Money---Quantity and Quality. It is a current complaint of the Populists that there is not enough money in day nine others minor state officers and the country to carry on the business of three—New York, South Carolina and Cal Dayton's majority over Wilson will be the country. But the public records show | ifornia-voted upon constitutional amendthat the circulation per capita was larger last year than it had been at any time since 1860, and it has not been reduced since last year. It is evident that it is not lack of money in the hands of the people that has caused the recent fall in prices for the amount of circulation is now greater in proportion to the population than it was when high "war prices" ruled. And not only is the amount of circulation now much larger than then, but its quality is better, for every dollar of it is now practically "as good as gold" and will bring its face value in gold. It is in fact this good quality of our present circulation to which the Populists seem really opposed, for their pet project —the free coinage of silver—would soon drive gold out of circulation and bring the remaining currency down to the price of silver. In other words, while immediately reducing the volume of circulation it would at the same time cut down the purchasing power of what was left. This would not be an increase of the circulation, but an actual and large reduction of it at a time when the Populists insist that its increase is greatly needed. There never was concocted a scheme more certain to defeat the professed objects of its projectors than this Populist proposition for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. There is in the country to-day about 600 million dollars in silver. Each of the silicans to the Legislature, but the ver dollars coined in fact contains but litaty continues Democratic by about the more than fifty cents worth of metal; but under the statutory pledge of the Gover county gives the State ticket ernment each one of them will buy onewould at once destroy the popular faith in the Government's pledge, and the purchas-ing power of the silver dollar would sink to its bullion value. Our 600 millions of silver dollars would then buy only about 300 million dollars worth of property, and it would be necessary to double the number of silver dollars to give that currency as much aggregate purchasing power as it has now. In the nature of things it would take some time to double our silver coin age, and when that had been done we should be no better of in that respect than we are now. But in other respects, and long before that was done, we should be much worse off. The adoption of such a silver policy would at once drive out of circulation the 500 million dollars of gold now in the country, and to replace this we should need another 1,000 millions of silver 50cent "dollars" to give the metal currency as much purchasing power as now. Bu we should need more than this, for the pa per currency now based on gold would then be reduced one-half in purchasing power, and it would be necessary to double that also if we would avoid an actual shrinkage of circulation. In fact, we should have to double up our present to tal circulation of about 1,600 million dol lars to give the country as much effective currency as we have to-day. While the Government mints and presses were struggling with this job the country would be suffering from a lack of currency, a derangement of values and a paralysis of ess such as it has never yet known And the net result of it all would be that the present great fortunes of the silver producers would be vastly increased, the wages of all workers would be greatly re duced in value, the savings and investments of all thrifty citizens would be cu down one-half and debtors would be able under the cover of law, to cheat their creditors out of half their dues.

No doubt many-not all-of the mer who are now favoring the free coinage o cheap silver are honest in their belief that it would benefit the country; but a little sober reflection must enable them to see that diluting the currency will not increase its effective value any more than the dilu tion of milk will add to the value of that fluid. The real value of what we call

"money" lies in its purchasing power, and no government on earth is strong enough to greatly modify that power. The law may enable men to cheat their creditor out of a part or the whole of their dues but it can never enable any man to buy property at half its market value. The good quality of a currency is important but the stability of its quality is the mos essential point, for there is no scheme for robbing the people more certain and rapid in its operation than that of debasing the
