WAR RECORD

On Thursday 6,000 troops were landed at Baguay bay near Santiago, and while they were landing the battleships pitched shells into the batteries. A shell from a Spanish battery hit the Texas, and killed one man and wounded six.

On Friday a 1000 American Cavalrymen, dismounted, and with some Cubans, fought the Spanish in a woods five miles from Santiago. The Spaniards were driven out and back towards the city. The American loss was 17 killed and 30 wounded. The Spanish loss is not known but a dozen bodies were found in the woods.

The initial fight on Friday last of Col. Wood's rough riders and the troops of the First and Tenth regular cavalry will be known in history as the battle of La Quinza. It did not end in the complete slaughter of the Americans as was not due to any miscalculation in the plan of the Spaniards, for as perfect an ambush as was ever formed in the brain of an Apache Indian was prepared by the Spaniards. Col. Wood and his men walked squarely into it. For an hour and a half they held their ground under a perfect storm of bullets from the front and sides, and then Col. Wood, at the right hand, sent Col. Roosevelt at the left hand, and sent the enemy flying over the hills toward Santiago.

It is now definitely known that sixteen men on the American side were killed, while sixty were wounded or reported to be missing. The Spanish loss is not known, but it is known that the Spaniards were far heavier than the Americans, at least as regards actual loss of life. Already 37 dead Spanish soldiers have been found and buried, while many others undoubtedly are lying in the trenches and on the side of the gully and on the slope of the hill, where the main body of the enemy was located. The wounded were all removed.

By Monday 7,000 U. S. troops and 3,000 Cubans were encamped on the heights of San Juan, within sight of the hills around Santiago. The Spaniards withdrew within their line of defenses, which consist of trenches, guarded by barbed wire fences, with the brush cleared away for the width of a thousand yards. The roads were impassable and the Spaniards were not allowed to move.

On Tuesday a Spanish deserter said that the Spaniards lost 300 men killed, and a large number wounded in Friday's fight, and that Gen. Linerae had placed the ambulance.

Gen. Shafter was forming his lines about Santiago, there was skirmishing along the lines. The Spaniards were mounting guns on their forts taken from their ships.

It was reported at London that Admiral Camara's fleet was refused coal at the Suez canal, and would have to return to Spain.

The Spanish general August at Manila wired his government that the insurgents army numbers 120,000, some with guns and some with swords, and that Aguinaldo had summoned him to surrender.

Yesterday Shafter had his artillery ashore, and was making preparations for a move on Santiago. The Spaniards were on a sufficient supply of provisions.

Dewey wired that the situation at Manila was unchanged.

POLITICAL.

At Albany Monday the Democratic house began gathering for the session. They were shaking their fists at Guffy, who seemed to be master of the situation and who favored the nomination of Jenks.

On Tuesday Judge Gordon's friends were yet making a desperate fight, but everything pointed to the nomination of Jenks. The make-up of the rest of the ticket was lost sight of in the squabble for Governor. Guffy seemed to have complete control, and announced that none but Democrats would be nominated.

Geo. A. Jenks was nominated for Governor on first ballot. He having 315 votes.

The Republican county convention in Clearfield, Tuesday, proved a Waterloo for the Quays people. The convention refused to endorse Senator Quay and Penrose, but endorsed Col. E. A. Irvin for United States Senate and instructed the Assembly nominees to support him.

Their clothing usually consists solely of the tunic, or breech cloth, and all generally being in the nature of ornament, and consists of beads, shells, neck and head ornaments, and anklets or leglets of bone's bristles, and frequently with bright colored pearl shells hanging upon the back or breast. The Spaniards do not allow the savages to enter the towns in their ordinary state of nakedness. They frequently blacken the teeth and in some cases paint them to a point.

Some tribes wear a stiff, round hat similar to the salcot of the civilized Indians; other tribes wear a turban or go bareheaded. Tattooing is common among them, but varies with each tribe.

Their arms are a large knife or cutlass carried in a wooden scabbard, this serving for an axe and hoe as well as a weapon of war. In addition to this they carry a lance and spear, and some

THE WILD TRIBES OF THE PHILIPPINES.
(By Prof. J. B. Steere in Scientific American.)
The native inhabitants of the Philippines can be conveniently divided into four groups: the civilized Indians, the Mohammedans, the wild Indians, and the Negroes or Atnas. These divisions are based on the coming of the Spaniards in 1519, through their relative numbers, location and other conditions must have changed greatly since that time.

The wild and civilized Indians and the Mohammedans seem to be all of Malay origin and are closely related to each other and to the native tribes of Formosa on the north and Borneo and Celebes to the south.

The civilized Indians have increased rapidly since the Spanish occupation of the islands. They occupy the lowlands, the coastal and the interior islands, and have lately occupied new territory in Mindanao, Basilan, Palawan and Sulu. Their number, according to Spanish accounts, between six and seven millions.

The Mohammedans are decreasing in importance and probably in numbers also, but are still powerful in the south of the archipelago, where they are the dominant race. They are of Arab and Persian origin, and have a foothold in Palawan. They number, according to Spanish statistics, about three hundred thousand. They appear to have been derived originally from native tribes of the same stock as the Malays, as the Christian Indians, but have fallen far behind them in progress, while the Mohammedans have advanced.

The Negroes or Atnas are supposed to be of African stock, and are, no doubt, the oldest inhabitants of the Philippines. They appear to have been driven by the flood of the Malays to the interior of the islands, where they have divided to a few thousand in the mountains, and a few hundred in the lowlands. They appear to have been driven by the flood of the Malays to the interior of the islands, where they have divided to a few thousand in the mountains, and a few hundred in the lowlands.

OUR BOYS IN CAMP.

Co. E, 12th Regiment, Fort Washington, Md.

So far as Fort Washington is concerned everything is quiet along the Potomac. The weather here is very dry, everything is covered with dust. The days are warm but the nights are unexpectedly cool. Flies, mosquitoes and wood ticks continue very attentive.

Most of the boys are but few natives of the surrounding region, and these few are decidedly cool in their manner. In fact so far as we have been out to observe, the far famed and boasted Southern hospitality is not to be met here. We are not so far from the South, but we do not meet the hospitality that we are used to. We do not want to throw stones at us because we are not from the South, but we do not like to be treated like convicts.

No one over here of a Pennsylvania farmer forbidding people to use his land, but he is a farmer, and he is a Virginian, and he is a few miles above the Virginia side.

The only time they treat a soldier civilly here is when he is shooting a target. Yesterday afternoon Co. A and G were transferred from Ft. Sheridan to Ft. Washington and are now encamped at the same place. They are in the 15th Co. and will be nearly ready to go. We have twenty some guns to the 15th Co. and will be nearly ready to go. We have twenty some guns to the 15th Co. and will be nearly ready to go.

All Co. E is now drilling on two of the big ten-inch guns for two hours every morning. Saturday we will be at a target placed a few miles down the river. A full charge requires 280 pounds of powder, a full charge of 140 pounds. Some of the powder is in lumps like nut coal.
