Not A Quay Year.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania hav every reason to congratulate themselves on the spirit displayed and results schieved at the State Convention on Wednesday. at the State Convention on Wednesday. A cut and dried programme, prepared outside of the convention and often by men who were not members of it, has been imposed upon the convention so often that a free expression of the Republican sentiment of Pennsylvania has become in recent years the exception, not the rule. Last year this method of procedure was pushed to the extreme. Mr. Delamater was nominated because he was the choice of Senator Onay, and not because he was preferred by , and not because he was preferred by ouvention. The platform contained things which were soon forgotten, ne plank was never lost sight of durhe entire canvass, and that was the upted vindication of Senator Quay. sult was that Pennsylvania's mag-t Republican majority of 80,000 was ted into a majority of 16,554 for Gov-taken to heart, and that Senator Quay would be at pains to evoid making himto campaign. For a time it seemed as intended to keep himself in the backand. He was reported as saying that the not a good Republican year," his friends claimed for him that he exdetermine the backand the narty to be backen and intend. and his friends claimed for him that he expected the party to be beaten, and intended to keep his hands off in the belief that the defeat would be attributed to the want of his leadership and council, and that a chastened party would insist upon placing him more firmly than ever in the saddle

sers. Comeron and Quay failed to im-teelf on the covention. It was decreed negal that a slight should be put up-esident Harrison by an ostentatious nseasonable nomination of Mr. Blaine and unseasonable nomination of ar. Blaine for the Presidency. This the convention refused to do, It was ordered that the convention should declare for the free coinage of American silver. Mr. Cameron had voted for free silver; had speculated on on his vote, and is understood to be inter-ested in silver mines. The conventien re-fused, however, to aid his speculations, endorsement of the elections bill, which Mr. Quay moved to lay aside at a mest Mr. Quay moved to lay aside at a most critical stage in its progress and Mr. Cameron voted against at every stage. But the convention saw the emission and inserted a ringing declaration for honest elections. Chairman Andrews, who did Mr. Quay's pidding last year, was relegated to the ranks and a man in whom the republicans have confidence and for whom they can feel respect was put in his place. Last year the platform contained a cordial indorsement of Senator Quay's and Cameron. This year the existence of those distinguished statesman receives no recognition. Captain Morrison, the nominee of the convention for State Treasury, obtained his place in spite of Mr. Quay's oppostion, and while General Gregg's nomination had the doubtful honor of Mr. Quay's approval, General Gregg is as little responsible for this as is Mr. Blaine for the superserviceable efforts of Quay and Cameron to place the President and his Secretary of State in antagonism.

Mr Quay should dream again, and per-haps he will see signs in the heavens which will lead him to revise his apothegm, "Not a Republican year." The indications "Not a Republican year." The indications increase and multiply that it is going to be a very good Republican year, and all the more surely here in Pennsylvania because it is emphatically not a Quay year.—Phila-

The occasion was the union re-union the 78th and 100th infantry regiments, and 4th cavalry.

Our people prepared for the occasion in every way. Beautifully decorated arches were built over the streets, a great tent was erected on the Diamond square, with decorations, electric lights, etc, and tabl Many of our business blocks and private residences were also handsomely decorated and more would have been had not the supply of bunting in the town been all afternoon the bands were playing; different organizations were marchings, and the ladies were at work on that Bower of Beauty and Beauty's Bower, the great dining hall. entirely exhausted Tuesday afternoon.

Our streets were crowded Wednesday o greater crowd was ever here, and the day was all that could have been desired. The parade formed on McKean and Jeffer-son Sts., marched north to Fulton, and the battery, which had been delayed, and

I., of Butler, under the lead of Prof. Brown, sang "My Coun-try, "Tis of Thee"; Hon. A. L. Hazen was introduced and made the address of wel come to the veterans. He spoke of the reawakening of the patriotism of 1861-65, thanked the veterans for choosing Butler as the place for their re-union, complimented them on their war record, spoke of the causes and results of the war, and in behalf of the people of Butler extended to the regiments a cordial welcome-a short the regiments a cordial welcome—a short and good speech.

Rev. Jehn Lusher, of the 78th, was then introduced and responded to the address of welcome. He referred to the heartfelt greeting, said that the greeting the Southerns gave them was fully as warm but of a different character, patriotism alone could move the people to such an outpouring; spoke of the causes and results of the war, and of its cost in blood and treasure, named the different battles in which the regiments participated, said the hearts of the soldiers were yet as young as when they went to war in the May Day of their lives; the result of the war was life and beauty for this country of ours, that the groans of war were succeeded by shouts of joy and our flag should be doubly dear; the erners gave them was larly for the critical work of 1892. Whether it was that he began to doubt that defeat was that he began to droubt that defeat was the Republican portion this year, or because he began to drown, or because he began to drown, or because he began to drown, or because he finds it impossible to keep quiet—having disencumbered himselfor the National Committee chairmanship—and having taken counce lwith Mr. Cameron at Donegal, Mr. Quay undertook to run his machine again this year in the old fashion.

But the machine would not work. The wreck of last year seemed to have dislocated some of its joints and it failed to do what was expected of it. The platform as adopted and published in most of the afterneon papers Wednesday show what was intended that the Conventious abould declare, but the flatform as adopted and published in The Press of yesterday shews how far the will of Marsar. Cameron and Quay failed to imposs the participant of the surport and the men and he mentioned the cases of Mrs. Gen. Barlow, Barbara Fretchie and of Mrs. Gen. The banquet was immense, the food was excellent, the tables were beautifully spread, and the ladies that hovered around them and waited upon the guests were the most delightful, beautiful, ravishing set of creatures, that the grizzled veterans have encountered between the sea shore and the Rocky mountains. They said it at their "Camp-Fire" and they ought to know. There were seats for six-hundred and all were occupied.

In order that our younger readers i know who re-united here, and in whose honor this reception was given, we make the following short sketches of the organ izations and career of each of the regi-тик 78ти.

The 78th was recruited in Butler, Armstrong, and other counties in August and September of 1861, and assembled at Camp Orr, near Kittanning. On the 18th of October the following field officers were chosen: Col. Wm. Sirwell; Lt. Col. A. Blakeley; Major A. B. Bonaffon, and on some day this regiment, accompanied by the 77th and 79th, and Muehler's Battery, all under the General Negley, started down the river from Pittsburg, in transports. They disembarked at Louisville, and a few-days after took their first position at Nolin's station on the Louisville and Nashville R. R., and were part of Gen. McCook's division, which in December following moved to Nashville. The regiment formed part of the garrison of Nashville till August of '62, and took part in the engagements at Lavergne, Neeley's Bend, White Creek, Charlottesville, and Franklin Pike and Stone Creek, at which place Capt. Jack, of Co. II., received a fatal wound. The 78th was recruited in Butler, Arm-ipated in the engagemennts of Tunnel Hill, Buzzard's Roost, Resaca, Dallas, New Hope and Kenesaw Mountain, and was af terwards again ordered to Nashville, where it was mounted, and operated against the rebel cavalry. It returned to Kittanning and was mustered out Nov. 4, 1864. A part of the regiment however, remained at Nashville and re enlisted, and these with eight new companies, one of which was Co. E. of this county, were reorganized with Major Bonaffon as Col. Co. H, Capt. Wm. S. Jack, was one of the original companies of the regiment, which enlisted for

Wm. S. Jack, was one of the original companies of the regiment, which enlisted for three years. Capt. Jack died at Nashville on Feb. 5th, 1863, and Lient. Ayres was promoted to the captainey, and served out the time of the regiment.

Co. E. was commanded by Capt. Robt. J. Boggs, and was made up, almost entirely of Butler County boys, and Co. F. contained quite a number. The new regiment took part in the Cumberland campaign, under Thomas in 1865, and was mustered out on Sept. 11th of that year. тие 100тн.

This regiment was recruited in the western and southwestern counties of the State, and was known as the "Round Head" reg. It arrived at Washington, on Sept. 2, 1861, and was officered as follows: Col., Daniel Leasure; Lt. Col., James Armstrong; Major, David A. Lecky. It was brigaded under Gen. Stevens, and formed part of the expeditionary force under Gen. Sherman, that left Fort Monroe on the 29th of Oct. and captured forts Walker and Beauregard on Nov. 7, and afterward occupied Beauford, S. C.

In June of 62 it was in the engagements at Legareville and Tower Hill, in which it lost heavily.

In July it returned to Virginia, and was attached to the famous Ninth Corps, under Reno and Burnside. It participated in the second battle at Bull Run in Ang. of '62, and lost heavily, all its field officers being killed or wounded during the second day, and the regiment then being under the command of Capt. Cornelius of the Butler company. It also fought at South Mountain and Antietam. In 1863 it formed part of the force sent from Virgina to Kentucky, and afterwards to the support of Gen. Grant at Vicksburg, and after the fall of that place operated with Gen. Sherman against Jackson, Miss., where many of the men were attacked by malarial fever due to bad water. They took part in the siege of Knoxville in Jan. of '64, re-enlisted, took veterans' furlough, and again rendezvoused at Pittsburg in Feb. with enough recruits to fill out the regiment, rejoined the Ninth army corps, and fought at the Wilderness. Spottsylvania, North Anna, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, etc. and after Lee's surrender was mustered out at Washington, July 24, '65. The career of this regiment was a remarkable one.
