to the popular vote system, the following was agreed upon as a compromise.

Resolved, first. The nominations for congress in this congressional district, shall be made by a delegate nomination convention to consist of fifteen delegates from each county, according to the present system now in force, the said delegates from each county to be elected by the method now provided. Each delegate in convention shall vote the choice for congress of the sub-district from which he was elected as expressed by the vote of said district, for at least ten successive ballots, provided the choice of his district so leng remains a candidate before the convention. After said ten ballots each delegate shall be absolutely tree and at liberty to vote for the person who in his opinion will prove the best acceptable candidate for the district.

the best acceptable candidate for the district.

Resolved, second. That each candidate for congress at least two weeks previous to the Republican primary election in the respective counties, shall send to the chairman of each county committee in the district a notice that he is a candidate for congress and upon the payment of the necessary fees said shall be considered a candidate to be voted for in that county. Without a compliance with this rule or resolution votes in the said county shall not be counted for the candidate thus failing to announce.
