THE CITIZEN

A Trip To Alaska.

(Harrisburg Teiegraph.)
From what Gossip has been told he would imagine that Governor Sheakley, of Alaska, who, by the way, is from Mercer county, in this State, is or ought to be the best satisfied Governor in the United States. He has no Legislature to wer room is a large Russian stove, so ult into one corner of the room as to monopolize a large portion of the room and consume wood to a degree which would make our Forestry Commissioner shudder. The Executive chamber faces the fort and parade ground, and on the arrival of every steamer the Governor has a fine view of a game of base ball between the "Steamer picked nine" and an equal number of soldiers from the fort. Notwothstanding this prohibition it is evident that no small amount of intoxicants eventually reach Sitka and other Alaskan ports. Recently one of the coast steamers was damaged e of the coast steamers was damag ing on a rock, and in examini number of barrels of flour whi a large number of barrels of hour which formed a portion of the cargo it was found that a nice gallon keg of whiskey was nicely stowed away in the centre of each barrel and that the consignment was intended for one of the Jupeau druggists who also had a grocery store.

The tourist who remains a few days at Juneau, one of the largest towns in the territory, which furnishes all of the granb j urors for the Sitka courts, is surprised to note the large number of drug stores which line both sides of the street and which indicate that the drug business must be an excellent one there. The little folks love Santa Claus Much betier than the big ones do And so they should. For why? Because Old Santy seems to want them to.

Concerning Santa Claus

To little boys and girls he brings
A lot of sweet and pretty things
That fill their hearts with g'adness,
But to the old he carries cares,
A few more wrinkles and gray hairs,
And buckets full of sadness.

But when the little faces beam With joy and with affection,
The elder people catch the gleam
Of pleasure's bright reflection,
And they are happy just because
The little folks love Santa Claus.
