This planet, which we call Earth, and the planets that we name Venus and Jupiter were very nearly in line last Saturday night. The spectacle, if you looked towards the southwest sky at that time you would have seen the three brightest stars so close together as to almost form but one. The orbit of Venus is inside that of the Earth, but the orbit of Jupiter is larger than that of the Earth, and both are now on the other side of the Sun. Venus is not quite as large as the Earth; while Jupiter is many times larger—the largest of all the planets, the fastest in circumferential motion, and has over a million of miles away any given planet could have told you twenty years ago when the phenomenon of Saturday evening would happen.

Peace has its victories as well as war—but it seldom that so complete a victory is gained by any organization, as was that of Co. E 15 Reg. N. G. P. over the hearts and minds of the people of the Earth, and both are now on the other side of the Sun. In the case of Lucas vs. Bayshore, tried in Pittsburgh, last week, the defendant, a farmer living near Elizabeth amused the court considerably by exhibiting a novel method of keeping his accounts. He and Lucas had considerable business between them and Lucas claimed there is still a balance due him. Bayshore denied this and produced his accounts. They consisted of a number of small sticks on which he had made notches for each dollar he owed. When he paid a bill he broke off a section of the stick containing the number of notches equal to the number of dollars he owed. He exhibited the sticks he had kept with Lucas' accounts and stated that all the notches to his credit had been broken off.

The End of "Fitz."

F. C. Fitzsimmons, confined in a cell in the New Orleans jail, cut his throat last Thursday morning and died that night. The knife used was a small surgeon's knife that he kept concealed in the lining of his vest.

Before going to the morgue the picture of his little daughter in his pocket and gazed at it affectionately for a minute or two, kissing it when he thought he was not observed. As he lay with his head covered to have lost all hope. He asked a keeper for some paper and he spent a few minutes in writing. Then he remarked that he didn't get much sleep last night and he would lie down for a short time.
