What a Girl Saw at the Fair.

A jolly Butler girl—pretty and clever—the kind that Butler is noted for—sends us the following:

I want to tell you how two Butler girls visited the World's Fair and succeeded in "doing the Fair" without getting lost. After resting from the effects of our long trip, we were fresh for our first visit to the Fair grounds. Our first view of the White City was obtained from Lake Michigan on board the steamer Duluth, which landed us at the pier near the Krupp Gun exhibit.

An Unconstitutional Law.

Judge Harmon Yerkes, sitting at the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of Berks county at Doylestown, lately, decided that the State law of June 12, 1893, forbidding the imprisonment of event of criminals under sixteen years of age with older ones, is unconstitutional.

Among the sharp sentences in Judge Yerkes' opinion on this inconsistent law are these:

"It is quite probable that this act became a law through inadvertence. It represents humanitarianism gone mad, and is so clumsily drawn that it is next to impossible to understand its clear meaning."

"Some of the worst criminals known to the law are persons under sixteen years of age. Frequently they are found in the company of other criminals engaged in the perpetration of crimes of the highest grade, often displaying a capacity for leadership, and in the advance of those in whose company they are caught. Yet, under the second section of this law, all such cases must be tried at Courts held separate and apart from the regular Courts."

"The whole effect is to embarrass and defeat the prompt administration of justice. We regard the act as unconstitutional, and therefore decline to direct that separate and closed Courts shall be held for the trial of either class of persons named in it, or to direct that the county shall purchase a new set of dockets for the purpose of recording therein the proceedings of such separate and exclusive Courts."

"A Frenchman declares that vegetation can be aided by electricity. Potatoes planted in the path of electric currents grew more luxuriantly and earlier than those planted in the path of ordinary currents. Some ripen eight days before the others."
