The ladies ate heartily of the good things and at the opening of the afternoon session of their regular proceedings in the Methodist ch urch all were present, and in apparently good health and spirits. The meeting was called to order and the program of work carried out until about 4 o'clock Monday at 4 P. M.

The Senate assembled, Monday afterof work carried out until about 4 o'clock that afternoon when suddenly a change came over assemblage. Nearly fifty of the most-prominent delegates suddenly rose in their seats and white faced and weak tottered out of the building. First one and then another hastily rose, and after the first half-dozen had left the room a es, and then by the dozens, the delegates actually ran from the room, creating a profound sensation. Many delegates and citizens, attracted by the unusal scene gathered about the sufferers inside and outside the church, and offered what acistance they could.

HARRISBURG.

On Thursday Auditor General McCamar and State Treasurer Boyer appeared be-fore the Senate with their counsel; and their answers to the charges made in Gov. Pattison's message were read to the Senate. Both of the accused officials deny the nstitutionality of the proceedings against hem, quote from the Constitution, and deny the jurisdiction of the Senate in the premises. They also deny the specific discussion followed and the motion to take up Boyer's case first carried by a party of the state upon, and the basement of the large Prespyterian church was made into a temporary hospital to which a party of forty ladies were taken and as soon afterward as possible the sufferers were taken to private houses where they could each receive special care. All showed the same symptoms.

It was evident that the poison hab been partaken of at the dinner, as only those present who had eaten heartily were effected. Some writhed in agony, while others were merely sick at the stomach while all vomited, generally before they were able to leave the church.

When the least seriously affected victims were seen that evening, some of them claimed the coffse had done the damage, and that the poison had been put into their cups. Others said they were certain the grapes were to blame, and still others that there was poison in the cold meats.

The case caused great excitement and amid the confusion it was hard to ascertain who were the most seriously affected and who it was that was suffering mostly from fright. Committees of ladies were appointed to see that new apapers did not use any names, their claim being that it was useless to frighten their people at home. This was done at the request of the sufferers themselves, physicians even joining in latter on to keep their names to themselves, as many of those taken ill were visitors from other parts of the state.

As the afternoon wore on and every measure was taken to ease the discomform and pain of the afflicted, all began to show signs of improvement. Under the treatment of the local corpe of physicians and an eminent lady practitioner from Philadelphia, the patients began to gradually improve, and by night were considered out of danger.

Some newspapers advise farmers to attend more closely to their farms and quit talking politics, and they will be more prosperous. Why wouldn't merchants, lawyers and all other classes also be more prosperous if they would attend strictly to their business and let politics alone? Hash't the farmer just as much right, and they kind the strictly to their business and let politics alone?

The letters were finally admitted. They tended to show Mr. Livsey's connection and familiar acquaintance with City Treasurer Bardsley, and one of them asked anxiously about the affairs and condition of the now defunct Keystone Bank. Letters from Treasurer Boyer to Mr. Bardsley were also read.

One letter urged Bardsley to make a prompt settlement, and another written the same day notified him that there was no need for haste in the matter, and rather advised delay. Documentary evidence from need for haste in the matter, and rather advised delay. Documentary evidence from the Department of Education was offered, exhibiting the amount of money which for a period of 20 years went to the school district of Philadelphia, with the dates of payment of same, showing that at no time did Philadelphia receive its share of the State appropriation until after January of the appropriation year.

31, 1890, showed the amount in the general und in the State Treasury to be a little less than $1,550,000, counting the $420,000 epresented by the warrants as actually paid, while the facts were, as he stated under oath, that the warrants were not in lorsed by John Bardsley, Treasurer, nowere the checks delivered to him by Mr Paranting the wight of Language 2, 1891. over until the night of January 2, 1891,

From Mr. Boyer's evidence it appeared that this money actually belonged to the sinking fund, as Mr. Boyer had posession of the money at the time he swore he had paid it out, and for two days after December 31. Mr. Boyer admitted that he had never made any effort to examine into the financial condition of Mr. Bardsley and had never paid any attention to the City Treasprey's bonds.

mever paid any attention to the City Treasurer's bonds.
John Q. Stewart, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction, who followed Mr. Boyer, testified that the warrants in question were illegally signed at the time at the request and earnest solicitation of State Treasurer Boyer.
The attorneys on both sides were very deliberate and sparred considerably, but occasionally an inquisitive Senator would question a witness.
State Treasurer Boyer's case will probably be completed to-day. He decided to pay the warrant of $1,000 for witness expenses. The extra session has caused the County Treasurers to pay over the State money promptly and there are five million dollars in the State Treasury, as compared with two millions at this time last year.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

The Dunlap building on Federal St. Allegheny, occupied by Geo. W. Snamen for a carpet store, was destroyed by a gas explosion last Tuesday noon. One of Mr. Snamen's employees smelled escaping gas and he and Mr. Snamen went to the cellar to find the leak. One of them struck a match and away went everything. The two men were badly burned but managed to stagger up stairs and went to the street The building and stock took fire and burn water is put at $50,000. The two men may recover. Latimer's stock of carpets in adining building was injured.
