A NOTED CHARACTER.

Iowa Whisky Seller Whose Fame National We herewith present a picture of a noted Iowa character, known as "Stormy Jordan." He keeps a salson in Ottumwa, Ia., which a number of years ago he called "The Road to Heal." The saloon was in the basement of a railroad eating house. Once, when on the witness stand, Jordan was saked his occupation. He said he sold "nose paint." He has had a hard tussle with the prohibitory law and had been fined paint." He has had a hard tussie with the prohibitory law and had been fined and refined; has been in prison and been pardoned out, conditioned that he wouldn't sell again. He violated the pardon issued by Gov. Larrabee, and for the past two years has been selling nose paint as usual.

Jordan's name is "Kinzey," not "Stormy," and he claims to have spent a fortune in front of the bar before going behind it. He enjoys his present notoriety. The name of his salcon was given to it by Gen. J. B. Weaver, the noted greenbacker, while engaged in prosecuting Jordan many years ago for selling whisky in violation of law. Jordan has a family of several children and is noted for the large amount of good nature mixed with his cussedness.

The people's remedy for the cure of coughs, colds, asthma, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup, influenza. whooping cough, incipient consumption, is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the old reliable. Price 25 cents. To promptly and permanently cure rheu-matism or neuralgia use Salvation Oil. Price 25 cents.

-The laws of health are taught in the shools; but not in a way to be of much ractical benefit and are never illustrated by living examples, which in many case might easily be done. If some scholar o had just contracted a cold was brough ere the school, so that all could hear th he thin white coating on the tongu rofuse watery discharge from the nose of one of them would ever forget wha he first symptoms of a cold were. The cholar should then be given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely, that all might see hat even a severe cold could be cured in ne or two days, or at least greatly mitigat irst symptoms appear. This remedy is fa-nous forit's cure of coughs, colds and croup. t is made especially for these diseases, and s the most reliable medicine known for the purpose. 50 cents a bottle, for sale by D. H. Consumed-Features of Eng-lish Railroading.

The London & Northwestern Railway Company's engine "Charles Dickens," built at the company's works, Crewe, in February, 1882, or rather over nine years of age, completed her millionth mile a short time ago. During this period, says the London Pall Mall Budget, she has been running daily between Manchester and London (Sundays excepted), covering the journey in four and a quarter hours, a distance of 1834 miles. Timed to leave Manchester at 8:30 a. m., she calls at Stockport, Stoke, Rugby, Blisworth and Willesden, finally arriving at Euston at 13:45. Having discharged her valuable cargo, she is conveyed to the shed at Camden, there to be cleaned, coaled, oiled and thoroughly overhauled ready for the return journey.

Returning from Euston at 4 o'clock p. m., she calls at the same stations, with the exception of Blisworth, a call at Lichfield being made in lieu. Arriving at Manchester at 8:15, she completes a hard day's run of 367 miles, apparently none the worse and greatly to the credit of her engineer. Two drivers, with their stokers, are provided for this engine, working the journey upon alternate days, the strain upon one man day after day being considered too much. A driver named Mills has been running with the engine since the commencement, but his fellow driver filled The London & Northwestern Railway

In construction this engine is typical of many running upon the same system, being what is generally known in engineering phraseology as a six feet six four-wheel, coupled passenger engine; in length about fifty feet, and weighing about thirty-three tons, with an additional twenty-five tons for the tender, which is constructed to car-

The amount of coal consur is traveling forces the water up by the aid of the scoop into the engine tank, thereby saving an immense amount of time, trouble and inconvenience over the old method of stopping the train to take in water. Up to quite recently the London & Northwestern was the only railway that worked upon this system. These water troughs are about 500 yards long, and there are three sets between London and Manchester, one between Pinner and Bushey, another between Castlethorpe and Bletchley, and the third between Tamworth and Lichfield. An engine of this description, starting out with her tank fully charged with water, would probably run with safety fifty miles before replenishing. The average load is about nine or ten carriages, and her highest speed has been known to attain seventy miles an hour when the road is exceptionally favorable; but her average speed would be about forty-five miles an hour. In conclusion, it may not be out of place to remark that the same railway consumes some three thousand tons of coal daily for its two thousand tons of coal daily for its two thousand railway consumes some three thousand tons of coal daily for its two thousand five hundred engines, while twenty thousand tons of water are boiled every
