Washington Notes

In the Senate, Thursday, Sherman made a speech on tariff and finances, he ridiculed the compromise tariff measure now before the Senate and said that the refineries had written the sugar schedule, that distress would follow the adoption of the bill.

On Friday it was said that Cleveland would not sign the compromise tariff bill, if it passed both houses, as he considers it a violation of the party pledges.

The records of our country show that in the year 1802 there was more general activity from one end of the country to the other than in any previous year.

The wages of the country of all classes were never as high as in 1802. The wages of the year 1802 were never as high as in 1802.

On Wednesday the House by a vote of 170 to 102, voted down the Cox amendment providing for the unconditional repeal of the tax on State bank notes.

An ugly riot occurred at McKeesport Tuesday. About 240 of the employees of the National Tube Works, returned to work that morning and resumed their old conditions.

The strikers who had been waiting impatiently all day for the others to abandon their strike, found themselves beset for the time and then they became desperate.

About a dozen of the workmen when they were driven from their shelter to the river and rowed themselves in a skiff to the other side.

The strikers were broken down with clubs, and both were compelled to crawl on their hands and knees and were generally driven back as though they were children.

The two men were beaten with clubs, and both were compelled to crawl on their hands and knees and were generally driven back as though they were children.

The Only Remedy

So many persons being unemployed, and in a state of dire distress, it is evident that there is something radically wrong somewhere, and people naturally want to know the cause and the remedy. The man interested in the production of silver, says the cause of the trouble is the metal itself, and the remedy is the free and unlimited coinage of silver.
