Miller's Big Shoc. The late issue of the Boot and Shoe Recorder contains a half-page illustration of the Fourth of July exhibition of C. E. Miller, which, it will be recalled, was a float with a large shoe in which were placed half a dozen little girls flanked with a quartet of young boys? The record gives the display a lengthy complimentary notice and since the article appeared in the paper the firm has received a number of inquires from different parts of the country asking for particulars. One inquiry comes from Kentucky, while a New Castle firm wants to purchase the display. The outcome of the sneepless of the local firm was a fitting one and reflects credit upon the originality which conceived it. The late issue of the Boot and Sho implies an aggregation or combination of all that is BEST, hence its application to this shoe.

SOROSIS, the new shoe for women, is designed along this line. The Sorosis proves that shoes can be scientifically constructed so as to combine comfort with style and elegance.

No shoe has ever been designed that has met with such universal favor, in both Europe and America as the Sorosis Two years of time and nearly seventy thousand dollars have been spent in preparation and perfecting it, so that the Sorosis Shoe of today is the most advanced women's shoe in existence. The wearer of Sorosis Shoes will find that she has secured such a combination of the Extreme of Style, the Acme of Fashion and the Perfection of Comfort never before thought possible in shoemaking. They have all the good qualitics of a custom made shoe costing $6.00.
