Poetry in The Courts.

The right of an attorney to present his client's case in court in rhyme will soon be tested in Indiana. There is a case in that State which is before the Circuit Court where the attorney for the defense served notice that he intended to deliver his argument in poetry.

The attorneys for the plaintiff protest-The attorneys for the plaintiff protested, and the court ruled out the poetically-inclined lawyer. The latter has remained firm, and as there are no precedents governing the case, the judges have taken it under advisement and

If lawyers were allowed to plead their causes in rhyme, the next step might be the assertion of their right to sing their arguments to the judge and jury. It is but a step and a short one. lury. It is but a step and a short one, too, from rhymed meter to song. Imagine for a moment the effect of such a change. Tenor lawyers, baritone lawyers and bass lawyers would take the place of experts on corporation and patent laws. People would go to court to hear good music instead of to the opera.

But there is a reason still more potent why the Indiana poet-lawyer should be squelched.

Should lawyers become their own poets, they would crowd out deserving and hard-working village Miltons and Homers, not to mention our own Penn sylvania colonels. Any way, is there not enough bad poetry written nowadays with out the lawyers getting into Newton Black one of Butler's nent attorneys called on friends in Har nony last Monday.

It will be seen that the difference be-tween the cost of the COUNTRY GENTLE-MAN and that of other agricultural week-lies (none of which even attempts to cover the agricultural news of th. day) may readily by reduced, by making up a LESS THAN A CENT A WEEK. Does such a difference as that justify you in contenting yourself with som other paper instead of having the best? SEND FOR SPECIMEN COPIES,

Which will be mailed Pree, and compare them with any other rural weekly; it will not take long to see the difference. Address LUTHER TUCKER & SON, Albany N. Y.
