Almost Over a Precipice.

While coming up the Bear cree rade, about three miles south of Par er, last Thursday afternoon, the sout uncing the passengers about like gur ils, and as they looked out of the ca ras discovered that the embankment ad slid down into the creek bed, leav-ng a sheer precipice from the ends of he ties. Had the engine gone off then he whole train would have been pre-ipitated on the rocks far below and if e engineer had not stuck to his pos the engineer had not stuck to his post when death seemed inevitable, this would have happened. The landslide had probably caused the track to sink, which accounts for the broken rail the train was tracked again after a four hour delay. There were about hirty passengers on the train and some of them became greatly excited.

Out of Style, Out of the World!

Our garments have a style that is easily distinguished from the ordinary. They are the result of careful study and practical application of the ideas gathered by frequent visits to the fashion centres, and by personal contact with the leading tailors and fashion authorities of the county. They are made in our own workshop by the highest paid journeymen tailors in Butler, yet it is pos-
