—The mercury in this town last Friday morning ranged from 24 to 32 degrees below zero, and next morning was from 2 to 4 degrees lower. This is the coldest weather we have had since '56, after the big snow of that winter. That was the winter that rye was in such great demand, and everybody was hauling it to Pittsburgh in sleds. One teamster for John Berg took in a load of 150 bu shels.

—Some of our youth who have exhausted all the ordinary pleasures should establish a whizzer in the ice before it is gone. A whizzer is made by planting an upright pole through a hole in the ice, and attaching two hoizontal bars to the pole. The bars are about fifteen feet long and on opposite sides of the pivot pole. The operation of the contrivance is capstan-wise, and when a dozen youngsters get hold of the bars and skate around somebody gets hurt. When a boy losses his grip he whizzes, and the fun of the game consists in watching those who have the bad judgment to let go. A down-east whizzer, the grip he whizzes, and the fun of the game consists in watching those who have the bad judgment to let go. A down-east whizzer, the other day skinned one boy's face by hurling him about fifty feet along the ice, sprained one wrist, broke a knee-pan and split one head. The machine was then stopped for the afternoon. By all means get a whizzer.

-Several coal mines in the Mahoning Valley -Several coal mines in the Mahoning Valley have been engaged for some time in issuing script to their miners which was exchanged at certain stores for goods and other commodities, which the holder of it desired. The fact was reported to Washington, D. C., and a special agent of the Treasury Department has been through the Mahoning Valley investigating the cases reported to him. It is claimed by the Treasury Department that the issuing of the scrip for the purpose of a circulating medium is in violation of the Federal Statutes. What steps will be taken by the government in the matter is not known.

—There are already 496,201 persons who are drawing pensions for injuries received in the late war. Many of these have been fraudulently obtained. There are bills pending in Congress that would add over 1,800,000 persons to the number of pensioners, and make a charge on the Treasury estimated at $1,296,725,000—a sum that would nearly double the national debt. Of course there is no danger that all these bills will be passed, but there will be a desperate effort made by the pension lobby to push some of them through. To settle the matter, careful experiments were made last month at the U.S. Signal Service Station at Cleveland. the U. S. Signal Service Station at Cleveland. One thermometer was placed on the north side of the station, completely exposed to the wind, while another was equally exposed to the cold but was shielded from the wind. During the month of December, observations were taken several times daily, and the final summing up shows that the exposed thermometer varied but two-tenths of a degree from the sheltered one. The instruments used were those furnished by the Government, and are the most perfect made.

—A special term of the court has been called in Forest county to try a great ejectment case and decide the ownership of a valuable tract of oil territory in Howe township, containing 600 acres. There are on the property at least ten first-class producing oil wells, and the oil already produced in the hands of a receiver is estimated at 200,000 barrels. The present litigation dates back to 1837, when the property was of little value and sold to pay the taxes. The claimants are O. E. Clark and Leroy Judd of Leadville, Col., and the defendant in the ejectment proceeding is the Balltown Oil Company. The value of the property in dispute is a half million. Since the above was put in type the case has been settled, and by the terms of settlement the defendant company retains possession of the 200,000 barrels of oil produced and the plaintiffs enter upon possession of the property. -A special term of the court has been called

It may be a little early in the season for a first class fish story, but this will do for a starter: A fish dealer down in Salineville, O., says that he received a box of frozen fish from Cleveland during the recent blizzard. They were so hard and brittle that they had to be handled with care to keep them from breaking in pieces He sold one to an old lady, who took it home and put it in a bucket of cold water to let it thaw out gradually. During the night she heare something splashing and flopping around in the kitchen. Supposing it was the cat trying heare something splashing and hopping around in the kitchen. Supposing it was the cut trying to get the fish, she jumped out of bed, seized the broom and broke for the scene. There was no cat visible, but the fish was making the water fly in all directions. As near as could be learned, these fish had lain out in the cold two nights before being packed in boxes, and had been out of the water more than two weeks.

—Mr. McGinley, who lives on Pearl street, this town, and who is 85 years of age, says that the deepest saow of which he has any recollection was that of 1832, when snow fell on the level to a depth of four feet, and drifted so badly as to make the roads impassible, and in some cases made it difficult for farmers to get out of their houses and procure fire-wood and water. He, at that time, lived in Donegal township, and the body of a neighbor who died that winter, had to be kept in the house several days before it was possible for his friends and neigbors to bury him. They final-fastened two long poles to a horse's back, pinned them together and placing the coffin on this dragged it to the Sugar Grove cemetery. It took them the best part of a day to travel eight miles, and the "poor man" was dumped off into every drift they came to.

He is a great animal, equal slone to the labor of paying two or three national debts, and a glauce at the financial side of his history is fitted to inspire respect for him even on the part of those cold hearted creatures who could never sympathize with the man who burned d w his house to have roast pig. Congress has him on its mind to an enormously great extent in the form of tons of documents, and Germany and France are wrestling with the problems of his destiny—especially at this particular moment France, in which country he has been surveyed through the scientific spectacles of Mr. Paul Bert, which are very much like the spectacles that Mr. Jules Verne puts on when he is about to write a romance remotely involving some scientific theory.

Not Drawn from the Cask.

I wish to make known through I wish to make known through your Journal, why it is that my wine cannot be had from the Druggists by the Pint or Quart &c., drawn from the Cask.

It is because there are so many unprincipled men in the business that I dare not trust my wines to be dealt out in that way and remain pure. Unless I have some security against its adulteration, too many men would make two bottles out of one by adulteration, as the wine is so rich that it will stand that, and even more, and yet sell for my pure wine, and not bottles out of one by adulteration, as the wine is so rich that it will stand that, and even more, and yet sell for my pure wine, and not be noticed by those who have been using California Port wine. The only security the public have in getting my wine pure, is for me to bottle it and affix my signature over the cork of each bottle. The price at one dollar per bottle is no more than it would be in bulk, except the cost of the bottling, cork and label.

I would be glad to sell it by the barrel, could I be sure of its being dealt out to consumers in its pure state. I found years ago by experience that the only way the public could get má wine pure, was to seal every package, with my signature over the stopper.

Not long ago a druggist in Trenton, N. J., was approached by a customer who wanted a bottle of Speer's Port Grape Wine for his sick wife, "I have it" said the druggist, who at once repaired to the cellar and shortly came up with a bottle part filled and corked and no label, and delivered it to the customer took it home, it mace his wife sick, he afterwards showed the wine to a physician who declared it was nothing like Speer's wines, but miserable stiff nalmed off instead.

snowed the wine to a physician win declared it was nothing like Speer's wines, but miserable stuff palmed off instead.

This shows the necessity of taking every precaution to insure a method by which consumers may be sure when they get my wine.
