The machine took this to be a decla-The machine took this to be a declation of weakness on Mr. McElhaney's part, and tossed its cap in air. It was, however, all a trick. It uncovered the Quay machine's plans, for within two hours there was an announcement from some of the machine leaders that all that McElhaney had said was true. McElhaney's purpose was accomplished, and the scheme of trying to get Demociats to vote for Quay in event of an extra session was revealed.

McElhaney's interview had another effect. It proved how false are the claims the machine has been making that Mayor Ashbridge, of Philadelphia, was doing all he could to help Quay. In an interview concerning his position the same day that the Pittsburg interview with McElhaney appeared Mayor Ashbridge said:

Ashbridge said: ASHBRIDGE DENIES. "It is too absurd to talk about. Why, I never thought of such a thing, or never talked of such a thing to any member of the legislature or, o any one else. I am busy enough just now without undertaking to re-elect Mr. Quay or defeat him, or bother myself in any way in the matter." In discussing this subject the Phila-delphia North American said: "As for the insurgents, they would velcome an extra session. Their leadres declare that, notwithstanding reourts to the contrary, every one of

has piled up fresh trouble for itself. It has succeeded in inducing the admin-istration at Washington to throw aside all established precedent, and as a re-sult some of the most influential conessmen have become enemies of the lay concern. Of course Senator Pen-se handed in the lists, but only ends of Senator Quay were recog also represents a part of the Eighteenth census district. It will be remembered that Congressman Atcheson, whose affiliations have heretofore been with Mr. Quay, protested against the Quay scheme of naming Lieutenant Colonel James Barnett, of Washington, as the candidate for state treasurer. He and Barnett come from the same county, and in an interview with Mr. Quay the congressman pointed out that Barnett's record in his home county was that he was not a straight Republican. That when it suited his purpose Barnett would bolt the ticket, and on several occasions he had contributed to Democratic success by making deals with enemies of the Republican party. For this frank statement Congressman Atcheson has been "thrown down hard," and now he is on the warpath. In the case of Congressman Wanger he was not allowed to name the supervisor for his congressional district, and the same is true of other men who have drilled with Quay and his machine. Of course it all means that there is trouble piling up for "the old man" for the future. He has enough trouble now, it would almost appear. Chairman Elkin, ex-Senator "Lexow" Andrews, Insurance Commissioner Durham, Senator Penrose, T. Larry Eyre and several others are building up a new machine and are fighting Quay on his own ground. This is a
