Worryin'.

"No more than I could run down Queen Charlotte Island, 'til this craft," replied the captain dolefully. "Time!" shouted the man on the bridge.

"All right, and so you have no temptation to play any tricks for the amount I understand is considerable. I will start at two and give you your packages. Two of my men will go aboard you, and two others will work the ferry between your craft and mine."

SLEIGH BELLS.

As Commonly Used as Ever—Some Changes in Customs. The sleigh bells of the past are made here, most of them in Connecticut, and many sleigh bells of American manufacture are exported to Germany and to Russia.

There have been some changes in sleigh-bell customs. Shaft bells and bells fixed on the saddle of the harness have to some extent taken the place of the old-fashioned sleigh bells.

Probably a third of the bells on sleighs now are of the kind that fasten to shafts or the saddle of the harness and two-thirds are strings of bells.

The bells exported are in about the same proportions. The bells attached to shafts and harnesses are open-mouthed and provided with tongues. Some shaft bells are made with all three in a set alike, others they are made in three sets, one for each shaft, one for the harness and one for the saddle of the harness.

Sleigh bells are made of bell metal, and they were never made with such care with a view to their sound-producing qualities as they are now.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

Some Suggestions Concerning the Use of Sleigh Bells. Make baby as free as possible. Don't swaddle its little, soft legs up in pinning blankets, but leave those legs loose, so they can kick about and grow strong and healthy.

It may seem old-fashioned and, according to the present-day etiquette, it is decidedly so, but it certainly does sound nicer to hear children say "yes, sir," and "no, sir," than to hear them say "yes" and "no" when asked a question.
