A Pittsburg paper of last week noted an odd case as follows: Lawyer Oliver D. Thompson who obliged Joseph F. Weaver a waiter at the Pittsburg Club, about a year ago, by identifying him at the Columbia National Bank, so that he could get a draft cashed for $1,064, will have to pay the money with interest.

The suit against Lawyer Thompson was brought by Mrs Margaret C. Blake. She was a client of Lawyer O. P. Scaife, Jr. also a member of the club, and sent him a draft through the mail. It had not been properly indorsed and Scaife wrote her a letter telling her to fix it up and return. Weaver was given the letter to mail, but instead kept it, forged Mrs. Blake's name and got Lawyer Thompson to identify him at the bank. Weaver was sent to the penitentiary. He got as far as Newark, N. Jefore being airested. Mrs. Blake entered suif for the amount of the draft with interest, and the jury rendered a verdict against Thompson.
