Rosser Gets Even with Custer.

Gen. Tom Rosser was a gallant Confederate soldier. I saw him the other day in the Girard House. Years and his work on the Northern Pacific railroad have told upon. He looks much older than he did when he left the Southern States poor to become an en-gineer for Jay Cooke. Rosser was rather a picturesque character as a leader of a division of rebel cavalry. In a great degree he resembled Custer, whose classmate he was at West Point. Once at Buckland Mills, in Virginia, as he was driven out, he left a message with some ladies at a farm house for the gallant leader who died on the Big Horn. It read: "You have disturbed me at break-
