the exposed together, that the jury in the case, the Republicans of the county, have full knowledge of what they are now asked to do?

Let us look at these political co-partners as they stand to-day. If there he a self confessed, self convicted traitor in the Republican camp that man is J. Donald Cameron—and had Matthew Stanley Quay been true to his party, and true to as capable and party of can administration as the Republican party has yet given the country, Cameron would not now have a vote in the Senate, to the disgrace of the party; and with which to antagonize the administration and favor his southern friends. And what excuse do Quay's friends make for the action of himself, his friends and on sixty-nine as present, and in the official records of the Senate. There was no mention that in the official records of the Senate. There this dot the extent of their ability in the other country in 1800, and Townsend in Bea.

Most of the Republicans mentioned are undoubtedly honest and sincer in their views, though, in our opinion, misled and mistaken. Others, however, are not so frank, 1f there is one of the senate on August and on sixty-nine roll calls he was recorded this wall be a fine the recount in the official records of the Senate. There does not be a fine the firmeds are to did to the extent of their ability in the other ability in the other ability in the other ability in the other country is 1800, and Townsend in the official records of the Senate. There does not be a first the country of the content of the interests of no ther state soft in the soft party and with a first the same district.

A M.B. Quay is first the private of the distribusing the same of Judge Agnew, forgetting that no man in this State ever wrote a more scattling denunciation and flavor his southern friends. And was otherwise absent the time the these than the time the twent of the there is the this to the senate of the same of the same of the same of the state licans of the State were indignant office of County Surveyor was omitted, at the time the Senate committee was considering the matter. They were both absent also when the committee was considering the iron and steel schedule, and when they did seek to prevent the large reductions in that schedule they were too late, as the committee had already done late, as the committee had already done reductions in that schedule they were too late, as the committee had already done was under consideration and Mr. was absent and could not be found, and, while the same item in the metal schedule necessary, a provision for changing the rules.

Still another cancus was called to hear the report of that committee and still both the Pennsylvania senators absented themselves, and refused to take any part with their Republican associates to secure the passage of both the election and tariff bills. Instead of acting with the Republican senators in this matter Mr. Quay displayed his epposition by introducing a proposed amendment to the rules for the express purpose of excluding the consideration of the bill providing for honest elections.

called in the Press to the refusal of the Pennsylvania senators to confer with their associates in caucus, and Mr. Cameron thinking that it might injure him in his candidacy for re-election, sought to meet this criticism by inviting the Republican senators to hold a caucus at his house to consider the subject. The invitation was accepted. The caucus was held at Mr. Cameron's house and an agreement reached. consider the subject. The interest considering accepted. The caucus was held at Mr. Cameron's house and an agreement reached that the rule should be changed or that the Republican senators should continue in session until the tariff bill was passed. Quay did not attend that caucus either, and both he and Cameron afterward repudiated or refused to carry out the agreement made at that caucus.

All this time Mr. Quay was almost in daily consultation with Mr. Gorman and other Democrats, and everybody knew that his influence, as well as that of Mr. Cameron, was being exerted with deadly effect against the bill for honest elections, and therefore against any rule which would secure the passage of that bill as well as the tariff bill.

CONTINUOUS OPPOSITION.

Not only did Cameron and Quay delay the passage of the bill at the beginning but they kept up their opposition in that respect almost to the very end.

On September 8, when Mr. Aldrich and his committee found it necessary to have evening sessions to facilitate the passage of the bill, the sommittee was immediately antagonized by Cameron and Quay. Mr. Quay was the only man in the Senate to raise an objection to the evening session. The vote on the report to change the vote stood 48 in favor of the evening session to 13 against it, and among the 13 were Cameron and Quay.
