WINDY CAMP

INDY CAMP, in one of the most picturesque gulches in the Rocky mountains...

Saloon keepers and fave-banks had "folded their tents like Arabs," and gone where there was fresh gold to be had...

Alex Morgan was a man of middle age, and his friends rightly conjectured that he had been better days than a checker career at the different mining camps...

Grace Morgan trembled slightly and her face grew very white. "He is dead!" she uttered, hoarsely.

"Thank you," she took his offered support and walked soberly away. Poor Ben, who had stood at the head of the boulder gazing nervously after them...

"Oh! I wish I could see that dear darling in plain, ordinary dress," said Jack, warmly. "But poor Morg had a good deal to say for himself."

"He was moored affected at a meeting with the darlint. But she's a brave woman, she's makin' herself as calm as a slumner night herself not a word said, as ye kin hear, if ye listen, in that kind of way."

"The fair steamer was coming across the rocks." "Waller said," Jack repeated, half abstractedly. But he took up a handful and looked at it closely.

"Ben and Jack smoked away in silence for several minutes, and having sunned and aired themselves for a half hour, they arose to go up to McBirney's shanty to see how Morg was getting along."

"Who's that coming down the trail?" asked Jack, pointing down the gulch, where a dim object was moving into sight.

"It's a woman!" said Jack Leslie, with some excitement, his discovery. "Yes, pard, it's a woman, picking her way over the rocks down the old trail."

THE POWER OF IMAGINATION

Imagine who will work wonders. This fact was well illustrated in a Church street store where the evening and victims were many...

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.

"I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling. "I'm glad to see you," said Jack, smiling.
