The One Great Thing at The

The Conference has gone through the form of considering measures supposed to promote the cause of universal peace.

The dream of the young Emperor who realized. The hopes of Bertha von Suttner and the enthusiasts of her school have been disappointed.

The military system of the world is intact. Not only is there no step toward disarmament, there is also no setback to further armament.

Arbitration has gained nothing of any consequence. War upon ordinary provocation is as likely to occur in any given ward disarmament, there is also no setback to further armament.

Arbitration has gained nothing of any consequence. War upon ordinary provocation is as likely to occur in any given instance as if the delegates to the Peace Conference had never assembled.

The gracious phrases and conventional expressions of congratulation which mark the dissolution of the Conference cover but do not conceal these facts.

Was it then a waste of time and effort, so far as the participation of this country is concerned?

By no means. The representatives of the United States have left upon the record one solid, immutable fact of prime importance to us and to all the world; and it was worth their while togo to The Hague if only to register this declaration:

"Nothing contained in this convention shall be so construed as to require the United States to depart from its traditional policy of not entering upon, interfering with, or entangling itself unthe political questions or internal ad ministration of any foreign State. Nor shall anything in said convention be construed to require the relinquishment by the United States of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions."

Expansion proceeds, but the Monroe Doctrine stands 'The Conference at The Hague was a convenient occasion for the formal reaffirmation of American policy respecting European interference in the affairs of the Western Continent.—N. Y. Sun.

DEATH OF COL. HAWKINS.

The U. S. transport "Senator" arrived

The U.S. transport "Senator" arrived at San Francisco, Tuesday evening, with the Tenth regiment, 832 officers and men, on board, but Col Hawkins will be under the direction of Rev. W. H. Sloan.

Arrangements for transportation from Butler has been made. All who wish to take advantage of this way of going please send names at once to the Corresponding Secretary, Miss Lotta B. White, Butler, Pa., so that sufficient accommodation will be made.

Every society belonging to the Union is entitled to two delegates besides the pastor. Then we hope for and invite others to come and enjoy this meeting with us. Your presence will help us and our convention with its helpful talks, inspiring addresses, interesting conferences and interdenominational fellowship will help you.

ELIHU ROOT was sworn in as Secrewas dead.

He died two days out from Yokohama, of cancer of the stomach, and his body was embalmed and secured in a a sealed casket, and placed on the hurricane deck, where it lay, guarded, during the voyage. The rest of the regiment were in good health.

Col. Hawkins was taken sick during the Malolos campaign, and sank rapidly becoming a mere shadow of his former self, but kept at the front until the campaign ended.

The regiment left Manila, July 1st; reached Yokohama July 16th, left there same day, and Col. Hawkins died on the 18th.

HARRISBURG.

On Tuesday Attorney General Elking granted the petition of the Municipal league of Philadelphia that a suggestion be filed in the Dauphin county court for a writ of mandamus against Secretary of the Commonwealth Griest to compel the publication of certain proposed amendments to the Constitution passed at the recent session of the legislature and vetoed by Gov. Stone.

Mr. Elkin rendered a long opinion, giving his reasons for allowing the suggestion. After citing the fact that Govs. Ritner, Bigler, Geary, Hartranft, and Pattison had exercised the right to approve or veto resolutions to amend the Constitution and much other matter bearing on the subject the attorney general says:

"From all the precedents and anthorities herein before referred to it clearly appears that there is a diversity ot opinion and practice on this question. This being the ease it is only proper rhat it should be finally determined in the content and the content and the constitution was bound tightly around his throat, showing that strangulation was reorred to it shearly appears that there is a diversity ot opinion and practice on this question. This being the ease it is only proper rhat it should be finally determined in the content of the colonial transfer of the colonial transfer was begun.

Kiser's body was found on Sunday by a party of berrypickers. The latter had gone to the woods to gather berries, and on their way home passed near Kiser's house. As they did not see Kiser about the place, and they had been broken open and the tendor had been broken open and they entered the house. "From all the precedents and anthorities herein before referred to it clearly appears that there is a diversity ot opinion and practice on this question. This being the case it is only proper that it should be finally determined in the courts, and for this purpose the attorney general is entirely willing that a proper proceeding shall be instituted." He musi have had a rearral struggler or his life before he was overcome, handi-capped as he was, for his shirt was torn from his body. It is presumed that Kiser's murderers gained entrance to the house late Friday night, by breaking in the door with a fence rail. He was last seen early Friday evening at church. It is presumed that the robbers first

Another Railroad.

(From the Beaver Times of last week)

It now seems to be an assured fact that within the next six or eight months Rochester will become the southern terminal of a new railroad which will extend in a north-easterly direction, and connect with the Pittsburg & Western Railroad at Callery Junction, a distance of about sixteen miles.

The new railroad company was incorporated more than a year ago under the name of the Ohio River Junction Railroad Company. But it has never been believed by the public in general that any-definite steps toward the building of a railroad over the proposed route, would ever be taken by this company, but that they had only secured the right of way for the purpose of speculating.

A preliminary survey of the proposed

It is presumed that the robbers first bound Kiser and then ordered him to open the safe, which they must have known contained much money. He refused to give up his wealth, and then they assaulted him in the hope that blows and slow strangulation would drive him to open the safe door. Kiser still resisting, they either killed him outright or left him to die of his wounds.

The safe had not been opened. It is supposed that they feared that they had been discovered in their work and left the house without breaking into the safe. Their flight was hurried, for they stole a rig and team of horses from the barn of Jacob Youkers to aid them in getting away.

There is no definite clue to the murderers, though three ex-convicts are underers, though three ex-convicts are underers.

any-definite steps toward the building of a railroad over the proposed route, would ever be taken by this company, but that they had only secured the right of way for the purpose of speculating.

A preliminary survey of the proposed route was made soon after the company had secured its charter, by a corps of men under Engineer Jas. P. Leaf, of Rochester. That finished, no important action on the part of the company, has been discernable until within the last few months, during which a final survey of the route has been in progress under Engineer Leaf.

A gentleman prominently connected with the company, and who is, therefore, in a position to know whereof he speaks, stated to a Times reporter to day that the new railroad was an assured fact. He said that the final survey would be completed sometime next week, and that the road would be built during the coming fall and winter.

The gentleman gave a general outline of the route. It will run from Rochester to Crows Run, at a point near the Ohio river, up the run to its head, across to connect with the P. & W.

This road when completed, will be of inestimable value to the business and commercial interests of Rochester, greatly increasing her importance as a railroad center and shipping point. It will give to the merchants and manufactures of that locality a competing line west via the P. & W. and east, via the Baltimore & Ohio.

Its ultimate result will undoubtedly be a lower and more satisfactory freight rate than could ever be obtained solong as it remains a necessity for all shipping to be done over roads under the control of one company.
