Law Judge.

The time is drawing near at hand when the people of this district will be called upon to make choice of a Law Judge, to serve them upon the Bench for the next 10 years. This is an important duty, for above all other positions of trust in the gift of the people, this one is the most ered. In a great measure a Judge holds the keys of the lives and liberties of the over whom it is given him to set in judg-ercise of the power conferred upon him by the dead letter of the law he is called upon to administer, a living power in the and directions of the law laid down for his

The execution of the law in a grea measure partakes of the temperament and ition of the Judge who administer it. It may, in its execution, be tempered with mercy, or it may be administered with the cold hand of severity.

It is therefore important to the people to know the character, temperament and disposition of the man they are to select for such an important position. Certainty in the execution of the law is more to be

His record as a law maker, has given him a thorough knowledge of our Statatary laws. His record as a law propension of our Statatary laws. His record as a law propension of the position. Added to these essential qualifications he possesses a mild, but firm temperament, and a good disposition, which are elements of character that cannot be too highly prized in a Judge. The people know him and have trusted him. He has never betrayed their trust and considence. No man who has served in as many capacities in public life, has fewer personal enemies than he. He is a man of honor and distinction, and is highly regarded by the members of his profession. He leaves no wounds upon those with whom? he comes in contact.

His qualifications, honor and integrity have not been impeached. He is in every way worthy of the position, and of the voic of every good citizen of the district. By easting your votes for him you instruct to the district and upright Judge.

The property sufficient believes to the submitted of th The importance of a protective tariff the material wealth, growth and prosperi ade or even a low tariff, can only be rightly understood and appreciated by an examination of the results of the applicaon of these two policies to the business and commercial interests of the country, as shown by the light of facts written into our history as a Nation and as a people Whilst our forefathers were struggling free themselves from the galling yoke of political tyranny to which the Mother untry had subjected them, the Mother Country unwilling to yield to them the in ritable result of that fierce struggle, ught to fasten upon the American Colo nists a restrictive commercial policy which would in effect reduce their independence to unwilling tributary subjects. policy is found in the acts of Parliamen prohibiting under heavy penalties the im portation of machinery and skilled worknen into the American Colonies, and pro hibiting the exportation of all classes of manufactured articles from this country into Great Britain, for the discouragement of American manufactures. The fects of this ingenious commercial policy was sorely felt by the Colonies during and after their long struggle for independence. One of the primiary objects of the Mother Country in the establishment and maintainance of this policy against her ebellious Colonies was to keep the balance of trade in her favor, and thus to subject them to her commercial power and render their political independence worthless. How well the plan succeeded is shown by the fact that in one single year, 1771, the nanufactured importations from England alone to this country was $13,000,000, in excess of the value of the exportation from this country; and in the years 1784-5 the importations from England amounted only$9000,000from this country, making the alance of trade in favor of England and against this country $21,000,000. England was then as now a powerful commercial Nation devoted to skilled manufactures, and it was the effects of this policy upon the manufacturing and commercial inter-ests of this country, which impelled the leaders of the new Republic to invoke the law of self protection to free themselves from the commercial tyranny forced u pon them by the Mother Country during their unequal struggle for liberty, and to declare
