The name if the owner of almost every packing ouse ends in "ich." Lettunich, Puliso-tal Court & Missich Strangerich Sam ich, Opusich, Miovich, Strazovich, Scuovich, etc., all evidently belonging to amilies of Slav origin, and these are Il surnames of Watsonville apple pack

Watsonville claims the biggest thing n earth in the shape of an apple-pack-ng house. It covers an area of 21,000 uperficial feet. One end of the huge shed abuts on the Southern Pacific track, while the other furnishes faciliies for the rapid unloading of the apacious spring wagons specia for this trade, with long flat beds and strong springs, to carry 100 boxes or nore filled with fruit loosely packed in the orchard. The "plant" required in the busines of apple packing is primitive and inexpensive. The shed is simply a floorless shell, spacious and lofty. In this track are ranged longitudinally to receive small, four-wheeled flat cars, which make easy the work of unloading wagons and loading cars. The rest o e ground space is traversed by piece ntling, on which are ran d the exes of apples, ten tiers high. Benche or boxmakers and tables fitted with on clamps, operated by foot pressur for gently pressing down the bottoms of the full-packed boxes ready for the mailer, constitute the equipment inside shaped hoppers, built of lumber, into which the refuse apples are thrown, to yield up their juice for cider vinegar. A store of this vinegar, sharpening in the sun's rays, fills many barrels, whos bungholes are stopped with wine bo es inverted.

The process of packing calls for con siderable digital dexterity. In packing for the California market one of the first things needful is to put a good face on things. So the boxmaker nails on the top of the box first, and this temporarily becomes the bottom. On this with their brightest colored cheek downward, are ranged the showiest fruit of the grade that is being handled inthe rarrow with the tip of a waiking stick. I knew that they could not have been by eels, which would have left sinuous tracks, while these were tracicht and I was puzzled to explain the packer tilts the box to a consider-tion and the bellflower is especially tender. To facilitate this arranging of the fruit, the packer tilts the box to a consider-tion and I was puzzled to explain ountry boy, bred on the shores of the lake, what caused these furrows bout, as on a level surface.
