He feels for the crack separating the doors and carefully examines it from top to bottom. Then, with the cake of soap, he forms a small funnel shaped impression on the top of the safe where the two doors meet and rapidly passes the soap along the crack from top to bottom, covering the speace where the doors join and making the safe air tight. Then the "Yaghum" pulls out the innocent-looking bottle and pours the contents into the gutter at the top. The liquid gradually descends and commences to ooze out at the bottom of the safe. A fuse is then ignited, and a minute later the doors fly open and the work has been done. The bottle always contains nitro-glycerine, and the soap is but part of the instrument of the safe-cracker.

We try to treat you so well you'll tell your friends to buy here. One word of praise from you will do more good than yards of print. We have demonstrated to hundreds of intelligent people we sell one thing as cheap in proportion as another; that we sell a good all-wool suit for $5.00, and that our $10.00 one is exactly twice as good. That for every $1.00 we go up in price, we add to the value. Buy one of our $8, $10, $12 or $15 Suits or Overcoats and it
