COMMITTEE MEETING—TWO PRIMARIES.

Delegates to be Elected.

Our town has been quite lively, in a political way, the past two days. The meeting of the Republican County Committee, for the purpose of determining the question as to the primaries, brought together not only the members of the County Committee, but the candidates as well, and many other Republicans of the county.

Two primaries, it will be seen, have been ordered: one on April 5, for the election of three delegates to the Harrisburg State Convention and one delegate to the Chicago National Convention, in connection with the counties of Crawford and Mercer; the Convention, present County Committee, to meet in Butler on the following Monday, April 7, to cast up the vote on delegates and declare the results.

The second primary was called for May 24, to nominate the county ticket, convention to meet in Butler on following Monday, May 26, to declare results at the same.

Thus it will be seen that the great object contended for, the right of the people to elect their delegates to the State and National Conventions, has been secured. The sentiment for a special primary for that object, because so strong that it could not be resisted. The Committee acted wisely and well in every respect, and we fully approve of its proceedings. The wishes of the Republicans of the county have been respected. A vote taken in the Committee showed Blaine almost the unanimous choice of Butler county for President. Full proceedings next week.

Personal.

—Dr. Alfred Craig, of Washington, Pa., has for some days past been on a visit to his son-in-law, Rev. Oiler, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this place. Some forty years ago we had the pleasure of seeing Dr. Craig in "Little Washington," and had not seen him since until his visit here now to his daughter and son-in-law. Of course he is like all others, has changed with the change of years, and from the young man he is now venerable in age and clothed with white locks. He is a very intelligent and agreeable gentleman and in conversation was very entertaining in his account of men and things as existing now at Washington and forty years ago. We were pleased to again meet him and hope he may often come and visit his friends here.

—Our town has been visited by many of the citizens of the county within the past few weeks. Last week nearly all of Brady township, present as witnesses in the Croll case. Among them we met Jonathan Clinton, Esq., S. W. Moore, R. J. Glenn, Daniel McDevitt and John P. Thompson. Mrs. Thomas McQuiston, of Adams county, was also in town. The case excited much interest but the jury failed to agree.

—Miss Sarah McQuiston returned home last Saturday from a week's visit to her friend Miss Nannie McCarvey of Fairview township, this county.

—Dr. William Irvine, who had been ill and confined to his home at Evans City, this county, has recovered as to be able to be in town this week on business.

GOVERNOR FOSTER, of Ohio, says Arthur can not carry Ohio, and that it is folly to talk of nominating him. Wm. M. Averts says that a New York State, but rather a man from some other State who can unite all the Republican elements. In the meantime the office holders in the South are at work procuring delegations in favor of Arthur. His nomination, however, is out of the question. —Greenville Journal.

Miss Nutt's Application to the President—She Wants to be Postmistress.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—The Capital prints the following about the Uniontown postoffice.

This week the president received a touching letter from Lizzie Nutt, of Uniontown, Pa., the girl, as everybody knows, whose father lost his life in defending her precious reputation, and whose brother was recently acquitted of the murder of her slauderer. She asked to be appointed postmistress of that town. Her letter is written with the most delicate tact, and she describes her situation with modesty and dignity.

The penmanship would pass muster before the Civil Service Reform Commission and the form in which the letter appears is quite business like. She says being aware that there is a vacancy in the post office she has been advised by friends to apply for the appointment, and believes herself to be possessed of the necessary qualifications. The terrible trouble which her family have recently passed through have left them not only fatherless, but impoverished, and there are five little children dependent upon her for support and herself. She makes no further allusion to her recent travails, but asks that if the President finds upon investigation that she is qualified to perform the duties of postmistress he will give her the appointment and sign her letter. "Very respectfully, Lizzie Nutt."

Ought to Hold a District Convention.

The Greenville Advance-Argus thinks the Mercer county Republican Committee made a mistake in that no steps were taken looking to the election of delegates to the district convention or conference; call attention to the fact that Crawford county has taken steps for such a convention and says: "Personally, we are clearly of opinion that Mercer County had better join with Crawford and Butler and select delegates to the National Convention on some plan embodying the spirit of the National rule. If this is done, there will be no difficulty about the admission of delegates, thus chosen, to the National Convention, and the people will be much better satisfied than they will be should our delegates be chosen at Harrisburg by a sub-division of the State Convention, even though that sub-division be made up of delegates from the counties embraced in our district only."

Parker Township Items.

Since our last, Squire John Kelly lost his youngest boy, Bird, by measles and he was much liked by all both old and young. The family has the remains of the child. The family has the remains of the child.

This old district, being long-lived or lousy territory, has the prospect of being drilled over again in the near future. J. W. McKee has the lumber on the ground and three rigs contracted for, on the R. Turner farm, and it is very likely that some holes will be bored in "Squire John Kelly farm this coming summer."

The township election was "enthused" somewhat by the appearance of the prohibition ticket, which on the main was a very fair one, but was "beated off" by the Citizens' ticket (Democratic and Republican) headed by a Republican, except in one or two instances. The prohibitionists have been in the habit of putting up a straight ticket for some years, and have grown rather strong, but the union of the old parties defeats them.

The new school house, taking the place of the one burned, is about completed. J. M. Coulter, contractor, and it is said to be a first class job, the result of giving work to a first class man. A. B. Gibson is a No. 1 man at renovating and putting oil wells in good order; get A. B. to have it well done. The revival at the M. E. church is progressing with satisfactory results.

Yes, CITIZEN, you are right in regard to holding the primaries. Don't back on that, the case demands it. The Democratic desire Uncle John C. Martin as one of the next County Commissioners. JONES.

Moral Uses of Junk.

Mr. J. M. Stinson, while at the S. & A. station in this place, came across a portion of an old journal that was en route for the paper mill, and clung to it for its sake and unusual contents. There is nothing in the book to locate it, though a loose receipt therein bears date of Butler 12th March, 1833, which would imply that the relic belongs to that ancient town. The fragment opens in 1805 and closes in 1811 when John Brown seems to have been the owner of the book, and the entries are principally for whiskey and beer. One entry impressed Mr. Stinson's artistic mind that he made a sketch of it, which latter, together with the fragment, is in our possession. The particular entry reads thus: "Feb. 25, 1805. This Bean and he stands indebted to me the sum of 92, 174, 3/4, which he has given me a note for payable in two months, exclusive of the cow he is to lift my note for or pay me the amount of her, which is twelve dollars." The sketch represents a primitive bar, behind which stands "Brown" with Ben in front, "signing the document," and behind him an Indian with rifle in hand. The interior of the "gin palace" is well plastered over with coon skins and such like items of currency. We suppose the cow will be added to the collection in due time also. Opening the book at random we find Peter H. H. Aderhold, Porter, S. W. Pringle, Petrolia, M. Dailey; Sunbury, Hugh Duffy; Harrisville, P. W. Albert; Prospect, J. A. McGowan; Millerstown, P. M. Boyle; Fairview Borough, Wm. Alexander; Karns City, Wm. Pickard; Evans City, A. Drebert; Zelienople, K. Leifer; Butler Borough, A. N. McAndrew and B. Bleser.

Bald Ridge.

Leasing is going on actively between Butler and Bald Ridge. The fact that the wells drilled this way are better ones than those lower down the creek has drawn more attention to territory up the creek and nearer to Butler. A rig is being erected on the David E. Pearce farm, this side of North of the Wallace farm. Land owners are receiving pretty large bonuses in addition to royalty. Population is gathering in and around Bald Ridge from all quarters and it looks now as if that would soon be the center of oil development.

Victory of the British Troops in Egypt.

LONDON, March 1.—The British troops met the rebels under Osman Digma near Irtikhat yesterday and gained a complete victory. The War Office is in receipt of telegrams stating that the losses of the British were 44 killed and 142 wounded. The British forces captured four Krupp guns, two howitzers and one machine gun. The rebels were repulsed, after a desperate resistance, with the loss of a thousand men.

On Thursday night General Graham's expedition encamped near Fort Baker. The infantry broncked in front, the cavalry in the rear. The troops were all assembled before sunset, except the Sixty-fifth Regiment which arrived at 8. Yesterday morning the rebels were quickly killed and coliced made. Breakfast over, the forces were formed in an oblong square, the front and rear of which were longer than the sides, owing to the different strength of the regiments. The Gordon Highlanders in line formed the advance, with two gattling guns and a Gardner in the right corner and two Gatling and one Gattling gun in the left corner. The Eighty-ninth Regiment in line formed the right hand side of the square, the Black Watch Regiment in the rear.

The whole strength of the British force was something less than 4,000 men. The length of the front was 350 yards. The Hussars acted as scouts, and advanced in a semi-circle a thousand yards ahead, covering the front and flanks of the main force. The troops advanced over sand knolls and scrub for a mile from Fort Baker to the left bank, when the rebels opened fire with their Remington rifles, but the range was too long and their shots proved ineffective. The rebels in swarms occupied the high ground in front and on the flanks of the British army. They retired slowly as the English advanced, keeping within about 1,200 yards of the British main body. The British cavalry followed, covering the rear upon the left, formed in three lines and distant some 900 yards from the main army. At 9:30 the gattling guns fired four rounds from Irtikhat harbor, but the range was too great. The shells burst a mile short of the enemy's position. The fire was stopped, as the shells were dangerous to the English. The cavalry advanced and mounted infantry advanced to the left, to touch the rebels, who moved obstinately, though they were not undisciplined to fight. The infantry continued to advance steadily. Two or three times a halt was made, in order to allow the sailors and artillery who were dragging the guns to rest. One square was well maintained, but the ground was difficult for the men, who were marching in columns of companies. The road toward Teb was studded with hundreds of corpses of Baker Pasha's ill-starred fugitives, which filled the air with pollution and around which swarms of carrion flies lazily hovered.

The Ground-Hog Was Right.

The ground-hog was right when he discreetly turned tail three weeks ago and went back into his hole. Those who doubted the phenomenal accuracy of the little four-legged weather prophet were fully convinced of his sagacity lately, when it became apparent that Jack Frost intended to celebrate the extra day of leap year with a genuine old hilled that must have been left over from his January stock.

A Novel Law Suit.

Eric Oberster; F. C. Heydrick, one of our well-known townsmen, is at present a party to a rather novel law suit in the oil region.

A short time ago he sold an oil country man a steam engine for $350. When the bargain was closed the purchaser counted out $350 in bills and placed them on the table for Mr. Heydrick to receive. Before the latter gentleman could get his hands on the money however, another man who was standing near reached out and picked up the money saying to the purchaser of the engine:

"You say you are such a fighter—suppose you fight this money from me." Then turning to Mr. Heydrick, the man went on: "This money is not yours yet. I did not take it from you. I took it from that fellow there. He used to be a partner of mine, and owes me four or five hundred dollars."

"Well I don't know as I am any thing out," replied the man who had purchased the engine, "I have the engine yet, anyhow." "Don't be so sure of that," put in Mr. Heydrick, "I have not delivered the engine and do not mean to until I am paid." Orders were at once given which made it impossible for the would-be purchaser to get possession of the engine, and he has now brought suit against Mr. Heydrick for the recovery of the property.
