obtained from this vein?
The South Side has a splendid water supply, obtained from wells drilled on the range of hills south of town. There are also many large springs of excellent water on these hills. We might mention the Boyd, Muntz and McClymonds springs. These facts lead us to believe that wells drilled on the big south hills would send up enough water to settle the question locally forever. Besides, hi that wells drilled on the big south hills would send up enough water to settle the question locally forever. Besides, the hills are so high that a reservoir on top of them would force the water to every part of town and to the tops of the highest buildings. If there was another reservoir as large as the present one, always full of water and ready to be drawn on for every need we believe there would be a veritable stampede of manufacturers to locate in Butler, for our town would then be an industrial ideal. We don't think our local Board of Trade would have to give any factory seeking a biding place more than one ry seeking a biding place more than one invitation, if in addition to Butler's other inducements, the Board could offer them plenty of water. Could the Board of Trade fulfill its mission in any better way than by seeking and finding more water?

Il Eastern Conference of the Pittsburg Synod (English Lutheran) is meeting at Zelienople this week.

Friday evening Rev. H. Wilson will give readings from Ben Hur, which he will illustrate with stereoptican veiws

A very pleasant, and at the same time very remarkable, reunion took place in Butler this week.

It was of the five Hazlett brothers—Leslie, Elias and George, visiting their brothers William and Thomas, of Butler.

They are children of Geo. M. Hazlett, They are children of Geo. M. Hazlett, and the preached here some weeks ago, while on his way to visit his mother who lives in York state. The election of Decome was postponed till next

This problem outweighs the school-building, fire-alarm and other present questions as lead outweighs chaff. We can't get along without more water, more water! And it would be acceptable to have an improved quality as well as an increased quantity. Now, how can Butler get more and better water, sufficient not only for ourselves, but to warrant a supply for any factory that chooses to locate here?

It is a well known fact that a vein of soft water lays one hundred feet, more or less, under the town. Many local households and establishments draw their supply from this. Why not find out if enough for general use could be obtained from this vein?

The South Side has a splendid water supply, obtained from wells drilled on tablishment, grading, paving and repairing side-walks and defining sinds of materials to be used pro-
