-Washington, Pa, has a breach of prom-ice suit in pickle that, it is said, will make the Maby Bonting case sink into insignifi-cance. A Miss Ingersoll of that place has intered suit in New York City against a Brooklyn Atterney named Willie for trifting with her affections, and the letters in her possession are said to outrival any heretofore pu biashed.

-The name of Newton Black, Esq. ap-posses in our announcement column this week and indicates that its ownes is a candi-date for Congress. Newt, is a son of James Black, Gergiesly, of Marion twp, and was born and raised in that township. He served in the Union army, carries two wounds upon his person, is a bright and well posted man, is now fourty-two years of age, and would, we believe, make a competent member of the popular branch of the National Legislature.

-Angel sleeves are the latest in ladies cos-tumes. They have appeared in New York on a few ball dresses, but won't likely reach Batler before the May party. If we can catch the idea from a newspaper cut, they consist of a full drapery banging from the shoulders considerably below the hand, but open in front, so as to exhubit the bare arm. It is said the originator of this sleeve had a bud easy on the back of one of her arms above the clows and the angel sleeve is to hide this scur.
