STRENGTH OF GIBRALTAR. Its Overwhelming Effect Upon an

American Tourist. "There is no doubt that Gibraltar is, om the nature of its location, the strongest fortified spot on earth," said a recently returned tourist, but the English officers who are on duty there em impressed with the idea that there is some weak spot about the place and that some American may discover it. They have very nonsensi-cal rules and regulations governing the fortification, and one of them is that no American can be admitted to the fortified places, though they are alowed to wander all around the outside as long as they care to.

"I do not think the combined guns of the rest of the world, all working together and for 12 hours each day, Sundays and public holidays included, for one year, could seriously interfere with Gibraltar beyond cutting off the mail ommunication. The walls are solid rock a quarter of a mile thick, and sense. Gibraltar could resist any at-fodder or straw on. ack, and the conditions there are suc that the attacking party would neces-sarily have to be exposed in making its attack. This exposure would have to be within range of the guns of the fort, even if they are 50 years out of date. Consequently they would be nearly as effective as modern guns, for with all that is claimed for modern warfare there probably never will be any fighting done when the opposing parties are out of sight of each other. "While all this is admitted by military men of all countries, it tary men of all countries, it seems funny that there should be anything of a secret or hidden character about Gibraltar that Americans should not be allowed to inspect as freely as the people of other countries are. England may be whipped some time in the history of the world, but the defeat will not take place at Gibraltar, I asure you."-Washington Star.

SCENERY FOR A NEW PLAY. its Preparation In Modern Theaters an Interesting Process.

The preparation for a new play, as far as the scenery is concerned, is most interesting. A complete model in minature is made, about the size of one of the German toy theaters seen in the shops. The picture is carefully painted; the rocks, if there be any, and the foliage are cut out, and all the details are followed with no less thought than when the real affair is attacked.

The work is done in water color, mounted on pasteboard, and if the scheme be an interior there are real curtains in miniature, flights of steps, and the hangings, all seriously worked out. It is something that would delight the heart of a boy and furnish him with endless amusement. These models are kept until after the piece is produced, and are then put away on shelves, alas! only to warp and be-ome covered with dust.

But the master painter's work does not end here by any means, for there are lights to be arranged, since they formance and must be regulated by the scheme of color; so there are long onferences with electricians and many discussions with the makers of glass play an important part in the pershades whereby the exact tints may be then the great acres of canvas are spread on the paint frames, and the drawing is begun. Large china pots are used for the colors. These are filled with paints, which are mixed with water and a size, and enormous brushes put the pigment on the canvas. It is wonderful to watch the artist, who dashes on the paint with no apparent care and who has to work fast to cover the surface before the color dries, which it does quickly.— New York Commercial Advertiser.

Up to Date Houses and Hives That OF ALL

There are many advantages in keeping bees in a house. While there are many apiarists who use beehouses exclusively, the majority do not. There an annual experience of the premy rieties of houses used. A bechouse side streets in Brooklyn.

Having arrived home from business a little earlier than usual, he found that the purpose. None is better than an accommodate 50 colonies of bees by respond to the entrance to the hives. The hives may be set directly on the floor, but I would prefer them set on In a flash they were speeding toward a nearby police station, where they cleats at each end, that would raise the hive some four inches from the packing in winter. Bees thus kept in Five sturdy bluecoats responded to the call at a double quick. Arriving at afforded brings them through the win ter in prime order.

A very cheap beehouse and a very convenient one that I have used and which I make exclusively for bees is a small house 10 feet long, 6 feet wide and 6 feet high. This building accommodates 11 colonies, and the expense laugh that followed than described.—Cleveland does not exceed $1 per colony. This is no more than chaff hives will cost for each colony outside. Floor space for the hives to rest on only is used, as a ground floor in the center is prefer red. The objection to a much longer house on the same plan is that it is no ecome more or less confused where This has always been the objection to echouses, but small buildings such as places, overcome this objection.

In addition to the foregoing para graphs by A. H. Duff of Kansas, The Farm, Field and Fireside illustrates the latest style of hives, with the stateproperty, but about every beekeeper's furniture, sed now almost exclusive-ly by all specialists. No. 1 is a hive arranged for comb honey with two supers, each containing 24 one pound section boxes, thus saving a surplus capacity of 48 pounds. The brood chamber contains eight of the stand ard frames. Hive No. 2 is simply two brood chambers, the upper set of frames used for extracting honey.

In making a husking horse an Ohio Farmer correspondent employs a pair of old wheels of convenient size, an two pieces 1 by 3 and 10 feet long for sides. These are made up like a wheelbarrow. Then he puts uprights in a slant over the wheels. You can husk on one end and pile the fodder on the other end. He uses it for carting fodder from one shock to the other and such a thing as doing any damage in a military sense would be simply nonwhen the ground is frozen, to wheel
