But perhaps the most striking feature of the memorable conference was the predominence of the soldier element. The Grand Army of the Republic and the Veteran Legion was really the mest conspicuous factor of the day. The presiding officer, General Koontz, is a veteran of the civil war, while the most prominent speakers were men who had come through the hall of bullets and listened to the he hall of bullets and listened to the shrick of shrapnel in the campaigns on the Potomac and in the valley of the Cumberland.

A DISTINGUISHED CROWD. A cold blooded and impartial study of the personnel of the gathering is the highest testimonial of its character. The machine papers and the bosses' organs over the state have endeavored organs over the state have endeavored to make it appear that the meeting was controlled by politicians who had advocated the election of Hon. John Wanamaker to the United States senate—that the bulk of those attending was composed of the disgruntled and disappointed. These pap fed journals state the truth when they say that the conference was composed of the discontented element in the Republican party. It was composed wholly of this element—of men who have become disgusted and discontented with the arrogant, selfish and corrupt mismanagement of the Republican party. It was not made up of sorehead politicians

Every man present was a distinguished representative of the community in which he lives; men who have given their time, money and voice to the party, and who out of self respect are now compelled to refuse to go the party, and who out of seir respect are now compelled to refuse to go hand in hand with political wreckers of the M. THE SOLDIER ELEMENT THERE.

Major Merrick was one of the vice presidents of the meeting, and delivered one of the most scathing speeches on bossism ever heard in Philadelphia. The Poor House Question.

Next Tuesday, -- FEBRUARY 15, 1898-- The Electors of Butler County will be Called upon to Vote on the Question of Whether or no we shall have a Poor Farm in Butler County. Below we give the Views of Some of our Citizens--Both in Favor of and Against it.

Harrisburg, Feb. 8.—The conference of Republicans from all parts of the state as the Bourse, in Philadelphia, on Wednesday last, which invited Hon. John Wanamaker to lead the fight against the bosses, is destined to become historic in Pennsylvania politics. It is but the statement of a plain truth to say that outside of a state convention no such meeting was ever held within the Republican party, all ranks and grades of men in business life work of the last legislature is abundantly sufficient to indicate the character of the conference was attended only by a handful of Philadelphians. There were no millionaires present. There were no millionaires present, but scores of farmers, and the conference was a tended only by a handful of Philadelphians. There were no millionaires present, but scores of farmers, and the conference was attended only by a handful of Philadelphians. There were no millionaires present, but scores of farmers, and the conference was attended only by a handful of Philadelphians. There were no millionaires present, but scores of farmers, and the conference was attended only by a handful of Philadelphians. There were no millionaires present, but scores of farmers, and the conference of opinion expressed, but it only served to more emphatically emphasize the free and untrammeled character of the gathering.

But perhaps the most striking featcharge of our duties and in the use and disbursement of the public funds in that behalf in case said election results in favor of a poor farm. Personally and as citizens and tax-payers, the action of three different Grand Juries taken from the great body a poor farm, the action of a majority of the boards of overseers of the poor of the various townships and boroughs of our county expressing themselves as in favor of a poor farm, the results in those counties of our state having poor farms for the care and keeping of their poor as contrasted with those counties which do not have a poor farm, as well as our own personal experience and observation combine to lead us to the conclusion that the purchase of a suitable farm by the county and the erection of proper and suitable buildings thereon and the proper conduct and management thereof, all on duct and management thereof, all on the buildings thereon and the proper conduct and management thereof, all on the buildings thereon and the proper conduct and management thereof, all on the buildings thereon and the proper conduct and management thereof, all on the buildings thereon and the proper conduct and management thereof, all on the buildings thereof commissioners, who will see buildings thereon and the proper con-duct and management thereof, all on good, sound business and economical principals affords the best, the cheap-est, the most humane and most satis-factory way and plan of properly keep-ing, cateing for and mantaining the in-digent poor and inspaced our county ing, careing for and mantaining the indige nt poor and insane-of our county.

So far as our public and official duties shall be concerned, in the event that the election results for a poor pursue the following general plan:

First. The purchase of a farm of not exceeding 200 acres of good land in the carteal peritor of the county, in an

ence of this character with the general assembly of 1897 should not be repeated; especially is this true since it is commonly understood that the present senior senator from Pennsylvania desires to be his own successor, for we believe that he, more than any other man, is responsible for the present corrupt condition of politics in our state."

The erection of good, substantial, permanent buildings of sufficient size and capacity to meet the present wants and needs of the county, and any probable increase during the next twenty of twenty-five years. These buildings should be warm, comfortable, convenient and suitable, furnished with all necessary conveniences and comment. We think such buildings could be erected, furnished and properly equipped and supplied at a cost of not exceeding $40,000 to $50,000, thus mak-ing the total cost of farm, buildings
