After a long and bitter wrangle, last Thursday afternoon and evening, the House agreed to adjourn, next Thursday, the 28th inst. The object of the House in fixing so early a date is to force the Senate to take final action on the Revenue, Appor-tionment and other bills, and judging from the action of the Senate on the resolution regarding the election of U. S. Senators, it needs to be forced—forced out of existence.

In the House, that day, several bills were passed finally, and among them one giving Slipperyrock Academy $25,000.

In the Senate the Constitutional Convention bill passed finally, and among the appropriation bills that were passed was one of $400,000 to provide a site for an asylum for the chronic insane, and it must be the intention to buy an extensive site in heart of either Pittsburg or Philadelphia, for the sum mentioned is enough money to buy a site in the country as large as Capitol Hill in Harrisburg, and cover it with better buildings than there is on that hill.
