USE FOR SCRAP TIN.

A Good Way of Making Wire Fence Visible to Live Stock.

One great objection urged against the use of both barbed and plain wire for fencing is the liability of injury to stock by running into it, simply because the wires are so small as not to be readily seen.

This objection is overcome by the use of scrap tin, as shown in the engraving. It is best, however, to take the scraps from the shop and at your leisure cut them into the desired form.

Many of them will be found of the triangular shape, with one end slenderly pointed, all ready for attaching to the wire by simply closely wrapping the pointed end twice about the wire.

From one corner, and closely pressed to the wire with a pair of pliers. Five or six pieces attached to the top wire, between each post, will prove more useful when horses and cattle are pastured than if the same number were distributed over all the wires.

On barbed wire the tin scraps will remain where placed, while on plain wire they will be blown away by the wind if work them toward the post; hence, on the latter, wrap them as closely as possible, using pliers freely.

They should be of uniform size, or sorted over each of nearly the same size placed in each section. Thus they will present a neat appearance, and if applied regardless of uniformity, where scrap tin is not obtainable, old tin fruit cans, pails or pans may be used.—American Agriculturist.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT.

Thirty-Five Foreign Nations Represented at the Chicago Exposition.

In exhibitions of the past the agricultural department has been neglected, but in this year's exposition it will not only be a fine exhibit by each of the states of the union in this department but thirty-five foreign nations will receive greater attention.

American methods will be shown near those of France, Chile, Liberia and Japan. The United States experimental station will be adjacent to that of France.

Both of these will show the methods of analyzing, testing and advancing agricultural methods and products.

The following list of foreign nations that have had space assigned them, with the number of square feet each occupies, will give some idea of the scope and magnitude of the foreign exhibit in this department:

POST-HOLE CROWBAR.

Why This Tool Should Be Found on Every Farm.

The crowbar is a tool that should be found upon every farm. For making holes for post driving, for making up the sides of cuts of heavy earth, it is quite indispensable.

The drive-wheel shaft of an old mowing machine will make a very serviceable bar. Four-and-a-half feet long is a convenient length.

The lower end should be pointed with a steel and hardened, and will be found to be a most useful tool.
