THE NEXT NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

A Statement of the Issues Involved in the Selection of the Next President.

WASHINGTON, D. C. 9.—The following call for the next National Republican Convention has been issued by the National Republican Committee:
To the Republican electors of the United States:

In accordance with usage, and obedient to the instructions of the Republican National Convention of 1884, a National Convention of delegates representing the Republican electors of the United States will be held at the city of Chicago, Ill., on Tuesday, the 19th of June, 1888, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice-President to be supported at the next National election, and for the transaction of such other business as may be there presented.

Republican electors in the several States, and voters without regard to past political affiliation, difference of sect, who believe in the American principle of a protective tariff for the defense and development of home industries and the elevation of home labor; who would reduce the National taxes and prevent the accumulation of the surplus in the Treasury in harmony with this principle; who are opposed to the attempt, now more openly avowed than ever before, to establish a policy which would strike down American labor to the level of the underpaid and oppressed workers of foreign lands; who favor a system of naval and coast defenses which will enable the United States to conduct its international negotiations self-respect; who gratefully remember the decision of the American people to condemn and resent the continued and unjust exclusion of rapidly-growing Territories, which have an indisputable title to admission into the sisterhood of States; who are in favor of free schools and popular education, a free and honest ballot, and a fair count, the protection of every citizen of the United States in his legal rights at home and abroad, a foreign policy that shall extend our commerce and our influence to every land and climate, and shall properly support the dignity of the Nation and the promotion of friendly and harmonious relations and intercourse between all the States, are cordially invited to unite under this call in the formation of a National ticket.

Each State will be entitled to four delegates-at-large, and for each Representative-at-large two delegates, and each Congressional district, each Territory and the District of Columbia, two delegates-at-large shall be chosen by popular State Conventions, called on not less than twenty days before the meeting of the National Convention. The delegates-at-large shall be chosen in the same manner as the nomination of a member of Congress is made in said districts. The Territories' delegates shall be chosen in the same manner as the nomination of a member of Congress is made in said districts. The Territories' delegates shall be chosen in the same manner as the nomination of a member of Congress is made in said districts.

An alternative delegate for each delegate in the National Convention, to act in case of the absence of the delegate, shall be elected in the same manner and at the same time as the delegate is elected. All notices of contests must be filed with the National Committee in writing, accompanied by printed statements of the grounds of contests, which shall be made public. Preference in the order of hearing and determining contests will be given by the convention in accordance with the date of filing of such notices and statements with the National Committee.

Samuel F. Jones, Chairman.
The Day Fixed.
Governor Beaver, says the Clarion Republican-Gazette, has fixed Thursday, Jan. 26th, 1888, as the day upon which David L. King should be hanged for the killing of J. C. Davis. Application will be made on the third Monday of December, to the Pardon Board for commutation of the sentence to imprisonment for life. Should this be denied, Sheriff Whelan will have the unpleasant duty to perform, of carrying out the sentence, on the day fixed. We herewith publish the Act of Assembly relative to execution in capital cases.

Further, Mr. Blaine informed the Tribune reporter that he "would maintain the tax on whisky so long as there is whisky to tax, and when the national government should have no use for the money, I would divide the tax among the Federal Union with specific object of lightening the tax on real estate. The houses and farms of the whole country pay too large a proportion of the total taxes. If at times relief could be given in that direction it would in my judgment be a wise and beneficial policy."

BLAINE HEARD FROM.

He Handles Cleveland's Message without Gloves.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Tribune's Paris correspondent cables that paper a report giving the views of Blaine on the President's message. Blaine said to the Tribune representative: "I have been reading an abstract of the President's message and have been especially interested in the comments of London papers. Those papers all assume to declare that the message is a free trade manifesto and evidently are anticipating an enlargement of the President's message as a consequence of the United States as a consequence of the President's recommendations; perhaps that fact stamped the character of the message more clearly than any words of mine can."

Senator Spooner (Rep.)—A free trade essay. I'm glad to see them show their hand.
Senator Blackburn (Dem.)—If there is anything I don't want to be quoted on its, this message.
Representative Hoiland, Pennsylvania (Rep.)—We can defeat that doctrine by 100,000 majority in Pennsylvania.

Representative Glover (Dem.)—Heard only portions of it, but I have talked with many of the Ohio delegation and they are against the message because of the argument against tariff on wool. Without Ohio in accord I fear but little can be done.
Representative Hovey, of Indiana, (Rep.)—It creates an emergency and ignores the real issue before the country—that of distributing the surplus to the soldiers and bringing them solidly over to us.

Representative Fuller of Iowa, (Rep.)—We can stand such stuff as that.
Representative McKinley, of Ohio, (Rep.) The issue is made. It is a trade against protection, and will give us strength.
Mr. Reed, of Maine (Rep.)—The message is certainly a surprising one, but it is not surprising because of anything new. It is a message of one man's fancy, with the monotonous misstatements of the free trade argument needed more than a word here and there to feel that the administration had gone over to the Carlisle wing with no disguise whatever. It is not responsible for the Democratic party to deny its complicity in the attack on American industries, without disowning the administration. The attempt at the close of the long argument in favor of free trade to declare the message "irrelevant" would be a broad jest if it were not in a State paper. To give fuller power to his declarations, the President has omitted all reference to other things, remitting all the manifold concerns of the government to a message to be given in the future. To make sure that the whole blow shall strike full and fair at American industries, he lards the interval revenue without exception. No mention is made of sugar; no mention is made of tobacco; not a word of alcohol in the act; no free raw material when produced in this country; only free raw material when produced abroad. Surely the message is a surprising one. But it makes the very issue we have desired.

Some of our readers of this place and in this country, will remember Mr. Wm. Reed of near Pittsburg, the operator, who some six or eight years ago had various enterprises in the county, particularly near this place in Butler Tp., and finally near to what is now known as the Red field. Mr. Reed was generally unsuccessful in all his enterprises here and left considerably the loser. In October last it seems he went to the Atlantic Ocean, for some purpose, and while alone on the sea in a small boat, was drowned, or at least never heard of until now.

The following from the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph of Monday last tells the balance:
WASHED UP BY THE SEA.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Dec. 12.—Patrolman Aaron B. Steelman, of Life Saving Station No. 29, this city, discovered a body at an early hour this morning on the strand. It is supposed to be that of Wm. Reed, the eccentric and wealthy oil and iron prospector of Pittsburg, who, with his mysterious electrical divining rod, was reported to have searched for buried wrecks, supposed to contain treasure, and was drowned from a small skiff on October 21st.

Coroner Irving began an inquest to-day. It is reported that a large reward is offered for the recovery of the body. A considerable sum of money, jewelry and valuable papers were found upon the body. Mr. Reed's family at Pittsburg have been telegraphed for.

Mr. Reed was in his 76th year at the time of his death. He may properly be called a native of Pittsburg, because he was born only 15 miles from this city, over in Washington county, and came here while still a boy.

Mr. Reed has lived in Sewickley a number of years. He was always eccentric and had few intimates. The last few years of his life was spent at his home, where he entertained little or no company. He was a very peculiar man, but his farm was well kept, and his face, partly covered by a gray beard, was a benevolent one.

Oil and gas "leaking" has been the most exciting event of recent occurrence. It has been a "leak" of a number of "leasers" and also proposes to operate soon or pay a handsome "rental." This is near "seven miles" East of the first Saxenburg "strike."
The people of this vicinity think a little indignation would be quite as useful to them as their more "western neighbors" hence their vigorous effort to test it. "Schools are all in a very prosperous 'state,' pupils interested both with 'books and ball-playing."

"Literary Societies," are now in the "blast at Leasurville and Centre with this view. The various miscellaneous "pieces" that have been rendered reflect great "credit" on the "young people," "Parents" turn out and visit the "schools" and "Literary Societies," and cheer their children in their labors to great success. "Young men" will "Jewels" that fade not nor decay by the "months of time."
