JURY COMMISSIONER, A. O. EBERHART. HARRISBURG.

STATE TREASURER, JAMES S. BEACOM.

On Thursday the 2nd inst. Gov. Hastings sent his private Secretary to Sec'y of the Commonwealth Reeder at Easton with a note requesting his resignation; the two men met in Harrisburg Allegheny clast Wednesday and talked the matter worn the over, and as Hastings would not recede from his request Reeder wrote his resig-nation and the Governor accepted it.

Reeder's resignation is directly due to his signing a bond of indemnity to the state Treasurer for money paid to people who were not entitled to it. menting on the affair the Pitts-ourg Dispatch says: The disposition in some quartrers to treat the cause of the Governor's action n requesting this resignation as mystery emulates the tactics of the ostrich in hiding its head under the sand. The cause of the action is apparent to every man who keeps posted with fifty men in blue jeans blouses, intendregard to current events. It is that Secretary Reeder was a party aw, and for the benefit of political avorites, by joining in the signing of a the money. When a State icial has participated in such an unblushing raid on the State funds the request for his resignation is the mildest tment that can be accorded by a uperior with any conception of public Hastings has the same true appreciation of public duty in causing this hat he did in vetoing the original steal. It is taken as a matter of course that the resignation of Deputy Attorney General Elkin will follow. If the Reilling to bear the reputation of indors publican organization of the State is ing the raiding of the Treasury to pay the slightest color of law it will not be material whether Mr. Elkin retains his osition as Chairman of the party organion or not. It is to be regretted that similar power to call for the resignations of such officers as the State arer and Auditor General, who ated in the illegal use of publi nds, does not also lie with the Gover nor. But as there is little hope of that complete discipline the necessity of more nental work to divorce the Stat Treasury from the plunder of politics is

He was not the only signer, but it was his spe ortune in that capacity, like that of Deputy Attorney General Elkin that they were in the position of confi dential advisers of the Governor: they were members of his offical family their signatures implied a pledge of in nce to induce his approval of the padded pay roll appropriation; and it committing themselves to such a step whether thoughtlessly or not, whether under political constraint or not, they failed of a new and proposed 150 of their ons to their chief.

Gen. Hastings named Col. James H Lambert, Insurance Commissioner for the place, but Col. Lamburt declined lination was a suprise as it is paying office in the state government.

members, four Quayites and Governor Hastings. For apparently no other reason than to "get even" with the governor for the very proper dismissal of Secretary Reeder, the commission upset all the arrangements so far made, and s far as it is in its power violated the plighted faith of the State and subjected it to claims for damages. The com ing within the limit of $520,000 appro priated by the Legislature. Thirty plans were submitted and referred to a board of experts designated by the com, mission. Two plans were thrown out by the board as in violation of the pro posals, and it then considered the 28 re maining, spending 10 days in their ex amation. The board, as Governor Hastings says, included three of the most distinguished architects of the country It was selected to deal with technical matters of which the five members of the board, being politicians and office holders had no adequate knowledge This, it must be admitted, was a prope proceeding and precisely what any citizen contemplating an expenditure of half a million of dollars on a building

Their object is, evidently, to punish Quay for his faithlesness to them by defeating his friend Beacom, now on the regular Republican ticket. Previous to the meeting there was an anique street parade of some forty or

They marched from Sixth street bond to protect the Treasurer in illegally out Liberty to Sixth avenue, by Grant to Fifth and down Fifth to Market and the hall. Stops were made in front o some of the nswspaper offices where red fire was burned. They attracted a great deal of attention on Fifth avenue and when they reached the hall were cheered by the audience which had assembled there. The banners which were carried were placed around the hall and made an attractive addition to the decorations. Found to be Glanders.

(Pittsburg Times, of Monday.) Dr. R Jennings, Jr., veterinary surgeon who went to Butler county last Friday who went to Butler county last Friday to investigate a sensational story of a horse having glanders and communicating the disease to human beings, has returned and states that matters were even worse than at first reported. He says there seems to be no doubt that the diseased horse gave the awful disease to two people, who died a horrible death some days later. The horse was owned by Mrs. Mary Duncan, who keeps a small store in Butler, and the two dead were her son and daughter. Suits are promised against the man who sold Mrs. Duncan the horse. Dr. Jenning's story of the affair is as follows:

whatever upon the question. I have conceided to you, as I would to anyone, the right to think and act politically as he may deem best. This is proven by the fact that you have continued as two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer: and the wore have since the political differences arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer: and the wore have since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political years' and years' arose to which you refer and two years since the 'political differences' arose to which you refer and tw

"A few weeks ago James Duncan, 20 years old, and his sister Nettie, 16 years old, were taken suddenly ill. Their bodies became covered with a mass of discharging sores. They died soon after, within two weeks of each other. Drs. Graham, Byers and Hoover, prominent physicians of Butler, held a consultation and decided that the disease was glanders and that it was contracted from a horse. This horse was about nine miles out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young out of the town, on the farm of young the propers however, that, not only by your own admission to me, but by what seems to have been an authorhorse. This horse was about nine miles out of the town, on the farm of young Ducan's father-in-law. The girl was visiting on the farm, and she and her brother drove to a party. Both handled the horse in hitching and unhitching. A few days latter they become ill.

"I examined this horse Friday and found it in the worst stage of glanders. The case had evidently been chronic for a long time. I ordered the animal shot which was done. Bowser Bros., attorneys, of Butler, informed me that suit will be brought against the man who sold the horse to Mrs. Duncan. He is John W, Titley, of Millerstown, the former owner of the great pacer, Star Pointer."

One was over looked and was sold to a nan back of Mount Washington. That man back of Mount Washington. That horse lived to see every other one in the stable dead before the desease was discovered. People don't seem to realize what a te-rible thing it is. Leprosy and smallpox are nothing to compare with this desease. The physicians tell me that they never witnessed such horrible scenes as the deaths of young Duncan and his sister."

A strange fruit can be seen growing on a Maple tree in the yard of David Hoover of Mechanicsville, Pa. Last spring Mr. Hoover concluded to spray a plum tree which grew in close proxhalf a million of dollars on a building would have adopted. But in a fit of spleen and anger and a desire to "get even" the commission has by formal resolution "cancelled and annulled"the provisions of "the competitive program". Governor Hastings says of this action in the protest he filed that it will—

"Plunge this commission into a legal struggle of which we will not see the end during our terms of office, not one of us. This action will mean that we will have no capitol for the next Legislature; that we have turned our backs upon our word of honor, and that we specified.

"A short time ago which saw a sport time ago while looking over the maple he saw a builb-like growth that resembled egg plant and upon examination he discovered that the globe like productions were filled with a liquid resembling maple-syrup. The fruit grows in great profusion, hanging from the point of the branch by long slender stems. The fruit is of a rich dark wine color. The Miners' Strike.

The opponents of the settlement of the miners' strike at the 65-cent rate won a preliminary victory in the convention at Columbus yesterday; but after further argument the counsels of the national officials prevailed, and a much more decisive vote authorized the settlement, the strike to be continued in all districts not agreeing to that rate.—

This is a great victory for the miners they will now get the highest wages which it is possible for the operators to pay and also make anything out of the ousiness for themselves. Like every thing else now, labor does not command as high a price as it did several years

It is also a great victory for the prin inle of arbitration for the settlement of all disputes among any classes or states. The officials of the miners and operators deserve great credit for the peacable settlement of this general strike, one that was exceedingly difficult to manage. It is also a stunning blow to the calamity howlers who predicted all kinds of disasters to these United States because of the victory of the gold standard and Republican prin- W.,

In speaking of the dread disease, Dr. Jennings said: "There is no disease more horrible. It cannot be cured, and is is worse than leprosy. It acts much the same, but is quicker and more violent. The whole body becomes one mass of boil-like sores, and the victim suffers fearful agony. There is a difference of opinion as to the contraction of the disease, which is simply the worst form of blood poisoning. Some say it is infectious, others say it is contagious. When the microbe touches an opening in the skin the disease is sure to follow. There is no hope for the victim.

"This horse was one of those that could have the disease and communicate it to many other animals and human beings and still live to see them all die. Another case of the kind happened at McKeesport about 15 years ago. Fourteen horses were ordered to be killed. One was overlooked and was sold to a man back of Mount Washington. That
