South Diamond, Butler, Pa. To begin at the beginning, I must go back to my youth in New Orleans. I was in love with a beautiful young girl." Here he pressed his wife's hand, and she returned it, as though to say that she understood. "I think I need not mention the name of Rose's mother, Mr. Neuilly, unless you have already done betrayed the secret," said the old man. "I did not suppose that you had, for I know you to be a true man, though I have never met you before. This state-ment may surprise you, but it is true. I am not the man for whom you take me. He is now in a lunatic asylum, while I am his consin. I know it is sup-posed that I am the crazy man, but that is an error, promulgated by the Montalbon to serve her own ends. The facts then are thus: While a boy at school I loved my girl companion, little Rose's mother. Just before I left the south to enter Harvard, I told my little sweetheart-she was then but 15-that I would marry her upon my return. This was my first love and hers. I had a consolder than myself by ten years handsome and wealthy, but a gamble and addicted to heavy drinking. This woman Montalbon, as you know, kept a gambling den, and naturally my un a gambling den, and naturally my un-fortunate cousin was a constant visitor at the house. One night, while intoxi-cated with wine, she persuaded him to marry her, a clergyman being called in and a ceremony privately performed. He became entirely sober only after sev-eral days had passed and then had en-

She even suggested a bride, none other than my little sweetheart. Her object in this was twofold, money and revenge. By leading my cousin into a bigamous alliance, with her own marriage certificate as a weapon, she could readily extort money from him. Her revenge was to be against the family of my little sweetcould readily extor heart, against whom she thought she had a grievance. Her plotting was en-tirely successful. My cousin was handsome, I was away, and once he had become thoroughly acquainted with the young creole's charms he became so artor that at longth she list it died.' That was the Montalbon's lie. The little girl lived, and she took it. I have made a will in favor of my child, leaving her all my wealth; you will find it in my coat. Oddly enough, I named you as executor. I knew that you had loved the mother, though, as God is my judge, I did not know it when I married her. But I am ready if you are.' "Thus we stood up and fired at each other. The startling news just received made my aim bad, for instead of hitting him in the heart, as I could easily have done, my bullet struck him in the head. He fell, and I rushed toward him, to discover whether he was badly hurt. He was bleeding profusely, and I hasti-ly bandaged up the wound and so stop-ped the flow of blood. I then went on to the next mining camp beyond. We returned with a litter, and took him back. There was a man among us who claimed that he had studied medicine, and he attended my cousin. He removed the bullet, and found that the wound was not very deep, but the skull was fractured. He was ill for two months, and then slowly recovered his health. But his reason was entirely gone. I took him to New Orleans and placed him in an asylum, and there he has been ever ognized me, and he knew the guilty man. However, we will take that up later. I have no fear of not proving my identity. Too many people in New Or-leans know me. To continue my tale, I determined to get possession of the child. I knew that the Montalbon would resist and that I would find it difficult to prove my story. More than all, I knew that I could not obtain legal pos-session of her without disolosing the sesession of her without disclosing the se-cret of her birth, which I wished to avoid for her own sake as well as for avoid for her own sake as well as for her mother's. I therefore stole her open-ly in the streets. Detectives were sent ont to search for me, but perhaps Mr. Barnes will testify that I am not much afraid of detectives. Perhaps, too, he will understand better now why I know something about detective methods. I led them a dance for two years, until in disgust thay abandoned the search disgust they abandoned the search. Then I went abroad, for I must tell you

CHAPTER XVI.

MR, BARNES DISCOVERS A VALUABLE CLEW. Immediately after the wedding Mr. Mitchel and his bride started west, in-tending to spend their honeymoon in the Yosemite valley, having promised Mrs. Remsen and Dora, however, to join them in the White mountains before the end of the season. About the 1st of July the Remsens and the Van Rawl-stons went to Jefferson, N. H., a small stons went to Jefferson, N. H., a small town along the base of the Pliny range of mountains, from which a magnificent view of the Presidential range, only ten miles away, is to be obtained. About the middle of the month Mr. Randolph determined to visit the same place and was intensely disgusted on alighting from the stage, which reaches the Waumbeck hotel about 8 o'clock at Alphonse Thauret. It was evident that his rival did not intend to lose any chance to win the hand of Dora Remsen. If one has anything of the artistic in his nature, he could scarcely fail to enjoy himself at Jefferson. The town is practically a single road, well up the side of the mountain range. Thus the hotels all look out over a long and beautiful valley. From the piazza of the Waumbeck, on a clear day, no less than 35 mountain peaks can be easily count-ed, the Green mountains over in Ver-mont being visible as a distant line of blue and not in the total.

Of course the most conspicuous and most admired peak is Mount Washington. One who has not visited the region might suppose that he would soon be-come sated with the sight of the same come sated with the sight of the same mountains day after day. This is a great error. All the mountains, and especially Mount Washington, are ever presenting new aspects. All changes of atmosphere produce corresponding variations. The shadows of passing clouds, the effects at empties or at supset the moonlight, the suncise or at sunset, the moonlight, the partly cloudy weather when the top of the mountain is hidden, the mists and the rain, all offer such totally different coloring and picturesque effects that the artistic eye is never tired. artistic eye is never tired. Dora was an artist in every fiber of her being, as one would know who lis-tened to her talking to Mr. Randolph half an hour after his arrival, as they sat together on the piazza. In his delight to be with her and to hear her, he would have forgotten the very existence of Mr. Thauret were it not that he sat near them in the rotunda at the end of the piazza, and so shared the entertain-
