"How Many Toes Has a Cat?"

This was one of the many question sked of a certain class during examination week, and simple as the question ap pears to be, none could answer it. In the emergency, the principal was applied to ECZEMA, TETTER for a solution, and he also, with a good natured smile, gave it up, when one of the teachers, determined not to be beaten by so simple a question, hit on the idea of getting out a delegation of boys to scour he neighborhood for a cat. When this idea was announced the whole class wanted to join in the hunt. Several boys sent out, and soon returned successful. A returning board was at once appointed and the toes counted, when, to the relief of all, it was found that a cat possesses 18 toes, 10 on the front feet and eight on the hind feet .- Our Dumb Animals.

Royalties

One of the incentives for inventors to seare patents on their inventions is the possibillity that a handsome income may be derived therefrom in the shape of royalties. In the art of photography, where the manufacture of sensitized dry plates on a large scale has come to be an ex tensive industry, successful plate-coating er products is fully half greater than it machines command a good royalty. An item in the English journal Optician states alty twenty of his patented plate coating machines at a yearly rental of $500 per machine. One company uses five of them Mr. Edwards was a photographer, knew the needs, of the business and applied himself that it would no longer pay to his inventive ingenuity, finally accomp lishing a succes ful result. How many thousands there must be, having inventive talent, who could improve the machinery in the lines of industry they are familar with, to the betterment of mankind generally andthemselves individually The example of Mr. Edwards is only one f many, where success is attained in the invention of practical and needful improvements, and should inspire others to make use of their inventive talents.

Animal Humbugs.

In military stables horses are known to have pretended to be lame in order to void going to a military exercise. A himpanzee had been fed on cake when sick; after his recovery he often feigned oughing in order to procure dainties. The cuckoo, as is well known, lays its eggs in another bird's nest, and to make the deception surer it takes away one of the other bird's eggs. Animals are conscious of their deceit, as shown by the fact that they try to act secretly and noiselessly; they show a sense of guilt if detected; they take precautions in advance to avoid discovery; in some cases the manifest regret and repentance. Thus, smaller skins are annually imported to be bees which steal hesitate often before and punishment. A natualist describes how luced at home, the tanner manages to his monkey committed theft. -A Meadville merchant followed a mar r each day and use a train load of bark and his family to the railroad station, and as they were about to get on the cars and go to a picnic and have fun all day, the merchant demanded of the man that he pay a bill of long standing that he had been repeatedly asked to pay, and that h had not paid because, as he said, he had no money. The merchant saw the fine clothes the man and his family wore, saw the big picnic basket filled with luncheon ver known has been so rich in tannic acid saw that the man had money to buy excursion tickets for himself and familyand not the first time this summer-and naturally he came to the conclusion that if the man had money for these things he ought to have money to pay his bills-he ought to have money to pay his hones lebts. Therefore he tackled him in th presence of a large crowd of spectator and his voice was not low and soft like the cooing of a dove, but pitched in a high key so that men heard it and marveled thereat, and spake one to the other and said: "Lo, he has a nerve, a great gall has he, that he goeth on the junket with
