Another counterfeit $2 United States silver certificate has turned up.

With a portrait of William Windom, and a small scalloped seal. The note appears to have been printed from a wood-cut plate.

The Treasury numbers are heavier than the genuine, poorly formed, and are broken instead of pink. The seal is brick red instead of pink, and the color shows on the back of the note.

The portrait of Windom is very poor, having a distorted appearance. The note is altogether bad.

It is not generally known that the nickel-in-the-slot machine, which is the modern new idea, was really in use before the Christian era.

More than two thousand years ago, in the country of the Nile, temples were provided with vessels from which perfumed water would be poured into a hole through an opening or slot. They were described by Hero, of Alexandria, who lived about 117-51 B. C.

In his "Pneumatics," from which we quote: "When the coin was dropped through the slit it fell on one end of a balance, horizontal lever, which was depressed, opened a valve, suspended by a chain at the other end, and the water began to flow. When the coin fell off, and the lever being weighted, returned to its seat and cut off the supply."

Patrick Flynn, a well known broom manufacturer, residing near Marietta, will, in the month of August, get rid of the destructive English sparrow, which had been accustomed to devour his broom seed, and destroy his patches of barley, which grow so luxuriantly on his farm along the river.

He had been informed that the game had a strong propensity for alcoholic tastes, so he procured a gallon of whiskey, in which he soaked a peck of wheat. He scattered the wheat about in the field where the birds were wont to feed, and soon hundreds of them were eagerly feasting on the favored food.

In a short time the sparrows began to show signs of hilarity by jumping and fighting, and in a few minutes scores had tumbled over on the ground in a state of stupor. Mr. Flynn says that he and a neighbor picked up over a hundred birds, and took home a number sufficient to make pot-pie for dinner. While some of the birds would recover, if undisturbed, most of them were killed outright from the effects of the strong liquor. He did not, however, allow many of them the chance of regaining consciousness.

"It is a great wonder to me," said the "Old Salt," "that more people do not take what I consider to be the pleasantest outing that man can enjoy, and a sacred concert on Sunday. Sunday will be spent in either Butler or Franklin. The home team feels confident of winning a majority of the games played abroad."

Oil Notes. Charles Hazlett has a good well on the Brice Martin farm near Whitstown.

J. S. Hays & Co. struck a good well on the Lav. Shearer farm, near Whitstown, on Monday last. The well is about 100 feet deep, and has a flow of about 100 barrels of water per day.

An oil property sale, made some weeks ago and not yet noted, was that of part of the Muddyfield field, 14 wells, to Rita and Walter for $35,000. Marion Henshaw and his partner cleared $25,000 each on this property.

Patterson & Sohn are building a rig on the Whiskeyman farm near Saxenburg.

David Baumgardner, one of the crack wheelmen of this county, started on Monday for a trip east. He expects to be gone two weeks and will take in Philadelphia and other points on his wheel.

The Butler boys are "playing good ball" this year. The game they are to play here Saturday afternoon with the famous Uniontown club will undoubtedly be a very interesting one.

The danger of placing posts with sharpened ends anywhere, was illustrated in Penn. twp. a few days ago, when a horse was thrown by a post which protruded through by an accident, and almost instantly killed.

It was hot enough here last week, but at some points in the west, it was hotter. At Kansas City the mercury registered 98 last Thursday, at St. Joseph, Mo. 100, in the shade at Sioux City, Iowa, at Omaha, etc. The intense heat scorched the crops, and caused prairie and forest fires.

One of the weapons used by the Chinese in war, is the "stink pot." It is an earthen vessel containing sulphur and foul-smelling substances. It is very effective against wooden ships, but an improved form of this missile is likely to be introduced in European warfare if the bullet-proof armor comes into general use.

"Venom" the medicine man has a wonderful voice. We recently heard him speak at a distance of over a mile and could tell distinctly what he said. He leaves for Leechburg, Pa., but other members of the firm will take his place here. He impressed all as a clever, honorable gentleman.

There are a number of well bred horses in training at the Fair Grounds, as follows: Alonzo McCandless of Lima has his horse, Storm Bird, by, but Ramsey Byers has Jacob's horse Ogle Boy, and a colt by Hal Bird, owned by Frank Cheers of Glade Run. They are all in good condition and going nicely.
