KEEPER OF CRAIGIE'S CUT

LETTER, when she looked over the cut, couldn't see the train at all—only a big black hole where the air had cooled.

THE ROCKING CHAIR SPINE.

An Affliction Resulting from Improper Posture.

"Weaver's thumb" and "housemaid's knee" are quite familiar terms, especially to those who are fond of pursuing their medical and hygienic, but the "rocking chair spine" is less talked of.

But it is none the less a clearly defined ailment, and one that often leads to serious consequences more serious than its primary condition might suggest.

Insolence and love of ease are the leading causes of this affliction, and genuine spine colic has in many instances been its unfortunate climax.

Strict hygienists and health culturists tell us that the rocking chair is an unwholesome piece of furniture, and that the equilibrium of the body and agitates the circulation. It injures the eyes, as it continually changes the focus of the eye, and it causes the head to be so disturbed that physicians have forbidden mothers and nurses to rock delicate babies.

It was Lettie. She dragged her in to the cab, and as soon as she could talk she told Jim that it was lost in the blizzard.

"We'll save him," said Jim, and the fireman agreed to help, and so did a dozen other men who had come down to help with the snow.

"That's right, and as good as a man he is, too!" came a gruff voice from the inner room.

"It's father," she whispered; "won't you step in and see him? He's very bad to have visitors."

Baxter had not yet recovered from his shock of surprise in finding that the blue-eyed girl who stood before him was really keeper of Craigie's cut, and he allowed himself to be led into the other room.

"I am the keeper," she answered; "my name is Lettie C. Doby, and I've had the place since father was injured last winter."
