Mrs. E. W. Fulkerson, 30 Elm street, New Castle, Pa., says:—About four years ago I commenced to have a dull heavy pain in my back just over the kidneys and at times it would be a sharp shooting pain. I was so nervous I could not get the proper rest and sleep. Morrow's Kid-Ne-Oids were recommended to relieve me, so I decided to try them, and in a very short time they relieved me of all the troubles—some symptoms.

HOTBEDS.

One of Greenhouse Type—An Improvement in the Hotbed.

On all appliances for the use of glass in lengthening the season of plant growth that of the hotbed is by far the most common, from the small bed of a few sashes suited to a common garden up to the large yards of hotbeds owned by market gardeners. The ordinary making of hotbeds is well understood, but there are certain variations from the usual form which are not so well known, although worthy the consideration of progressive gardeners. To originally appearing in Vick's Magazine. The writer says:

First we will speak of a form of hotbed which is somewhat in the nature of a greenhouse.

Fig. 1 shows such a hotbed of greenhouse form in cross section. The width of the house is 14 feet. The roof consists of six foot hotbed sashes supported by rafters and a ridge part that consists of lapping and resting the sashes without sliding the sash. Entrance is effected from the end through a shed, as shown in Fig. 2. The principal advantage of such a hotbed is that the work of planting, watering, etc., can be done at times when it is too cold or stormy to open hotbeds as they are ordinarily used. There are some gains also in the matter of heat economy as well as in that of being able to replenish any part with fresh manure in case this is desired for increased heat.

First, an excavation two feet in depth and the size of the house was made, the soil being used in part for banking against the house for shelter and to carry away moisture. The sides consist of two inch settling boarded up on the inside and at the top on the outside. The sash supports, of two inch stuff, at the center is six and at the outer walls, while toward the other end they rest on two plates two and a half feet apart, which run lengthwise with the house. These plates are supported by iron gas pipes at intervals of eight feet, the lines of which also define the walk and the beds. The height of the house at the center is six and a half feet. The manure spaces are of the same extent as the beds proper and are about three feet deep. In the boarding up of the manure spaces at the walk in the center is six and a half feet. The manure spaces are of the same extent as the beds proper and are about three feet deep. In the boarding up of the manure spaces at the walk in the center is six and a half feet.

Fainting Spells

Always indicate a weak heart. They usually follow palpitation or fluttering, shortness of breath, irregular or intermittent pulse. When the heart muscle is overworked or exhausted, they relax, the flow of blood to the brain is interrupted, and unconsciousness follows. Should relaxation continue, completed for two or three minutes, sudden death is the result. The surest and best remedy for overworked and debilitated hearts is

DR. MILES' Heart Cure.

"My heart trouble began several years ago with palpitation, shortness of breath, and irregular pulse. I began to have fainting spells and would fall over on the floor. I was unable to attend to my business and I was not able to walk. I was advised to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I bought a bottle. The first few doses relieved the fainting spells and in a few weeks my heart was working all right."—E. W. Cook, York, Pa.
