On Monday noon of this week Court reassembled and took up the horse case of Caleb Atkins of West Deer twp. Allegheny Co. vs Harrison McCandless of Centre twp. Caleb bought a horse for $180 from Harrison some time ago, but he hadn't gone far with him until he discovered that he was "windbroken," and then he took him back and demanded his money. Harrison refused to refund and Caleb tied the horse to his barn door, left him there and brought suit, and the jury says that he shall refund with interest. The interesting feature of the case was that although the veracity of one of the witnesses was impeached by a number of his neighbors, his evidence seemed to hold good.
