may happen without portending either good or evil to the human race.—Ex.

As the Pierce party have a majority of the stock not in dispute and the advantage of the books in their favor as to that in dispute, it is but reasonable that that party should select the President. We can see no reason to apprehend irreparable injury to plaintiff, and therefore the injunction is refused.

During a recent cold snap when the thermometer registered at zero and below, ninety-nine citizens out of one hundred had something to say about "zero." but perhaps not one in a aundred could have told off hahd why a point thirty-two degrees below the freezing point on Fahrenheit's thermometer is called zero. For that matter, nobody knows. The Fahrenheit scale was introduced in 1720, and like other thermometeric scales it has two fixed points, the freezing point, or rather the melting point of of ice, and the boiling point of water. The Centigrade and Reaumur scales call the freezing point zero and measure therefrom in both directions. This is a very natural arrangement. Fahrenheit kept the principal on which he graduated his thermometers a secret and no one has ever discovered it. It is supposed, however, that he considered his zero—thirty-two degrees below freezing—the point of absoneteric scales it has two fixed points two degrees below freezing—the point of absolute cold or absence of all heat, either because, ng about the temperature of melting salt and w it was the greatest degree of cold that could produce artificially or because it was e could produce artificially or because it was the lowest natural temperature of which he ould find any record. The grounds on which abrenheit put one hundred and eighty de-rees between the freezing and boiling points re likewise unknown.

NEW CASTLE, January 11 .- During the summer Leander Long, a resident of South New Castle, had two cows killed by trains on the New Castle branch of the Pittsburgh and Lake New Castle branch of the Pittsburgh and Lake
Eric Railroad, for which the company refused to remunerate him. Mr. Long has uow caused the arrest of the conductor, ticket agent, baggage master, engineer, fireman and brakemen of the branch for violation of the Sunday law in running trains on that day. Mr. Long threatens to have these employes arrested on each successive Sabbath unless he is paid for miles is truly wonderful. The snow was about four feet deep in that part of Venango county.

—A terrible tragedy occurred near Duke Centre, McKean county, a few days since. Four little children of J. V. Garvey, employed by the Keystone Oil Company on the Kinzus branch, whose ages ranged from one to six years, were burned to death in Mr. Garver's house, which was consumed by fire. The little ones were left alone in the house while their mother went on an errand, when the dwelling took fire from over pressure of gas, and in a few minutes, owing to the high winds that prevailed, was entirely destroyed. The fire burned with such ferocity that it was impossible to rescue the children, and all perished in the flames. Their bodies were taken from the ruins about an hour after, and thay presented a most horrible sight. The parents were almost crazed by the terrible affair.

In May following a similar transaction in regard to a loan of $5,000 on a pledge of 5,000 was had A B White lateral for White's note. In May folbarrels of oil was had. A. B. White agement from me. If a girl chooses to got the proceeds of the $10,000 note fall in love with me, and blows her placed to his credit in the bank of which Foster was cashier, and with that credit in love with her, I am not responsible his account was still overdrawn to large amount. Two days afterward Foster, without White's knowledge or consent, made a memorandum check, taking $10,000 from White's and transferring it to his own individual account and permitted White to check out the $10,000 as though it still remained to his credit.

In June and July, 1875, and before the maturity of White's notes the Bergs gave three orders of 5,000 barrels each to A. B. White for the oil standing in their name, and White sold the oil for a sum aggregating $20,050. The Bergs got $15,000, the amount of White's notes, and White got the balance, $5,050. In March, 1876, Foster demanded this oil of the Union Pipe Company and was refused. He then sued said company, the case was tried in Kittanning before Judge Boggs, and resulted in a verdict for the Pipe Company. Then Foster waited until withn a few days of six years and brought suit against the Bergs for trover and conversion, claiming the excess of money was more than necessary to pay White's notes. The case was tried last June before Judge Bredin. The plain- One Price Clothing House. tiff asked him to instruct the jury that the telegrams passing between Foster, White, Eastwick and the Bergs were prima facie notice to the Bergs that the oil was Foster's. The court refused the instruction and left the question to the jury to construe what Berg had a right to believe from the telegrams The jury found for Berg. The case went to the Supreme Court and was reversed on the ground that it was the duty of the Court below to say that the elegrams were sufficient to put the Bergs on notice that the oil was Foster's, and the case came back for a new trial, which has just ended. The Court instructed the jury as indicated by the Supreme Court and also that if they
