would be satisfied. But this the young couple could not do between train times at Olean and the justice did not have time to make out a certificate, but promised to send it to them.

On Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock, the young couple arrived in Butler on their lineal foot, downward 2.80, for manho way home. Maggie's father met them at the depot and with the aid of Policeman McCandless, captured her, and intended taking the next train home. Mack ran up town to an attorney, got a writ of habeus corpus and put it in the Sherifi's hands, and the Sheriff arrested the girl and took her into Court.

Both she and Mack swore that they wer narried and had been living together man and wife, and Maggie said she wanted to stay with her husband.

Mr. Ramsey thought they should pro duce a marriage certificate, or else get license and have a legal marriage then and ent that it would be a handy thing if we there, but the Court, Judge McMichael, thought different, and wrote an order put restraining her father and Mr. McCandless from interfering with them.

Whether the young couple had ever go through a legal ceremony or not, the acknowledgment of being man and wif in open Court and the Court's recognition of the fact legalizes their marriage, and they are now man and wife good enough but if they were not married in York State the person who married them in this State has made himself liable to the Marriage New York does not have a marriag
